PUBLIC MEETING LAUNCHES UNITED RELIEF CAMPAIGN AT 7:30 TONIGHT

Gov. Caulfield, Archbishop Glennon, Rabbi Isserman and Other Leaders to Open Appeal for $3,850,000 for 82 Charities.

AT ST. LOUIS U. GYM, 3672 WEST PINE BL.

Tomorrow 8000 Workers Will Begin Intensive Solicitation in Hope of Putting Drive Over the Top by Dec. 15.

The United Relief Campaign in which $3,850,000 is sought for the support during 1933 of 82 Catholic, Jewish and Community Fund charities will be formally opened tonight with a mass meeting in the St. Louis University Gymnasium, 3672 West Pine boulevard.

Gov. Caulfield, Archbishop Glennon, Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman and others are to speak. The meeting is to be opened at 7:30 o'clock and will end about 9 p. m. Preparations have been made for an attendance of about 5000.

Harry B. Wallace, chairman of the Mayor's Committee of 600, which brought about the combined appeal of the major relief organizations, will be the first speaker. He will introduce Frank O. Watts, general chairman of the campaign, who is to preside. The invocation will be by the Rev. Dr. John W. MacIvor, president of the Church Federation, and following him are to be Gov. Caulfield, Rabbi Isserman, Archbishop Glennon and Walter Weisenburger, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Music by Symphony Orchestra.

The full St. Louis Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Vladimir Golschmann, will offer musical numbers at intervals during the speaking program. The public is invited to attend and only two sections of seats have been reserved for members of the Executive Committee of the United Relief Campaign, workers and their friends.

Solicitation Tomorrow.

Tomorrow 8000 solicitors will buckle down to the business of the campaign so that the goal may be achieved within the limit set, December 15.

"Hunger cannot wait for better times," is the burden of their message. They will take pains to point out that it is because business is so bad that the need is so great. Larger subscriptions than those of previous years will be sought because this appeal combines the campaigns of all major relief groups, and because there are many who gave in other campaigns who are themselves in need this year.

Immediate payment of contributions will not be sought, but givers will have the opportunity to make monthly payments on pledges through 1933. For those with incomes of less than $5000 a year contributions of 1 per cent of annual income are suggested. Those with larger incomes are expected to give more.

The "minute man" plan has been adopted as one means of stepping up contributions. The cost of maintaining relief agencies next year, aside from the funds available from the $4,600,000 relief bond issue, has been calculated at $7.33 a minute. Those who gave $5 in past campaigns will be asked to subscribe for a minute of relief time; those who gave $10 will be asked this year to pay for two minutes, or $14.66. Each contributor will be told, after the campaign, the precise period of time his gift will enable the agencies to carry on.

Growing Needs Are Cited.

Instances of growing pressure on the relief facilities of the community were gathered by campaign leaders yesterday from executives of some of the 82 agencies participating in the drive. Outstanding factors in the reports were:

Tremendously increased demands for relief of the unemployed in their own homes.

Services of clinics and hospitals taxed to the limit by those unable to pay.

Greater demands for free and semi-free nursing service.

A critical financial situation in institutions sheltering homeless children and the aged.

The Rev. John J. Butler, secretary of St. Vincent de Paul Society, reported it had spent $442,377 in

Craft Crashes Below Mouth of Detroit River When on Way to Detroit From Toledo.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Dec. 3.—An airplane carrying two men and two young women, sisters, crashed into Lake Erie today, and tonight hope that any of them survived was abandoned, although only one body was recovered.

The occupants of the plane, according to airport authorities here and at Toledo and according to relatives of the two women, were:

Neil Brown, brother of Raymond Brown, owner of the plane and member of a well-to-do Detroit and Clearwater (Fla.) family.

Marcella and Catherine Lies, also known as Kopnitsky, formerly of Punxsutawney, Pa.

The tragedy followed a projected flight of the quartet to Pittsburgh, which started last night, but got only as far as Toledo, whence the party started back to Detroit today.

Coast Guardsmen See Crash.

The plane came down a mile off Bar Point, just below the mouth of Detroit River, shortly after noon today. Coast guardsmen, who witnessed the crash, lifted it several hours later and removed the body of Marcella Lies. The body was brought to Detroit and identified tonight by an aunt, Evelyn Lies, who said that Marcella's sister had been with her and had not returned to her home here, where the girls had been staying.

The plane's cabin was shattered, Coast Guardsmen said, and the girl's body was battered. The guardsmen were of the opinion that the bodies of the other three occupants floated away under water.

The purpose of the projected trip to Pittsburgh apparently was known only to the four who started it, and their movements beyond the airports were not traced.

Advised Not to Go On.

Airport men here regarded the hour of starting last night rather late, and, after the party had spent the night in Toledo, they were advised by airport officials not to resume the journey. They then turned back to Detroit.

Brown was the son of Robert S. Brwn, formerly an officer of a paint company. The family was known as wealthy.

Tuohey, a World War veteran, was married and the father of two children.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The road to congressional approval of an amendment to repeal the eighteenth amendment is still bestrewn with obstacles.

If the House at the opening of the "lame duck" session on Monday acts favorably on the Garner "naked repeal" proposal, it cannot be taken for granted that the Senate will do likewise. On the contrary, the best informed opinion in the Senate today, wet as well as dry opinion, is that "naked repeal" cannot muster the required two-thirds vote in the present Senate.

Some of the House members who vote for the Garner resolution will do so because they believe that its modification in the Senate is certain.

Shot Through With Uncertainties.

The whole situation as Congress meets is shot through with uncertainties and complicated by political motives and disagreements among the wets.

It must be borne in mind that there is still a strong dry sentiment in Congress. Moreover, it must be remembered that the wet majority in Congress today—we are speaking of the present Congress and not of that elected last month to take office after the fourth of March—contains only a handful of long wets. The rest are recent converts.

If and when the Garner repeal resolution comes over to the Senate from the House, what will happen? In the confused situation with which we are confronted, this much is abundantly clear: that immediately the demand for some safeguarding clause against the return of the saloon will be pressed.

So far as this Congress is concerned, the issue was not settled by the writing of a straight-out repeal plank into the Democratic platform. It may have been settled in the minds of the voters who believe in repeal without any frills, but not in the minds of a considerable number of Southern and Western members who want to be able to tell their dry constituents that they exhausted every effort in their behalf before voting for a repeal.

Saving Clause Deemed Advisable.

In the opinion of one of the most astute leaders in the Senate, it will be possible to get a repeal amendment through the coming session only by attaching to it some provision that will give a talking point to this group, so to speak, of recent and reluctant converts to the wet cause.

Even this might be beaten by a filibuster on the part of the wholly unreconstructed drys, like Senator Borah, but let us assume that the passage of "a safeguarded" amendment, such as that proposed last session by Senator Glass of Virginia, becomes possible.

Would the out-and-out wets, those who want repeal without any strings attached to it, who want the whole prohibition question thrown back to the states, consent to a half-and-half proposition that would still leave a police liquor control power in the Federal Constitution?

Why should these wets accept half a loaf in the present Congress when they believe that by waiting a few months, they can get the full loaf complete and unqualified repeal in the new Congress?

We may see a situation closely

Thinks Patriotic Society "Perfectly Right" in Trying to Bar Him.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Dec. 3.—Dr. Albert Einstein today pointed to an incident in ancient Roman history in replying to the Women's Patriotic Organization's opposition to his coming to the United States this month.

"Give heed, therefore, to the sage, patriotic, dear ladies, and remember that the Capitol of mighty Rome was at one time saved by the cackling of her faithful geese," he declared.

The women's objection to his accepting a Princeton professorship was that he was a member of several communist organizations under Moscow management.

After saying that he had never before met such an energetic rebuff by "the beautiful sex," the famous mathematician asserted:

"But aren't they perfectly right, these watchful citizenesses? Why should one admit to one's presence one who devours hard-boiled capitalists with the same appetite and relish as once upon a time the Ogre Minotaurus in Crete devoured luscious Greek maidens—a person who in addition is so vulgar as to oppose every war, except the inevitable one with his own wife?"

TO FLY TO CAPITAL TO GIVE DEMOCRATS SENATE CONTROL

Walter Walker, Colorado Appointee, to Hold Seat Until Opponent's Election Is Certified.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 3.—Discovery of an oversight by a county clerk in a remote region of the State caused United States Senator Walter Walker (Dem.), who was appointed successor to the late Senator Charles W. Waterman (Rep.), to make plans today for an airplane trip to Washington for the opening of Congress Monday. He expects to give Democrats the balance of power in the Senate two or three days at least, while Karl C. Schuyler (Rep.), waits in Washington for a certificate of election to Senator Waterman's unexpired term.

Schuyler had expected the State Canvassing Board to dispatch the certificate to him today, but the Board discovered official returns in the contest between Walker and Schuyler were missing from one county—Hinsdale. All other official returns were in and canvassed and, on the basis of these, together with the unofficial report from Hinsdale County Schuyler had a lead of 1065 votes. The county's total vote is about 200.

The Canvassing Board recessed at noon today until Monday and it was not expected that a certificate of election could be issued and reach Washington before Wednesday or Thursday.

The political lineup of the Senate stands at 47 Democrats, 47 Republicans and one Farmer-Labor, and Walker will give the Democratic party a one-vote majority at the opening session.

Walker was appointed by Gov. William H. Adams three weeks before the general election. Schuyler was already a candidate for the six-year senatorial term against Alva B. Adams (Dem.), who was elected.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—In response to the demands of hungry Democratic politicians pursued by hungrier Democratc office seekers, the Civil Service Commission today began taking a "patronage toll" to find out just how many jobs await the new administration.

So many Democratic Congressmen bombarded the commission with requests as to the number and character of jobs that may be filled by appointment without regard to civil service tests, that the survey was decided upon.

Each Government department head has been queried asking location of the position, date when incumbent was appointed, tenure of office and salary. Every class of employe, from laborer up, is covered.

An unofficial survey today showed slightly more than 108,200 jobs in the executive branch of the Government which are not covered by civil service. Of these about 17,000 are at the direct disposal of the President, the number including 15,000 postmasterships.

FINAL SESSION OF OLD CONGRESS OPENS TOMORROW

Garner Thinks Farm Relief Bill, as Most Important Act, Will Be Passed, but Be Vetoed.

ROOSEVELT PLANS TAKEN TO CAPITAL

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—In a series of brief interviews, this writer today ascertained the views of outstanding members of Congress concerning what Congress should do in the session which opens Monday, and what it is likely to do. Only two questions were asked.

The first was: "What do you consider to be the most pressing problem confronting Congress at this time?" The second was: "What do you expect Congress to do about it?" The replies were as follows:

Speaker Garner: "Farm relief is the most important question to be faced at this session. I believe that Congress will pass a pretty forthright bill of some character, and I confidently expect President Hoover to veto it. He will attempt to force a special session in the hope of embarrassing President Roosevelt."

Representative Snell, New York, Republican floor leader in the House: "It would take a smarter man than me to answer either one of those questions."

Representative Rainey, Illinois, Democratic floor leader: "Farm relief is the most pressing problem before Congress. I believe that we will enact a bill along the lines of the Rainey-Norbeck measure, introduced at the last session, designed to give wheat, cotton, hogs and possibly other commodities the benefit of tariff protection."

Unemployment Problem.

Senator Norris, Nebraska, leader of the Progressive group in the upper chamber: "Unemployment—which includes the farm problem—is the most important question facing this session. It has been permitted to drift for so long that I am not certain in my own mind what can be done. Neither am I certain whether anything adequate will be accomplished during the short session. However, unless something is done there should be a special session next spring—regardless of how much we would all hate it."

Senator Hiram Johnson, California: "We cannot know conditions such as exist in Chicago without realizing that unemployment transcends every other issue. The city of San Francisco, which is without slums and where there is no large poverty class, recently voted $6,500,000 just to feed the hungry. In Chicago conditions pass belief. The Federal Government must deal with this situation. It should have dealt with it long ago, and would have done so but for the blind, stubborn opposition of the present administration. I am not certain what can be done, but Congress probably will have to expand vastly the agencies created at the last session."

Remonetization and Repeal.

Senator Wheeler (Dem.), Montana: "I don't know what the most pressing problem before Congress will be, but I am positive what the most pressing issue before the nation and the world is. It is money. With more than 20 nations off the gold standard, and 20 others with depreciated currencies, it is simply impossible for the rest of the world to do business with us. We will either have to go off the gold standard or pass a measure to remonetize silver. What will this Congress do about it? Not a thing."

Representative Cochran (Dem.), Missouri: "The first acts of Congress at this session should be to modify the Volstead act to legalize real beer and wines and to repeal the eighteenth amendment. I feel sure that the House will pass both measures, but I am disturbed about the Senate. Recent statements by some Southern Democratic Senators indicate that they will favor a resubmission measure similar to that advocated by President Hoover and the Republican platform. The country has shown that it wants flat repeal. I can think of nothing more absurd that a Southern Senator, supposedly devoted to states' rights, insisting that the Federal Government intervene in the regulation of the liquor traffic."

Democratic Plans for Action in House and Senate.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3.—While 79,000 football fans watched the Army and Navy battle on the gridiron today, a relative by marriage of Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley died a short time after becoming ill in the Secretary's box at Franklin Field.

John H. Borden, 63 years old, head teller and for 50 years an employe of the First National Bank here, succumbed to a heart attack shortly after the game got under way. He was taken to a hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Secretary Hurley expressed his sorrow that he was forced to return to Washington tonight and was unable to cancel his plans.

Mrs. Borden, who also was in Secretary Hurley's party at the game, is a sister of Mrs. Hurley's mother, Mrs. Henry Baird Wilson, wife of Rear Admiral Wilson, retired, former commandant of the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

DOCTOR TELLS HIS PATIENTS TO FORGET $81,000 IN BILLS

Atlanta Physician Burns His Account Books and Starts All Over Again.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 3.—Dr. George Brown burned his account books today and told his patients to forget what they owed him and "let's start all over." He had $81,362 worth of due bills on his books.

He notified his patients by mail that he had cleared the slate "so please forget that this little service of mine was ever rendered and join me in passing along this message of good will, good hope and good cheer."

Some of the bills had been running since 1892 when he started practicing medicine. He said payment would have been a hardship for many and that since election of Roosevelt and Garner ushers in "a new day of hope" he would wipe off the slate. Dr. Brown formerly was a member of the Georgia Legislature.

NEW FIRE BOXES TRAP FALSE ALARM SENDERS

City to Try Out Device Which Clamps Bracelet on Person Using It.

If a person turns in a false alarm of a fire on a new street box the city proposes to try, he will find a 4½-pound red steel bracelet locked around his wrist.

However, the device cannot distinguish between good and bad intentions. The bracelet will clamp around the wrist just the same if the person is reporting a real fire.

City officials think the invention may help to catch senders of false alarms, with a resultant tendency to abate that evil and save the cost of useless fire engine runs. The firemen would carry keys to remove the conspicuous burden. Officials think a person sounding a genuine alarm wouldn't mind waiting a minute for the firemen to come and release him.

If a false-alarm sender lingers for the key, he will be detained for the police. If he doesn't wait, he will have a hard time getting rid of the impediment. Files, cold chisels and saws in someone else's hands may help him, but even then the authorities are quite likely to hear about it.

The bracelet consists of a broad cuff, attached to the steel base of the alarm box, the base measuring about 4x10 inches.

The general appearance of the box is like that of the standard unit now in use. The cuff portion hangs below, with a hinged door. On it is the direction, "Pull Down Door." The hand is thrust through the opening thus made, into the box. A further direction on the box tells the user to turn a concealed dial to the right. Turning the dial sounds the alarm and drops the whole base onto the wrist, locked.

A bill appropriating $2500 to buy 50 of the new boxes was introduced in the Board of Aldermen Friday at the request of Andrew J. O'Rielly, chief electrical engineer of the fire and police telegraph bureau. A sample of the device has been on view at his office.

HENRY FORD IS REMOVED FROM HOSPITAL TO HOME

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Dec. 3.—Henry Ford, who underwent an operation for strangulated hernia and removal of the appendix a week ago, was removed to his Dearborn home from Henry Ford Hospital tonight

Ford left the hospital after about half the usual time for patients in similar cases. The recovery was described by physicians and friends as "remarkable."

Ford was sitting up in bed Thursday and was interviewed by newspaper men. At that time it was indicated he would remain in the hospital until Tuesday.

PERTH RATIONS ALDERMEN

Australian City Cuts Supply of Free Liquor and Tobacco.

PERTH, Australia, Dec. 3.—Following a public outcry against expensive habits of municipal representatives, Aldermen of Perth have decided to ration their issue of free drinks and smokes.

Last year the Aldermen consumed thousands of cigars and cigarettes and thousands of dollars' worth of liquor at the expense of the municipal purse. The City Hall frequently was hilarious. The issue has been reduced to 20 drinks or 20 cigars or cigarettes each fortnight.

MANN, TWO OTHERS ARE CONVICTED IN LOTTERY CASE

U. S. JURY ACQUITS RAYMOND WALSH

Verdict Carries Recommendation for Clemency —Sentence Deferred— Maximum Is Three Years and $12,000 Fine.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Conrad H. Mann, president of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce and Missouri chairman of the President's Commission on Unemployment, was convicted today in Federal Court of charges of violating Federal lottery laws and conspiracy to violate lottery laws in the promotion of a "charity frolic and dance" enterprise for the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Convicted with Mann were Frank E. Hering, Eagles' Magazine editor and former Notre Dame professor, and Bernard C. McGuire, professional promoter.

The jury recommended clemency.

Raymond Walsh, assistant to McGuire, was acquitted.

The jury found Mann, Hering and McGuire guilty on two counts, under which the maximum penalty would be three years in prison and fine of $12,000. Sentence was deferred, on motion of defense attorneys, until 2:15 p. m. next Thursday. Bail was continued.

Mann Upset by Verdict.

Mann and Hering were visibly upset by the verdict. Neither would make any statement.

The jury deliberated seven hours, less one hour for lunch. The case was handed to the panel at 10:30 a. m., and before the verdict was delivered at 5:30 p. m. it filed into the courtroom twice to ask instructions.

The specific charges against the defendants were that they caused lottery tickets to be sent across state lines and conspiracy. The latter charge carries the greater penalty, calling for a maximum of two years in prison and fine of $10,000.

Louis Mead Treadwell, 29-year-old prosecutor, told the jury in his summation that "I don't want to send these men to jail—that is not my duty. My duty is only to lay the material facts before you, and let you decide if they are guilty, the Judge if they must go to jail."

Defense Motions Denied.

Max D. Steuer, attorney for McGuire and Walsh, stepped forward when the verdict was announced. He did not speak for some moments, then offered the usual motions to set aside the verdict and to stay judgment. Both of them were denied.

Mann and Hering had five attorneys at their table. With the court adjourned, they went from one to the other. Finally, Mann asked one of them about his bail, if he was permitted to leave. He had said before the verdict that he planned to remain in New York several days to attend to business matters.

He was confident before the jury came in that the verdict would be in his favor. All during his long wait for the decision he chatted easily and gaily with others in the court.

The Court in instructions to the jury said its chief function was to determine whether or not the defendants, when they planned a fund-raising enterprise for the Fraternal Order of Eagles, intended to conduct a lottery.

After an hour of deliberation the jurors filed back into the court to ask further instructions. They wanted to know if their verdict would have to be based solely upon the evidence presented, or whether they would be permitted to draw inferences from the evidence and their opinion of the character of the persons involved. The Court told them that they must depend on their own wisdom, and draw their own inferences from the evidence.

Later the jury sent for some of the exhibits, wanting particularly to see the copy of speeches that were made to local Eagle aeries by salesmen for McGuire, the promoter.

Trial of the four men opened last Monday, but did not get under way until Tuesday. Attorneys for

PRESIDENT TO PUT WAR DEBTS ISSUE BEFORE CONGRESS

Payments Expected and Effort Will Be Made to Find Method Least Disturbing to Exchanges.

LIVELY DEBATE ON SUBJECT IS LIKELY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Ambassador Mellon conferred for half an hour today with the Lord President of the Council, Stanley Baldwin, at 10 Downing street, reportedly on instructions from Washington concerning the second British note on war debts. Sir Maurice Hankey, secretary of the Privy Council, also was at the conference. Ambassador Mellon would not divulge the subjects discussed and he did not confirm the report he had acted on orders from Secretary of State Stimson.

Baldwin is in charge of the Government in Premier MacDonald's absence in Geneva. Some circles inclined toward the belief that Ambassador Mellon and Baldwin discussed the suggestion that Britain be permitted to pay the instalment over a period of six months, an arrangement which might stave off any sudden fall in exchange values which might follow a $95,550,000 gold transfer.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. — The administration was understood tonight to be preparing for the resumption of war debt payments on Dec. 15 and seeking a method of collection that would create as little disturbance in the international exchanges as possible.

There is, of course, no certainty that Great Britain and France, whose lengthy appeals for postponement were received this week, will make the payments, but there is a general impression here that the installments will be met.

President Hoover is expected to refer the whole subject to Congress next week, with a renewal of his appeal for creation of a commission to consider debt relief later but with a firm stand against postponement of payments.

It is becoming plain that this Government intends to have as a part of any program for debt relief some show of disarmament by the European Powers.

No Reference to Disarmament.

"The weakness of both the British and French notes," he said, "is that they omit altogether the subjects of disarmament and of cooperation with us in any way or for any purpose.

"In other words, they say they want our money to equip more armies and battleships. That is precisely what the American people will not stand for.

"It occurs to me that nothing will be gained by another series of notes between the governments. The fifteenth is the pay day and the nations must understand that it is the fixed policy of the Government to have them pay on that day."

Other Republicans and Democrats joined in this view, and there is reason to believe that Watson, as majority leader, speaks somewhat the attitude of the administration.

Meanwhile, signs developed of considerable debate in Congress over debts. No chance whatever appears in prospect for authorization of a debt commission such as proposed by the President.

Also, Senator McKellar (Dem.), Tennessee, intends to inquire into statements in the British and French notes to our Government with respect to the Lausanne conference of last summer on German reparations. Mr. Hoover has denied any commitments on his part or by this Government with the European Powers on this agreement.

Notes for Congress.

It was thought today that the notes from six countries which have asked for a further war debts moratorium would be sent to Congress with the President's annual message on Tuesday.

After conferring with Mr. Hoover today, Secretary Stimson indicated that no action would be taken by the administration concerning the French or British notes before Monday, when Congress convenes.

"So far as I know," said the Secretary of state, "there will be no official statement or action today or tomorrow, either."

Not Construed As Threat.

Britain's suggestion that American foreign trade would suffer if war debt payments were resumed is not construed by Commerce Department economists as a threat directed specifically at the United States.

An expert on foreign trade relations has pointed out that all countries trading with Great Britain would suffer equally if that nation—as forecast in its debt note to the United States—should take steps to restrict imports.

Resumption of war debt payments would mean, it is said, that Great Britain would be faced with the further necessity of cutting down import trade to counter-balance the additional outlay needed for principal, interest and amortization charges. It is explained that this could be done through raising tariff rates, revision of import quotas, or control of exchange.

It is pointed out that in the absence of any hope of increasing export trade, the cutting down of imports is the only method left by which Great Britain could keep its balance of payments equalized.

In this connection it is said that, while England always has had an adverse trade balance, its invisible items of trade, such as interest on loans in foreign countries, shipping interests and banking commissions, more than offset this factor until 18 months or two years ago. Since that time its balance of payments also has been unfavorable.

Suggests Silver as Solution.

Chairman Somers of the House Coinage Committee has suggested that Great Britain might be allowed to make her Dec. 15 debt payment in silver. Senator Hayden (Dem.), Arizona, said he was trying to get some figures concerning his resolution to permit debt payments in silver. Senator Wheeler (Dem.), Montana, and numerous others hold to a belief that remonetization of silver is essential for economic recovery. But some leaders in both House and Senate think the silver drive will be swept aside by other pressing subjects.

Somers' idea is based on facts obtained in a lengthy study of world monetary conditions by his committee. Great Britain, Somers said, could pay in silver, utilizing some of the 300,000,000-ounce reserve of India.

"Let us see what would happen if England were to pay her debt in silver at, we will say, 35 cents an ounce," Somers said. "Such an arrangement would be a good deal for the debtor because the value of silver is now 25 cents an ounce and the suggestion is tantamount to a reduction of the amount due.

"But as soon as we made such an arrangement with Great Britain, silver would go to 35 cents an ounce." If silver went up, he continued, the dollar, comparatively, would go down, and production costs in silver countries would rise, destroying "to some extent the necessity of building high tariff walls to protect our home markets."

"What is more important," he continued, "is that, through this experiment, we would once and for all, at a negligible cost, determine the value of silver as a lever on commodity prices. If it succeeded, we would have the key to the solution of all future depressions. If it failed, the silver advocates would be answered forever.

"At any rate, the silver could always be sold back to these nations, so that we would be receiving something of value in payment of the indebtedness and we would be showing our good will by trying to make it as easy as possible for Great Britain and other nations to preserve the sanctity of their contracts. And we would be getting a breathing spell permitting us to examine the whole economic and monetary question before the next debt payment is due."

Insistence upon British payment in gold, with a consequent further depreciation in the value of the pound sterling, he asserted, "will harm America probably more than Great Britain."

Lady Astor to Be Heard.

Acting Chairman McReynolds has made arrangements for Viscount and Lady Astor to appear before the House Foreign Affairs Committee next Wednesday to give their views on the British Government's plea for postponement of the war debt payments. McReynolds, Tennessee Democrat, will succeed the late Representative Linthicum, Maryland Democrat, as chairman when Congress meets.

McReynolds was one of those who conferred with Gov. Roosevelt when the President-elect was here to discuss the debt situation with President Hoover.

In addressing the League of Women Voters in Richmond, Va., yesterday, Lady Astor denounced "the terrible nationalism" which she said "has gripped many nations" and is "a menace to progress."

At Dedication of City Hospital Nurses' Home

NURSES' HOME AT CITY HOSPITAL DEDICATED

Father Schwitalla Is Speaker—First Superintendent Present in Wheelchair.

The new $600,000 City Hospital Nurses' Home, was dedicated yesterday afternoon, with Miss Emma L. Warr, the first superintendent of the Nurses' Home and the first graduate nurse to arrive here, in attendance. She was taken to the home, at Grattan and Carroll streets, in a wheel chair from City Hospital, where she has been since last August, when she suffered a broken hip in a fall.

Miss Warr, who says she is "about 80 years old," came here in 1884, to supervise the City Hospital Nurses' Training School, first of its kind to be established west of the Mississippi River.

With Miss Warr were her three consecutive successors—Miss M. A. Gillis, who served from 1909 to 1922 and now principal of school of nursing at Mount Sinai Hospital at Cleveland, O.; Miss Janet C. Bond of St. Louis, who was superintendent from 1922 to 1930, and Miss Clara A. Coleman, who is in charge today.

About 100 persons attended the dedication exercises, held in the building's gymnasium. The Rev. Alphonse S. Schwitalla, dean of the School of Medicine at the St. Louis University, delivered the principal address, on "The Ideals in the Nursing Profession."

"Nursing is the most active, the most idealistic of all professions," Father Schwitalla said. "The nurse must learn many things not immediately practical and not immediately remunerative. She needs a sympathetic attitude, not a critical attitude. Let us encourage it."

The six-story building, construction of which began more than a year ago, accommodates 279 nurses. It contains 253 single bedrooms and 16 suites for faculty members. All of the furniture is of metal. Color schemes in the rooms, carried out through bed coverings, bridge lamps and rugs, are of orchid, rose, green and yellow ensembles.

The ground floor, connected by a tunnel with the hospital, contains class rooms, chemistry and dietetic laboratories, a demonstration room and a large library. On the second floor are a large, luxurious lounging room with three small student parlors, offices, a waiting room, three small graduate parlors, and hospital rooms for sick nurses.

A gymnasium is on the third floor, which is in the shape of an E, the middle wing rising only two stories. The two wings on each floor terminate in a large sun parlor. Also in the wings are kitchenettes, baths and showers, and laundry-rooms.

The courts between the wings are sodded and one will be used as a croquet ground. The other will be made into a formal garden, with a fish pool in the center and will be illuminated by spotlights.

WALSH AND GLASS SOUNDED ON CABINET

Their Friends, However, Feel Neither Is Inclined Now to Leave Senate.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Two of the Senate's veterans—Glass of Virginia and Walsh of Montana—are high on the list of President-elect Roosevelt's prospective Cabinet selections.

Recent conferees of the Governor at Warm Springs, Ga., are reported to be sounding out the two senators on the posts of Secretary of the Treasury and Attorney-General, respectively.

Neither Glass nor Walsh will discuss the subject. There is a feeling, however, among their friends that neither is at present inclined to leave the Senate for administrative duties.

Washington Democrats regard James A. Farley, the manager of Gov. Roosevelt's successful campaign, as a certainty for selection as Postmaster-General. It is also believed here that Farley will continue as chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Senator Glass left the House in the latter part of President Wilson's administration to become Secretary of the Treasury and complete the trying jobs of the war financing.

Senator Walsh gained national prominence by his prosecution of the Senate investigation resulting in the civil and criminal court proceedings over the leasing of Government oil fields. He was recommended by Senate Republicans and Democrats and others for appointment to the Supreme Court to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes.

MANN, TWO OTHERS ARE FOUND GUILTY IN LOTTERY CASE

both sides conceded much of the evidence and the case drew to a speedy close.

Mann is head of the bazaar department of the Eagles and as such he gets 40 per cent of the profits from all fund-raising activities of the lodge and is permitted to contract with outside promoters. Hering, who is editor of the Eagles' Magazine, it was shown, had a separate contract with Mann by which he received 33 1-3 per cent of Mann's bazaar department profits.

Mann, the evidence showed, signed a contract with McGuire in December, 1930. By its terms McGuire was to conduct a fund-raising campaign for the Eagles and the profits were to be divided equally between Mann and McGuire. They each netted $230,000 in the enterprise.

The enterprise, conducted in the forepart of 1931, took the form of a "charity frolic and dance." Each of 879 local Eagle aeries conducted its own dance. The tickets for these affairs were printed in Scranton, Pa., and distributed nationally by express from Philadelphia. They entitled the holders to participate in a grand distribution of $75,000 in cash prizes.

Subsequently, a drawing was held on a boat in Lake Erie and the prize winners determined by the drawing out of ticket stubs from a barrel. This, the Government charged, constituted a lottery.

Mann's defense was that when he contracted with McGuire, the latter said that he had a legal way in which to distribute prizes, but did not disclose to him the particulars of the plan.

McGuire entered the defense that he had no intention to conduct a lottery and that the manner in which the prizes were to be awarded was left to an Eagles "Award" Committee which was yet unnamed at the time of the negotiations in 1930. It was upon these negotiations that the Government based conspiracy charges.

Two Other Similar Cases.

Walsh was McGuire's assistant and the Government showed that he negotiated and arranged the printing and shipping of the tickets. Also, McGuire is defendant in two other similar cases. One concerns the Loyal Order of Moose and a campaign put on by that order for the benefit of its children's home at Mooseheart, Ill. United States Senator James J. Davis, director-general of the Moose, and Theodore G. Miller, secretary of the Moose propagation department, also are defendants in this action.

Davis obtained a severance on the ground that he was entitled to vindication before making a campaign for re-election as Senator from Pennsylvania. He went to trial early in the fall, but after two weeks a juror committed the indiscretion of communicating with a defense attorney. A mistrial was declared, the juror fined $100. The case will come up again on Dec. 12 and Davis, Miller, McGuire and Walsh will be tried together.

The third case is against the Western Union Telegraph Co., M. J. Rivise, an officer of that company, and McGuire and Walsh. The Western Union is accused of furnishing messenger service for the transportation of lottery tickets. This case is on the docket for Monday, but it is expected to be postponed until after the Davis trial is finished.

Senate Action on Repeal Doubtful

analagous to that in the famous League of Nations fight. The Wilson Senators, it will be recalled, at the behest of their leader in the White House, voted against our entrance into the League because the resolution taking us into the League had been loaded down with the "killing" Lodge reservations.

It is wholly conceivable—indeed, some of the outright wets are already talking in this vein—that if the test comes in the Senate on the Glass amendment or something akin to it, the wets who want complete repeal will join with the drys in voting down the amendment. If they do this, they will be acting in the full expectation of getting an unqualified repealer through the next Congress.

The Glass amendment, drawn along the lines of the Republican wet and dry plank, would leave in the Constitution a prohibition against the shipment of intoxicating liquor into the dry states and also against the sale of such liquor "for consumption at the place of sale, commonly known as a saloon."

The wets—the complete repeal wets—contend that the whole business of regulation should be returned to the states, and they point out, moreover, that the dry states are already fully protected against the flow of liquor from wet states by the Webb-Kenyon act, which the Supreme Court has ruled as late as May, 1932, is still in effect.

The wets might be willing to have some paraphrase of the Webb-Kenyon law written into the amendment, but they are firmly set against the attempt to set up a Federal regulation concerning the saloon. This, they say, should be left to the states, and any effort by the Federal Government to dictate to the states in the matter would bring on endless controversy. What, for example, is a saloon? Glass has said that his amendment would not prevent the sale of liquor in licensed hotels and restaurants, but who can say that these might not be brought within the scope of Federal regulations against the "saloon"?

Method of Ratification.

There is also to be settled in the Senate the moot question of whether Congress in proposing an amendment shall stipulate ratification by state legislatures—the method followed without exception in the past—or by state conventions. Garner's resolution calls for the latter, and the House procedure is such that he can put his plan through without amendment.

But this will not be the case in the Senate. The Senate likes nothing better than to argue a nice constitutional point. If there is any disposition to filibuster on prohibition in the coming session, endless opportunity will be provided by the questions arising out of the proposed means of ratification.

There is a sharp difference of opinion as to the method that ought to be proposed. Both the party platforms call for the convention method. The wets favored this plan at the time the platforms were drafted because they believed the drys had an advantage in the state legislatures.

Conditions have changed since then, and many wets now prefer the state-legislature method on the ground that it would produce quicker results. Speaker Garner was guided by the party platform and by an elaborate opinion prepared for him by A. Mitchell Palmer, Attorney-General in the Wilson administration.

Some Would Let States Decide.

In the discussion of the matter the opinion was advanced by some leaders that Congress, under the Constitution, might permit the states to choose either method. Majority leader Henry T. Rainey held this view. He was overruled by Palmer and other authorities, among them Representtaive James M. Beck of Pennsylvania, who said that the optional view was "absolutely unsound" and that Congress must propose one method or the other.

The language of the Constitution is that an amendment shall become effective when ratified by the required number of legislatures or conventions "as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the Congress."

First-Rate Chance in House.

The Garner resolution appears to have a first-rate chance of getting the required two-thirds vote in the House, though most of the leaders tonight declined to attach their names to a flat prediction to that effect. Speaker Garner said he had made no poll to determine how the Democrats would vote, and he denied that he had ever said the resolution would be adopted. Garner added that if this House did not approve the resolution, there would be no trouble in getting it through the next.

"There will be 313 Democratic Representatives in the Seventy-third Congress," said the Speaker, "and at least 300 of them are pledged to the Democratic plank for repeal."

Representative Jacob L. Milligan of Missouri, assistant Democratic whip, who has been counting noses on his side, said there would be more than 150 Democrats for the resolution. Estimating that the total vote would be about 400, in which case 267 affirmative votes would be required for adoption. Milligan pointed out that 120 Republican votes added to the Democratic 150 would turn the trick. Representative Fred Britten of Illinois, a leading Republican wet, has said that 120 Republicans will support the measure.

If these forecasts are correct, the resolution will be adopted and go to the Senate.

G. O. P. Wets to Meet.

There remained, however, an element of uncertainty caused by the announcement today by Beck that the Republican wets would meet at 9:30 o'clock Monday morning to decide on a course of action.

Minority Leader Bertrand H. Snell said that half the Republicans had not yet returned to Washington, and declined to guess how many on his side would support the Garner resolution. He said that prohibition had not been a party issue, and that members therefore would be free to vote their individual preference.

Snell criticised Garner for haste. "If the Democrats were not in such a great hurry," he said, "I believe we could give the people what they want in a short time. If the Speaker would wait only a week, so the question of procedure could be more fully discussed, I am sure that we could make greater progress.

"The radical drys, of course, are against any change in the Constitution, but the sane drys would recognize the changed sentiment of the country if we went more slowly and didn't try to force this dose of castor oil down their throats.

"I should like to see a group of the constitutional experts of the House and Senate together to work out an orderly procedure. This plan might not completely suit me or other members of Congress, but we would have assurance that it was the product of those best qualified to speak.

"As we now know, if the two parties had given more thought to the question of procedure, it is highly doubtful whether ratification by conventions would have been put into the party platforms. The plank went in, however, and we must make the best of it."

"Danger of Going Too Fast."

"The great danger is that the Democrats are going too fast. If I were a radical dry I should be delighted that the Democrats are taking this course, because the drys will have more arguments now than they have had for some time."

Under the procedure outlined by Garner, he will recognize either Chairman Hatton Sumners of the Judiciary Committee or Majority Leader Rainey. The motion will be to suspend the rules and adopt the repeal resolution.

This motion requires a second. The majority of the House is determined by a teller vote, which will be something of a test vote on the main issue. This majority, according to the leaders on both sides, will be forthcoming.

Debate will then proceed for 40 minutes—20 to each side. If Rainey is recognized he will support the convention system, pointing out that subsequent legislation can protect Southern states from any "force bill" precedent. His argument will be that the State Legislatures can be authorized to set up the convention machinery.

WASHINGTON GETS SET FOR TROUBLE, CALLS ON FIREMEN

Entire Department to Be Sworn in to Re-enforce the Police in Coping With Marchers.

DEMONSTRATORS TO ARRIVE TODAY

One Leader Talks of 'Forcible Action' if Necessary—10,000 Troops Await Call in Nearby Posts.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Orders went out today to 350 firemen to take a temporary police oath tomorrow. Thus the strength of the police force will be raised to about 1750 by the time the first contingents of marching demonstrators reach the District of Columbia line.

Back of this force are 10,000 Federal troops, National Guardsmen and marines and sailors subject to call from nearby posts.

The Army General Staff today had officers on duty receiving police and governmental reports of clashes between the marchers and authorities along the way.

Several American Legion posts have informally offered to assist the police.

Threat of "Forcible Action."

Herbert Benjamin, one of the sponsors of the demonstration, said tonight the marchers were prepared for "forcible action," if necessary, to overcome the police. He said the demonstrators "can handle them (the police and volunteer assistants) quite well."

To assist Benjamin with his problem of finding lodging for the marchers, three of the delegation of nine women who came from New York yesterday to seek Federal aid for the demonstrators, remained in the city. The others returned to New York after they had been refused an audience with President Hoover. Those who remained were Mrs. Polly Chase Boyden, Mrs. Belle Taub and Miss Sylvia Feningston, all of New York.

From the office of an attorney near Police Headquarters they began a series of telephone calls in an effort to obtain Federal aid for the demonstrators.

All civic organizations and the leading commercial and real estate groups in the city had already announced they would have nothing to do with the march. That decision became a reality when the women sought to rent vacant buildings. Most of them had just been withdrawn from the rental market.

U. S. Buildings Guarded.

Extra guards will be on hand at the Treasury, White House, Capitol and electric and gas plants from late tonight until the marchers leave.

Beginning tomorrow, after the bulk of the contingents arrive, heavy forces will be on hand at all strategic points in the city.

Lem Harris, who called himself the "executive secretary of the Farmers' National Relief Conference," issued a statement today telling of plans for a farmers' march on Washington. The organization's program includes a demand for immediate cash for farmers with which to buy food.

Marchers Escorted to Outskirts of Cumberland, Md., by Police.

By the Associated Press.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Dec. 3.—More than 1000 men, women and children, moving eastward toward Washington for a demonstration, were escorted through Cumberland late today. The marchers encamped tonight on a 38-acre farm of T. Grant Moreland, head of a local unemployment group, east of the city. The municipality provided no food for them and did not allow them to visit the city.

The first of the marchers approached Cumberland shortly before 6 p. m., and were greeted at a place known as "the Narrows," on the national pike on the western outskirts of the city, by city police. The marchers' leaders protested the order of Mayor George Henderson to split them into small groups and escort them through the city. They finally agreed, and in bands of about 25 automobiles each were taken over the streets to the Moreland farm.

The streets were lined with hundreds of citizens while at advantageous points were assembled some 300 deputized volunteers. In the city armory was mobilized the local company of Maryland National Guard, but it was not needed. The city police, volunteers and National Guard troops remained on duty through the night.

24 Marchers Jailed in Wilmington After Clash With Police.

By the Associated Press.

WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 3.—Washington-bound marchers estimated by police to number more than 1200 crossed the Delaware State line into Maryland today, leaving behind 24 of their number as prisoners at Wilmington.

The prisoners, arrested last night as a result of an outbreak at an old church where about a third of the demonstrators were quartered, were taken into Municipal Court. Judge John Lynn sent three to jail, freed 14 and fined the others. All were charged with assault and battery or disorderly conduct, or both.

David Levinson, a Philadelphia lawyer, appeared as defense attorney, explaining he had been sent here by the International Labor Defense group. He took an appeal in each of the cases in which a jail sentence was imposed.

More than 20 policemen testified, including four who were treated at hospitals after the outbreak. Several of the "marchers" also testified. All were disheveled and some wore bandages. The eyes of both police and demonstrators also were swollen from the tear gas used in breaking up the disturbance.

Four policemen and three marchers were injured in last night's clash.

More than 100 persons, the police said, took part in the fight which started when somebody threw a bottle at a patrolman standing guard at a meeting in progress outside a hall in which marchers were housed for the night.

80 Bonus Marchers Leave Chicago for Washington.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—George Anthony "national field commander" of the bonus expeditionary force, led 80 men out of Chicago today toward Washington to urge again immediate payment of the bonus.

Anthony said his men would board a freight train. He has "ordered all bonus army camps throughout the country" to send columns to Washington.

temporary numerical superiority in the Senate when Congress convenes Monday, party leaders have agreed not to upset the Republican control. A single Senator, however, could rais ethe question of Senate organization and throw Republican control into jeopardy. If Walter Walker, Colorado Democrat, arrives in the capital by the time Congress opens, the Senate strength will be divided as follows: Democrats 48, Republicans 47, Farmer-Labor 1.

Republican and Democratic leaders have agreed to allow the present organization to continue. Democrats are not anxious to take control with such a narrow balance of power.

Senator Davis (Rep.), Pennsylvania, is under indictment for violation of postal laws in connection with alleged Moose lotteries, and there is some doubt among Republican Senators as to whether he will occupy his seat in the Senate while under indictment. If he does not, even the vote of Senator Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, who usually votes with the Republicans on organization, would not give the Republicans the necessary votes, in a question of organization, unless some Democrat refrained from voting.

Democrats Disposed to Lead.

The Democrats are disposed, however, to assume leadership in both houses, with the view to disposing of prohibition and agricultural problems as well as balancing the budget, to make unnecessary a special session next spring.

Emissaries from President-elect Roosevelt have brought plans for a tax on legalized beer and for farm relief for enactment at the short session. Both problems will be tackled by the Democratic House first.

President Hoover went ahead today on his own course and ideas for the short session in rounding out his annual message and the special budget message which will be presented probably on Tuesday and Wednesday.

For Raising Revenue.

Beer has no part in Mr. Hoover's plans for raising revenue to wipe out the new deficit piling up at the Treasury. Instead, if he asks for new taxes, as seems likely, he is expected to urge a moderate manufacters' sales tax.

Both Democrats and Republicans are relying on drastic economies in the Government budget for next year to pare down the prospective billion-dollar deficit, and on this bipartisan action is in order.

The House Ways and Means Committee will open hearings next week on legislation to legalize beer, with a view to tapping this source of revenue.

It appears unlikely that prohibition will receive serious consideration in the Senate before the Christmas holidays. Also, there is a growing belief there that an outright repeal resolution such as proposed by Speaker Garner cannot muster the necessary two-thirds vote for submission to the states.

Farm Problem Discussed.

Democratic farm aid plans were framed today in the office of Chairman Jones of the House Agriculture Committee, where two recent visitors of President-elect Roosevelt and a sponsor of the domestic allotment plan gathered to confer. Around the table in an all-day session were Henry Wallace, editor of Wallace's Farmer, and Henry Morgenthau Jr. of New York, both of whom came to the capital from Warm Springs, and M. L. Wilson of the Montana State Agricultural College.

Discussion centered on Wilson's domestic allotment plan, a form of which was introduced last year by Representative Rainey, the Democratic leader. Mr. Roosevelt frequently has discussed this plan with farm leaders and Rainey has announced it will form the basis of Democratic legislation.

Jones said, "I'll have a bill ready at the proper time." The Texan discussed farm relief with Roosevelt on his recent visit to Washington and today was advised further of the President-elect's views by Morgenthau and Wallace.

PISTOL FIGHT AT KENTUCKY MEETING, ONE DEAD, TWO SHOT

Slain Man Was Accused in Another Killing; Two of Uncles Hurt, Third Missing.

By the Associated Press.

SALYERSVILLE, Ky., Dec. 3.—Cisco Arnett, who, officers said, was accused of killing Harlow Ray some time ago, was shot and killed this afternoon in a pistol fight at a schoolhouse on the middle fork of the Licking River.

Kelly Harnett and Hargis Arnett, uncles of the slain man, were wounded. Another uncle, Wilson Arnett, could not be located by officers after the shooting, which occurred when Democrats in that section met to elect a precinct committeeman, in accordance with the quadrennial statewide reorganization of the party.

Among those arrested was Bob Arnett, a candidate for precinct committeeman.

The shooting occurred while Magoffin County officers were investigating the ambush killing of Norman Triplett. He was shot on the highway near Bloomington last night and died today. Triplett had been convicted of killing Noah Lykins and was under 10-year sentence, but was free on bond pending an appeal.

RANSOM PAID TO BANDITS

Former Long Beach (Cal.) Merchant Released in Mexico.

By the Associated Press.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Dec. 3.—Held for ransom by Mexican bandits since last Monday, Nick Gotsis, partner in the Farmers' Produce Co., was released yesterday in the State of Tecuala, Mexico, according to company executives at Los Angeles. They said they understood several thousand pesos ransom had been paid to the bandits.

The victim until a year ago lived in this city. He was manager of a ranch growing tomatoes for Los Angeles and Long Beach firms at Acaponeta, Nayarit, Mexico. Gotsis' wife and three small children were said to be safe in a neighboring city, where they were taken for protection. Mexican soldiers have been on the ranch until recently. In that area bodies of those slain by bandits have been left hanging from trees, according to letters from Gotsis to a brother here.

ST. LOUIS WOMAN HURT AT ST. JOSEPH, MO. DIES

Miss Clara Plamann, 32, Victim of Auto Collision There Last Sunday Night.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 3.—Miss Clara Plamann, 32 years old, of St. Louis died in a hospital here yesterday of shock and injuries suffered in an automobile collision last Sunday night.

A passenger in the automobile of her brother, Alvin V. Plamann, 20, of Hiawatha, Kan., she was thrown through the windshield when his car struck another and was pinned beneath the car, as was her brother, when it turned over against a street marker. Her left arm was cut from the wrist to the shoulder and she suffered internal injuries, but it had been thought that she would recover. Physicians said shock was largely responsible for the death.

Miss Plamann met her brother in Columbia, Mo., having traveled there by bus, on the day of the accident, and was accompanying him to Hiawatha, formerly her home, when the collision occurred. The body was taken to Hiawatha for burial.

Miss Plamann lived at 5211 Robbins avenue, with her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Baumann. The Baumanns left St. Louis last Monday night, according to neighbors, to attend the injured woman.

ROBBERY NEAR POLICE STATION

Burglars Take $111 From Safe at 2400 North Tenth.

A safe of the Metal Goods Corporation at 2400 North Tenth street, opposite the North Market Street Police Station, was broken open Friday night or early yesterday by burglars who took $111 in cash, $79 worth of stamps and non-negotiable securities.

A porter found the safe open yesterday morning, its combination lock broken. A sledge hammer and a crowbar lay near by. The burglars entered the place through a second-floor window, apparently, after climbing to an adjoining roof.

VOTING TRUST SET UP FOR CONTROL OF MISSOURI LIFE

Arrangement Made Possible by Purchase of Majority of Stock of Kentucky Home Life.

More than half of the $5,000,000 capital stock of the Missouri State Life Insurance Co. is about to be placed in a voting trust agreement for five years, according to an announcement yesterday by William T. Nardin, president. The effect will be to stabilize the management under the present officers, following several years of factional strife for control among stockholders.

The voting trust was made possible through the purchase in New York yesterday of control of the Kentucky Home Life Insurance Co. of Louisville, Ky., which is capitalized at $1,000,000. Seventy-five per cent of the stock of that concern was purchased by Julius H. Barnes of New York and his associates from Albert M. Greenfield, a Philadelphia real estate operator. Kentucky Home Life owns 148,050 shares of Missouri State Life stock, or 29.5 per cent of the 500,000 shares in the St. Louis concern. It was reported that Greenfield received $1,350,000 for his Kentucky Home stock.

Barnes, who was elected chairman of the board of Missouri State Life last July, already controlled virtually all the rest of the stock of Kentucky Home Life. Barnes is former president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and of the United States Grain Corporation.

To Be Put in Voting Trust.

Kentucky Home Life's holdings in Missouri State Life will be placed in the voting trust, along with more than 100,000 shares held by others, Nardin announces.

Trustees under the voting trust will be Barnes, Nardin and Tom K. Smith, president of Boatmen's National Bank. They will serve without compensation. Smith does not represent any stock interest, but was chosen as a disinterested person at Nardin's suggestion.

Stock represented by E. D. Nims, chairman of the Missouri State Life Executive Committee, and F. O. Watts, board chairman of the First National Bank, is to be placed in the voting trust also, Nardin says. It amounts to about 100,000 shares. Kentucky Home Life directors will meet next Tuesday or Wednesday to authorize participation in the voting trust.

The voting trust is expected to become effective within a few days. It had been opposed by Greenfield, who was in position to exercise working control of Missouri State Life affairs through Kentucky Home Life.

Terms Dictated, It Is Said.

Nordin played a leading part in bringing about the voting trust agreement. Although not announced officially, it was learned that State Superintendent of Insurance Thompson had virtually ordered that the agreement be made and dictated the selection of the trustees. The result is satisfactory to Thompson, who wished to end the factional strife.

Theobald Felss, Cincinnati miller, owns the second largest block of Missouri State Life Stock, about 25,000 shares. While he is not committed, the company expects him to place his holdings in the voting trust. Barnes and Frank Cohen of New York own the third largest block, about 15,000 shares, through their Insurance Equities Corporation. It was this corporation which made the Kentucky Home Life purchase from Greenfield. This 15,000 share block will go in the voting trust.

Joseph F. Holland of St. Louis and former United States Senator James A. Reed of Kansas City were counsel for Barnes in the Greenfield deal.

The 29.5 per cent block of Missouri State Life stock was held originally by the Inter-Southern Life Insurance Co. of Louisville, now in receivership. It was placed there through the defunct Rogers Caldwell interests of Nashville, Tenn., which formerly controlled Missouri State Life. Later, M. J. Dorsey of Hammond, Ind., gained control of Inter-Southern and a year ago sought to exercise control of Missouri State Life. In July, Kentucky Home Life was established to take over the assets of Inter-Southern. Dorsey was defeated in his efforts. Hillsman Taylor retired as president and Nardin was elected last April. Barnes entered the company in connection with this reorganization.

HUSBAND, WIFE AND 'OTHER WOMAN' LIVED TOGETHER

Missing Omaha Girl Taken Home After Being Found at "Boy Friend's" House

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 3.—Blanche Blaha, 19-year-old girl missing from her home for two months, was found today to be living with her married "boy friend" and his wife, sharing his love with the knowledge and consent of his wife. The story was unfolded when police arrested Wendell Leiser in their search for the missing girl.

Mrs. Leiser told authorities that it was at her suggestion that Miss Blaha had been brought to the Leiser home to live. "Blanche is a sweet girl," she said, "and I don't blame Wendell for loving her. I suggested he bring her here to live until Wendell and I get a divorce, if we decide we want one."

Leiser explained that he had been in love with Miss Blaha for "some time." He said: "We went out together all the time and my wife knew about it. Neither of us were ashamed of our love nor tried to conceal it."

"I can't see anything wrong with it," Miss Blaha said. "I helped with the housework and his wife and I were the best of friends."

Miss Blaha was back at her home today at her mother's request, but said she would "wait" for Leiser indefinitely if he wanted her to, and that meanwhile she expected to see him often.

HIRAM LLOYD DINES ALONE AS 'LAST MAN'

Keeps Faith With 22 Deceased Members of Degree Club in Lone Formality.

For the second consecutive year the annual banquet of the St. Louis-Topeka Degree Club of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows was held last night with only one member in attendance.

Hiram Lloyd, former Lieutenant-Governor, is the surviving member of the organization, which began in 1890 when 23 St. Louis Odd Fellows went to Topeka to confer degrees. They agreed to dine together annually on the first Saturday of December, the survivor to dine alone. Last night's banquet was the forty-second.

While an orchestra played softly in the large dining room of the Coronado Hotel, Lloyd sat alone at a small table on one side. Gay dinner parties went on about him, but he was undisturbed, save for the busy attentions of waiters about his table.

"It was hardest of all last year," he told a reporter before the dinner. "There were to have been two of us then, but Robert C. Wright died in October. He was my boyhood friend.

"We used to have some wonderful get-togethers. We had our dinners at numerous places, among them Faust's, Lippe's and McTague's. One year there were 13 of us and somebody said, 'Well, that means bad luck for one of us.' But the next year we were all present again. The first of us to go was our youngest member, John Frank, who died the year after we organized."

Lloyd is 69 years old and lives at 1212 Clara avenue. He is a past grand master of the lodge and a member of Wildey Lodge, No. 2, the oldest in Missouri. He was Lieutenant-Governor from 1921 to 1925.

EXCHANGE DRAWS U. S. SHOPPERS TO CANADA

Paper Dollar Worth $1.15 or More in Stores of Montreal and Other Cities.

By the Associated Press.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Dec. 3.—Christmas shoppers from the United States side of the Canadian border are cashing in on Great Britain's financial difficulties. Taking advantage of the 15 cents or more exchange on every dollar they spend in Canada, many Americans are crossing into Canada to do their shopping in Montreal and other cities.

Some of the merchants south of the line have expressed concern at the loss in business.

Depreciated currency in Canada places a premium on the United States dollar. The rate of exchange varies, often from day to day, but the falling price of the pound sterling during the past week or two has been reflected in Canada and in the number of shoppers, especially women, who have been making trips across the border.

The trade, individually, is comparatively small. Visitors to Canada are permitted to bring in $100 worth of purchases without duty on declaring their purchases at the customs offices along the border, but declarations are limited to one a month. Most of the shoppers are content to buy less than the $100 worth.

Women from this city and other communities frequently make the trip to the Canadian cities in parties of three or four. Each may purchase $25 worth and on their return one makes a declaration covering all purchases. The four may go again a week later and another files the declaration for the party. In this way they may make several trips within the 30 days and be able to keep up with the latest sales in the Canadian shops.

The trade is entirely in American banknotes and currency, as gold carries no premium. For United States banknotes, however, a shopper from the United States may get from $1.50 to $2 extra on each $10 bill.

One American, who ran short of funds while in Canada, unwittingly profited. He wired his bank for $50. He received the money and on his return found that, despite the cost of sending the money, as a result of the exchange rate, he had made a profit.

Heads of Four Associations Working Together in Relief Campaign

THESE are the heads of the four associations of relief agencies which are combining their appeals in the $3,850,000 United Relief Campaign. Lund is chairman of Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment; Igoe, president of St. Vincent de Paul Society and represented Catholic Charities in preparations for the campaign; Rauh, president of the Jewish Federation, and Maestre president of the Community Fund.

HOW RELIEF MONEY WILL BE DISTRIBUTED

THE $3,850,000 sought in the United Relief Campaign is to be distributed as follows:

Community Fund (34 agencies)	$1,657,935
Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment (and 11 agencies)	914,491
Catholic Charities (36 agencies)	653,538
Jewish Federation (12 agencies)	463,036
Campaign and collection costs	161,000
Total	$3,850,000

In addition, there will be available proceeds of the $4,600,000 relief bond issue. It is hoped some means will be found of raising $150,000 in St. Louis County from tax funds for use as bond issue funds are to be used in the city. This would make the total available for relief during 1933, from all sources, $8,600,000.

Only relief agencies are to participate in the $3,850,000 United Relief Campaign which opens tonight. Character building and similar organizations will have no part in it, but will seek funds in campaigns early next year.

The relief agencies of the Community Fund, Catholic Charities and Jewish Federation, with Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment, agreed this year, at the request of the Mayor's Committee of 600, to unite their appeals in a single campaign. The $3,850,000 goal was fixed by a committee of three, composed of Sidney Maestre, president of the Community Fund; William L. Igoe, representing the Catholic Charities, and Aaron S. Rauh, president of the Jewish Federation.

Each of the three groups prepared a minimum budget covering its needs and a committee of 15, including representatives of each of the groups, then went over the combined budget. This in turn was submitted to the committee of three, approved by it, and the goal was fixed accordingly. It is about the total of what each group received in separate campaigns for this year.

Bond Issue for Family Aid.

There will be available also, to St. Louis family relief agencies through the Citizens' Committee, the proceeds of the $4,600,000 relief bond issue. Bond issue funds are to be used during 1933 as city tax funds were during 1932, to meet excess expenditures of the agencies. Bond issue funds, too, will provide for a $1,000,000 work relief program.

Out of the $3,850,000 which it is proposed to raise, $161,000, or 4.2 per cent, is reserved for the cost of the campaign and the collection of pledges throughout next year. The cost of the campaign is estimated at $91,000, or 2.4 per cent, and the collection, or administration cost, at $70,000, or 1.8 per cent.

The total administration costs, including the United Relief Campaign, the participating federations and the 82 individual agencies, are estimated at 7 per cent. Seventy-six per cent is allocated to material relief, and 17 per cent to services for the needy.

Of the funds available for material relief, it is estimated, 72 cents of each dollar will be spent for groceries, 15 cents for rent, 6 cents for light and fuel, 1 cent for clothing (most clothing is obtained free through the Clothing Bureau), 1 cent for medicine, 3 cents for household furnishings and 2 cents for miscellaneous items.

Funds available for service will be used to employ trained social workers to supervise the efforts of volunteers and arrange for handling the social, medical, legal and other problems incident to caring for an average of 25,000 needy families a month.

Non-Participating Agencies.

Nineteen agencies of the Community Fund not engaged in relief work, nine members of Catholic Charities, and two of the Jewish Federation are not participating in the United Relief Campaign. The Community Fund agencies will seek to raise about $600,000 in January; the Jewish Federation will seek about $75,000 in February, and the Catholic Charities' agencies will get along as they have in the past, for most part without public appeals.

Community Fund agencies not included in this campaign are: the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, American Society for Control of Cancer, Big Brothers, Big Sisters and B. R. O. Girls' Club, Board of Religious Organizations, Holy Cross Corporation, International Institute, Kingdom House, Missouri Association for Occupational Therapy, Missouri Social Hygiene Association, Missouri Welfare League, Neighborhood Association, Park and Playground Association, St. Louis Society for the Blind, Wesley House, and Salvation Army departments not engaged in relief work.

Jewish Federation agencies which will not participate are the Y. M. H. A. and the Hebrew Schools. The $75,000 campaign in February will be for these and national organizations with which the Federation is affiliated.

Catholic Charities not participating are: the Association for Care of Aged Catholics, Association for Care of Convalescent Girls and Women, Catholic Women's Association, Daughters of Isabella, Father Dempsey's Hotel for Workingmen, Ladies of Charity, Queen's Daughters, St. Patrick's Hotel for Workingwomen and the Cheer Club.

Relief Agencies.

Family relief agencies participating in the United Relief Campaign are to get $2,125,200 of the $3,850,000 sought. They are listed elsewhere on this page, along with an analysis of their operations during the first 10 months of the year. The Jewish Federation is represented there by its Community Center and Social Service Bureau, and Catholic Charities by St. Vincent de Paul Society. All are affiliated with Citizens' Committee on relief and employment from which those in the city derive a considerable part of their funds. During the first 10 months of 1932 they spent $3,018,542, and for the full year their expenditures are estimated at $4,110,000. Next year, it is estimated, they will be required to spend $5,297,106.

Twenty hospitals and the Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association, which distributes its funds among hospitals, are to receive $739,200. During 1932, records to date indicate, they will give 44,772 days of maternity care to 3636 mothers unable to pay for it, and will give 331,148 days of free or part-cost care to 31,368 other patients.

The hospitals include nine affiliated with Catholic charities, eight Community Fund members, and three allied with the Jewish Federation. The Catholic hospitals are Alexian Brothers, De Paul, Mount Saint Rose Sanitarium, St. Ann's Maternity, St. Anthony's, St. John's, St. Mary's Hospital, St. Mary's Infirmary, and St. Vincent's Sanitarium. The Community Fund hospitals are: Barnard, Barnes, Children's, Maternity, Obstetric, Peoples', St. Luke's and Salvation Army Home and Hospital. The three affiliated with Jewish Federation are Jewish Hospital, Jewish Sanitorium and Miriam Convalescent Home.

Specialized Relief Agencies.

The 26 specialized relief agencies which are to receive $569,800, include clinics, visiting nurses, day nurseries, outing farms for undernourished children, and the two co-ordinating agencies, the Social Service Exchange and Community Council.

An outline of the work of agencies included in the specialized relief group follows:

Alexian Brothers' Clinic, connected with Alexian Brothers' Hospital, 3833 South Broadway, is a member of Catholic Charities. Several thousand patients are treated there each year.

Catholic Outing Home, in Ferguson, has facilities for caring for 75 children at a time. Undernourished children from the crowded districts of the city are sent there during the summer.

Catholic Women's League maintains a day nursery at 1023 Selby place, and last year provided about 6000 days of care for children of employed mothers.

Children's Aid Society, 340 North Vandeventer avenue, a Community Fund agency, helps children, sometimes in their own homes, sometimes by placing them in foster homes. Unmarried mothers are offered advice and assistance.

Children's Department of Catholic Charities is the co-ordinating agency of child care institutions affiliated with the group.

Community Council, a Community Fund agency, has about 100 social service and charitable agencies as members. It is the clearing house to which they refer problems of administration for study and recommendation.

De Paul Clinic is operated in connection with De Paul Hospital and in addition to the usual services provided by clinics supplies medical attention to houseless men at Ozanam Shelter. It is a member of the Catholic Charities.

the last fiscal year, and anticipated a greater expenditure next year. Miss Emilie G. Robson, director of the Visiting Nurse Association, said 10 of its staff of 46 had been released because of reduced revenue, and that in October, when 8545 visits were made, revenue fell off 30 per cent. The association charges a fee of $1 a visit if the patient is able to pay it.

Half of the baby cottage at Jewish Orphans' Home has been closed because of lack of funds, and closing of the entire cottage is being considered, it was said by Mrs. Hymen C. Weisman, secretary.

Dr. L. H. Burlingham, superintendent of Barnes Hospital, reported it had been forced by lack of funds to reduce the number of charity patients by one-third.

Preliminary reports of contributions made in advance of the formal opening of the campaign are already reaching headquarters of the committee in the Franklin-American Building at Seventh and Locust streets.

Ninety-two employes of People's Motorbus Co. have subscribed $506, the individual gifts ranging between $3.18 and $10. Many of them came from employes "on the extra board," whose earnings are limited.

The key man at Security National Bank turned in a final report showing pledges of $655 by 32 employes.

From the Goldsmith Clothing Co., 1707 Washington avenue, came a report that 11 employes had contributed $474. The same employes last year gave $274 in the Community Fund and Crisis Campaign.

Three radio talks in behalf of the campaign are to be made today. Archbishop Glennon will speak over KMOX at 7:45 p. m.; Robert L. Lund, chairman of Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment, over the same station at 6 p. m., and former Judge Fred L. English over KWK at 10:15 p. m.

WHERE RELIEF FUNDS CAME FROM IN 1932

RELIEF agencies during 1932 derived funds from four campaigns for voluntary contributions, from municipal appropriations and from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. In addition, several of the agencies have income from endowments and gifts from persons specially interested in them.

Following are the principal sources of income, the figures for the various campaigns being the amounts pledged, which are subject to a deduction estimated at 8 per cent for uncollectable pledges:

Joint campaign of Community Fund and Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment	$2,464,206
Jewish Federation Campaign	402,000
Archbishop Glennon's Campaign (Catholic Charities)	375,000
Appropriations from tax funds to Citizens' Committee	814,547
*Reconstruction Finance Corporation	330,591
Total	$5,578,610

*The R. F. C. authorized a loan of $628,930, for relief needs of September, October and November. None was used in September, $130,591 was drawn for October, and for November, it is estimated $200,000 will be needed.

Mrs. Edith Roosevelt to Visit Son.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Mrs. Edith Kermit Roosevelt, 71-year-old widow of President Theodore Roosevelt, will leave the Sagamore Hill homestead at Oyster Bay, Long Island, Tuesday night for the Philippine Islands. She plans to sail from Seattle, Wash., Dec. 10 on the steamship President Madison, arriving at Manila in time to spend the Christmas holidays with her son, Theodore Roosevelt, Governor-General of the Philippines. It will be the first Christmas away from Sagamore Hill for Mrs. Roosevelt since the death of her husband, 14 years ago.

PARK IN ST. LOUIS FOR CONFERENCES ON APPOINTMENTS

Governor-Elect Expects to See Guy A. Thompson, William T. Jones, W. L. Igoe and Others.

Governor-elect Guy B. Park of Platte City arrived in St. Louis last night to "look the situation over" before deciding on his appointees to the St. Louis Police and Election Boards. He expects to have many conferences today and tomorrow.

Accompanied by C. A. Leedy of Kansas City, who was manager of the two primary campaigns of Francis M. Wilson whom Park succeeded on the Democratic ticket after Wilson's death, the Governor-elect went to the Marquette Hotel. He said he hoped to avoid conferences until today.

Park said that he had in mind no individual for any of the St. Louis appointments, and that he "did not know that he would have" when he had finished his conferences.

"I can say nothing at this time about St. Louis appointments except what I said in the campaign," he said. "That was that I shall confer with reputable citizens of St. Louis, and with no other kind, on these appointments, citizens who enjoy public confidence, and I expect to be guided by their advice."

Those He Will See.

While saying that he had no appointments for conferences, he said he hoped and expected to see Guy A. Thompson, former Judge William T. Jones, William L. Igoe, former Judge Daniel G. Taylor, Senator-elect Clark, Senator Hawes if he was in the city, and probably many others.

Park was a classmate at Missouri University of Judge Jones, and served in the Constitutional Convention with Judge Taylor.

It is the general belief among St. Louis politicians that in the matter of St. Louis appointments the new Governor will give particularly close attention to the advice of Igoe, who was local manager of the Wilson campaign, but the indications are that before deciding on any individuals it will be necessary that they be approved by Thompson, Jones and probably Taylor.

Park refused to discuss individuals who have been suggested as possible appointees, dismissing such questions with the statement:

"I have not one single individual in mind, and do not know that I shall have when I leave St. Louis. When in my own mind I have not got down to considering particular persons, I cannot discuss my probable decisions."

Some Rumored Selections.

This applied to rumors that Igoe was to be asked to head the Police Board, that Dr. W. G. Patton, a starter in the race for the nomination for Governor, but who withdrew early, would be president of the Police Board, and that Kenneth Teasdale, a Dearmont supporter in the primary, was slated for a place on the Election Board.

Likewise he refused to discuss the appointment he will have to make early in the spring of a member of the Public Service Commission. There have been rumors that the vacancy to be caused by the expiration of the term of Almon Ing, would be filled by former Mayor Louis V. Stigall of St. Joseph, and that Stigall would be named chairman of the commission. Another report was that Commissioner George H. English would be advanced to the chairmanship and Stigall named merely a member of the commission. "I do not know who will be appointed to the commission," Park said

The Governor-elect will be in St. Louis all of today and probably until noon Monday.

Job Seekers Awaiting Him.

When he arrived at the Marquette Hotel last night, about 20 Democrats, some from St. Louis and some from outside the city, were waiting to see him. Some of them had sat in the lobby of the hotel all day. They were either seeking jobs for themselves or for friends.

Park was able, by not going to the hotel desk, to slip into an elevator and get into his room without being waylaid. He said he was very tired and hoped to be able to get a "real night's rest." He had been in Jefferson City two days and had talked to many office seekers. Accompanied only by Leedy, he drove from Jefferson City, leaving there at 3 o'clock and reaching the Marquette shortly after 7 o'clock.

15 Pct. of Population of U. S. Has It in Its Power to Block Repeal of Eighteenth Amendment

Anti-Prohibitionists Base Hope on Last Election When Many Dry States Reversed Previous Stand.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—After a prohibition repeal amendment has been approved by a two-thirds majority in both houses of Congress will come the task of getting it ratified by the states. Three-fourths of the states, acting through their legislatures or through specially called state conventions, as the congressional resolution proposing the amendment may direct, must vote for the repealer before it can become effective.

The Literary Digest poll, the stampede of the delegates at both the national political conventions to the damp or the very wet side, the trend in the recent elections, the present rush of Senators and Representatives to get aboard the wet band wagon—these and other unmistakable signs all show that the sentiment of the country is preponderantly anti-prohibition. There has been a mighty upheaval of opinion since the eighteenth amendment was written into the Constitution.

13 States Can Block Repeal.

National prohibition appears to be doomed, but the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment and the other informed individuals and organizations working for repeal are not minimizing the job ahead of them.

Thirteen states—one more than one-fourth the total number of states—can block repeal. Until 36 states have voted for repeal in the manner prescribed, the eighteenth amendment, no matter how great the popular uprising against it, will remain in the Constitution. A small fraction of the people of the United States can impose its will on the remainder.

To show what conceivably might happen, let us draw up a list of 13 of the dryest, or the least wet, states. We shall choose these states from two groups—states that were bone-dry before national prohibition and states that voted themselves bone-dry, under their own laws, after national prohibition. We shall choose, moreover, only those states which, so far as the official voting record discloses, are still on the dry side, excluding all formerly dry states which, in one way or another, have shown a wet trend.

Kansans Against Repeal.

We start with Kansas, a prohibition pioneer and probably today the driest State in the Union. The Kansas Senators, Capper (Rep.), and McGill (Dem.), are against repeal, and both are noted for keeping their ears to the ground. Kansas gave to the nation Charles Curtis, who ran for re-election to the Vice-Presidency as an outright dry while his chief and the party platform were damp. We can make no mistake about Kansas.

Then there is Idaho, whose redoubtable Borah is the most effective prohibition leader in the nation, and, for a third, there is Nebraska, both of whose Senators, Norris and Howell, are against repeal, though Norris is for a beer amendment to the Volstead Act.

13 Dry States.

The following 13 states, then, are dry on the face of the record; whether they are actually the driest 13 is a matter of opinion:

	Population 1930
Alabama	2,646,248
Arkansas	1,854,482
Florida	1,468,211
Georgia	2,908,506
Idaho	445,032
Kansas	1,880,999
Nebraska	1,377,963
New Hampshire	465,293
New Mexico	423,317
Oklahoma	2,396,040
South Dakota	692,849
Utah	507,847
West Virginia	1,729,205
Total	18,796,002

These 13 states may not actually be the dryest 13, but the list is certainly not far from the mark. None of the states in the list equals Missouri in population. The smallest five combined have 1,000,000 fewer inhabitants than Missouri. None of these five contains as many people as the city of St. Louis. The two states of New York and Illinois have more than all of the 13.

What 15 Per Cent Can Do.

The 13 states have a total population, according to the 1930 census, of 18,796,002. This is a trifle more than 15 per cent of the whole population of the United States. The area containing this 15 per cent could require the whole United States, with 122,775,046 people, to stay under the eighteenth amendment.

This is one side of the picture. The other and—from the repeal point of view—the brighter side is the encroachment of the wet tide on dry territory in the last elections. There were 11 state referendums, and the anti-prohibitionists won all. State previously accounted quite as dry as some of those in our list of 13 went wet.

Colorado, for example, a bone-dry state even before the adoption of the eighteenth amendment, repealed its prohibition act and approved an amendment enabling the Legislature to provide laws regulating the manufacture and sale of intoxicating beverages. Arizona, another bone-dry state before national prohibition, removed prohibition from its laws and permitted physicians to prescribe whisky. Washington, another of the bone-dry group before national prohibition, repealed all its liquor laws except the one making it a felony to sell intoxicants to a minor.

North Dakota, where the drys won in 1912 and 1928, repealed its prohibition laws by a close vote. Michigan, one of the states that adopted bone-dry codes after national prohibition came in, voted 780,154 to 318,871 to repeal the State enforcement act. Wyoming, consistently dry for years, voted to ask Congress to repeal the eighteenth amendment, and Connecticut did the same. Louisiana killed its enforcement law by a large majority and asked Congress to call a constitutional convention to pass on repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

California repealed its Wright enforcement act by a vote of more than two to one. Oregon, dry since 1916, repealed that part of its code prohibiting the possession of liquor. New Jersey, running true to its wet form, repealed its State enforcement act.

GATES A. HALFIN
SPEAKING TO THE LADIES

FIRST—ABOUT SHOES

MANY women know shoes—ladies' shoes. They know that there are four kinds of shoes, designated according to their method of manufacture. For instance, there are shoes with turned soles, shoes with welt soles, shoes with McKay sewed soles and, the newest of all, shoes with compo soles, cemented on. Prices vary with the quality of work and quality of material. Women know this about shoes, know values, and are learning more about shoes every day.

Now my job is to enlighten them on the true value of canaries, cages, birds, aquariums, aquarium fish, dog and cat foods, bird foods, remedies, etc.

Now about canaries—canaries, taken from the breeding and training room, before they are fully developed, are absolutely unfinished products. The age to sell full song canaries is at least ten months old and, to make it plain that we sell only full song singers, our guarantees bear the age of the singing canary we sell. The doubt is taken out, we hold them here, many for weeks before we offer them for sale. We know birds, thereby protecting our customers. That has been the foundation of our business and why today we are the leaders in St. Louis; nothing short of that would we attempt, because we know fair dealings build a business, truthful advertising pays, and plain language is preferred by sensible people.

The right price, from the start—not marking them up, or letting people select the best, then selling the shoddies at reduced prices, is not our way of merchandising. Neither would we place on our retail shelves dozens of canaries, that we know nothing about, rush our customers with making a quick selection, or make claims they are the finest, selected birds, just because somebody told us so. No, Mam, we don't do business that way in any department of our store. We use no bait and no loss leaders.

NEW FACTS ABOUT ANDRE HANGING FOUND

Old Letter Says Both Friends and Enemies "Extremely Regretted" Execution.

By the Associated Press.

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., Dec. 3.—A letter found in the attic of an old house here and published for the first time, gives new facts about the execution of Maj. John Andre and the treachery of Benedict Arnold.

The letter, written by Joseph Eggleston, a Virginia officer in the Continental army, and published in "a Williamsburg scrap book," quoted Andre as saying just before he was hanged that "the gentlemen present could bear him witness, he died like a brave man."

An account of the execution was found among the papers of St. George Tucker. It was written from Tappan, N. Y., where Eggleston was stationed, and was dated Oct. 4, 1780, two days after the historic event occurred.

"Extremely regretted by both friends and enemies," the letter said, "he is a lamentable instance of the necessity of example, when there is no criminality in the object.

"His great ability, his military virtues and engaging manners, endeared him remarkably to the British army; his modesty, his firmness, his high sentiments of honor, strongly prepossessed in his favor all of the American army, who had an opportunity of seeing him."

The letter then describes the trial and sentence of death which was passed on Andre who "to some with whom he spoke more freely," professed to have a "feeling common to the human heart on such occasions, and that he pretended not to heroism. He observed that for a young man of 25 his prospects were brilliant, and equal to the most unbounded ambition. These he could leave without regret, but he had a mother and two sisters who, by the taking of Grenada, were reduced in their circumstances, and looked up to him for support and protection. At this time, and it was the only instance he discovered a weakness—he burst into tears, but soon recollected and recovered himself.

"When led to execution, no change could be perceived in his countenance by persons who accurately observed him, nothing which betrayed either apprehension or emotion. But he was tranquil and serene, his step firm, and in accordance with the music, the powers of his mind full and attentive to every minute occurrence. He was asked if he was desirous of speaking to the spectators, he replied he had only one thing to observe, "that the gentlemen present would bear him witness he died like a brave man.' The cart was soon after driven off."

SECOND OF TWO PYTHONS CAUGHT IN ROOMING HOUSE

Ten-Foot Snake Free for Eight Months Now in Zoo; Its Name Is "Elusive."

The 10-foot python captured Friday night in a rooming house at 3875 Washington boulevard, where it had lived for eight months since it escaped through a hole in the bathroom wall, will be on exhibit at the Zoo's reptile house today.

The snake is in a cage at the southeast corner of the reptile building. It was named yesterday by Director George P. Vierheller, who caught it in the rooming house basement after police had cornered it. Vierheller, recalling the long and tedious searches conducted for the reptile, decided on the name "Elusive."

Closing Time for Foreign Mail.

GOVERNORS WILL GO TO INAUGURAL AT OWN EXPENSE

Roosevelt, Planning Simple Ceremony, Will Extend Invitations to Executives on This Basis.

By the Associated Press.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Dec. 3.—Plans for a simple, dignified inauguration ceremony in which there will be few marching troops were agreed upon today by Franklin D. Roosevelt and Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the Inaugural Committee.

Mr. Roosevelt plans to write to the Governors of the 48 states shortly after all of the newly elected ones have been inducted into office, asking that they not send National Guardsmen at State expense to march in the inaugural parade. They will be told, however, that they may bring a small staff and that the President-elect will be delighted to have any individuals come at their own expense. Under the latter invitation might come several famous military groups such as the Richmond Blues.

On an Inaugural Ball.

A final decision on whether an inaugural ball should be held was left up to the Inaugural Committee which Grayson will select soon after his return to Washington. If such a ball is held, the President-elect stipulated that the proceeds should go to charity. He would not attend the ball, but several members of his family would be present.

The Federal military units that will participate in the parade down historic Pennsylvania Avenue will be confined to one army regiment from Fort Myers, Va., a battalion of marines from the marine barracks near Washington, and a battalion of blue jackets from the Washington Navy Yard.

No Prancing Steeds Spectacle.

Another inaugural custom that will completely disappear at the March 4 ceremony will be the spectacle of Governors riding prancing steeds in the long parade. They will travel down the avenue in open automobiles, surrounded by the members of their staffs.

A suggestion that National Guard units be brought from the neighboring states of Maryland and Virginia to march in the parade was turned down on the theory that, if the nearby states were permitted to send troops, other farther distant ones would also desire to do so, with consequent additional expense to their taxpayers.

Visitors at Cottage.

One of the visitors to his cottage who spent a long time talking with Mr. Roosevelt about budgetary matters, including a proposal that the budget originating power be equally divided between Congress and the Chief Executive, was Swagar Shirley of Kentucky, a former chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

Senator Cutting of New Mexico was expected for a talk. Cutting was one of the independent Republicans who supported Mr. Roosevelt in the campaign.

Another visitor was Representative Rayburn of Texas, chairman of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, which would frame any railroad legislation that the President-elect might have in mind for enactment to carry out his proposal for a national transportation plan. This plan, as outlined in Salt Lake City, would provide for regulation of busses by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the correlation of all agencies of transportation into a systematized use.

From Indiana came Governor-elect Paul V. McNutt and Thomas J. Taggart, National Committeeman for that State. They were flying to Florida and came to pay their respects to the President-elect.

Gov. Woodring, Mentioned for Cabinet, Going to Warm Springs.

TOPEKA, Kan., Dec. 3. — Gov. Harry H. Woodring (Dem.), and Guy T. Helvering, Democratic State Chairman, are going to Warm Springs, Ga., to confer with President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Since his defeat last month in a three-cornered governorship contest, the Kansas executive has been mentioned as a possible choice for Secretary of Agriculture in the Roosevelt Cabinet. He has made no public comment on published speculation.

Gov. Woodring was one of the early Roosevelt supporters, and seconded his nomination for the presidency at the Democratic national convention. The Governor said that from Warm Springs he would go to Washington to attend the annual banquet of the Gridiron Club.

Man Missing from Home.

Police have been asked to search for Harry Lake, 27 years old, who left his home, 7227A South Broadway, last Monday, and has not communicated with his family since. He is described as 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighing 165 pounds. He wore a tan colored hat and overcoat and reddish brown suit. The search was requested by his brother, Bernard H. Lake, 3721 Gravois avenue.

MOVE TO ABANDON BUS LINE, KIRKWOOD TO OSAGE HILLS

P. S. Co. Makes Application to State Public Service Commission.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 3.—The St. Louis Public Service Co. today applied to the Missouri Public Service Commission for authority to abandon a motor bus line it operates between Kirkwood and Osage Hills, on the ground the line was being operated at a loss.

The Public Service Commission has no jurisdiction over this bus line, under exemption clauses of the State motor bus regulatory law affecting municipalities. However, when the St. Louis Public Service Co. was authorized to abandon its Osage Hills street car line between the intersection of Woodbine and Magnolia avenues, in Kirkwood, and the Osage Hills loop, conditional on bus service being substituted, the company agreed to operate the bus service until authorized by the commission to discontinue it, despite the commission's lack of jurisdiction over such a bus line.

The bus line was established on July 25, 1932, following in general the route of the abandoned Osage Hills street car line. In the application the company stated the bus line was not earning operating expenses, and that there was no prospect of any increase in its revenues.

By the Associated Press.

WENDOVER, Ky., Dec. 3. — Clifton Rodes Breckinridge, 86 years old, Ambassador to Russia under President Cleveland and a member of Congress from Arkansas for six terms, died here today. He was a son of Gen. John C. Breckinridge, Vice-President of the United States.

Mr. Breckinridge was born in Lexington, Ky. He served as a private in the Confederate Army during the war between the States, and was transferred to the Confederate Navy. THE FINEST BUICK EVER BUILT

For twenty-nine years, people have regarded Buick as a standard of value. Now, with the advent of the new Buick for 1933, they will find more reasons than ever for continuing to award Buick three-to-one preference over any other eight in its price range.

Trim, smart, low-swung, this new Buick is even bigger and more beautiful than any previous Buick model, and combines new smoothness of operation with its proved ability to give more and better miles.

To make the new Buicks even more luxurious we have given them: new wheelbases 4 inches to 9 inches longer; new low center of gravity, with all models 2 inches lower; and new Bodies by Fisher with smart Wind-Stream Styling, from the handsome radiator and hood to the graceful Slip-Stream back.

For your health and comfort we have added: new Fisher No-Draft Ventilation (Individually Controlled)—one of the greatest contributions to the health, comfort and safety of motorists since the development of the closed body—permitting each passenger to have the degree of ventilation he desires, without danger of drafts to other occupants.

To assure still finer performance, handling ease and riding smoothness, we have provided: new Valve-in-Head Straight Eight Engine cushioned in live rubber at five points of suspension; new, more rigid X-Type frame; new Inertia Controlled Automatic Shock Absorbers; and improved Automatic Clutch with Controlled Free Wheeling.

And for your greater safety we have included: new Safety Glass; new Multi-Beam Headlighting System; new, even more effective brakes and improved visibility, permitting the driver to see in all directions without difficulty.

Decide now to see and drive this new Buick. Such an examination will quickly reveal to you that it is the finest Buick ever built. Also that Buick's moderate prices make it a truly economical investment —particularly when you realize that Buick is built to give many years of fine, reliable motoring.

STUDENT ANTI-WAR MEETING HELD HERE

Causes, Results and Prevention Discussed at Washington U. Conference.

The causes, results and possible prevention of war were discussed yesterday afternoon and evening in the January Courtroom of Washington University at a student Conference on War, sponsored by the University's Liberal Club.

Only 25 students and faculty members had assembled when the afternoon session began and the evening meeting brought only one more auditor. A special guest of the meeting was Joseph Cohen, student at Brooklyn College and delegate to the recent World Anti-War Congress held at Amsterdam. Cohen told of the Amsterdam meeting and asked that delegates be sent to a Student Congress Against War to be held in Chicago on Dec. 28 and 29.

In the principal speech of the day, Prof. Joseph M. Klamon, associate professor of Economics at Washington University, said that the United States should not cancel the European war debts unless the debtor nations agree to a reduction of arms, the establishment of a reciprocal trade, and the control of private munitions manufacture.

Cancellation and War.

Declaring that the prevalent idea that the world security market would drop immeasurably if the United States collected the debts was fatuous, Prof. Klamon said that cancellation would only facilitate the financing of the next war.

"It is said that cancellation of debts," he continued, "will be followed by a recovery of world trade. World trade, however, will recover only by a reduction of tariffs and a lowering of armament expenditures. We have no guarantee from European nations that tariffs and armaments will be lowered if we cancel thei rdebts.

"France, moreover, is a creditor nation and has the largest per capita gold supply in the world. There is hardly any reason for cancellation there." Dr. Klamon said that such advocates of cancellation as Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler were probably unconsciously influenced by capitalist banker friends who desired a clearing away of the international public debts so that their private debts would be more secure.

Nationalism as Cause of War.

In an address on the "Political and Economic Background of War," Dr. Oliver E. Norton, professor of political science at Washington, termed nationalism the chief cause of war and examined the ways in which nationalism propaganda was brought about. Other speakers were Elmer J. F. Arndt, professor of social ethics at Eden Seminary, and Joe Crocker, graduate student at Washington.

Not the least interesting part of the meeting was the apologia which the Liberal Club had printed on the program answering the charge that students were apathetic to contemporary economic and political conditions. "The bludgeon of economic reality," the statement said, has awakened the students who "until recently continued in their light-headed way, centering college life around dances and petty fraternity politics."

FUGITIVE BROKER'S YACHT GROUNDED ON PACIFIC COAST

"Rex" Barrera Now Expected to Surrender—Large Shortage in His Business.

By the Associated Press.

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 3.—Reginald E. ("Rex") Barrera, former Oakland broker whose flight on the high seas ended as his yacht grounded near Eureka Thursday, was still a fugitive tonight, though police here said they expected him to surrender. Authorities said an attorney representing the missing man was negotiating with bail bond brokers in San Francisco.

District Attorney Earl Warren said 16 complaints had been filed against Berrera during his absence of almost five months and that shortages in his former brokerage business would run into "hundreds of thousands of dollars."

At Eureka, where he waded ashore, Barrera gave his name as "Captain R. S. E. Barr," and said his yacht had drifted for days along the coast after becoming disabled. He left on a train for San Francisco soon afterward.

The 125-foot yacht, formerly the Bali, was obtained by Barrera last July through a down payment of $3000 to the estate of the late Frederick W. Murnau, film director. After Barrera suddenly vanished in the yacht without clearance papers, the Bank of America, trustee of Murnau's estate, obtained a warrant for his arrest, charging theft of the yacht. The craft is held at Eureka.

CHINESE BANDITS HAVE SLAIN 164,551 IN HUPEH PROVINCE

Since Reign of Terror Began, 946,000 Have Disappeared, Catholic Mission Reports.

By the Associated Press.

VATICAN CITY.—Since the scourge of Communist bandits fell upon China, 164,551 persons have been assassinated solely in the province of Hupeh, reports the Catholic Mission headquarters.

In the same period, 946,000 persons have disappeared, the report says, 78,000 have been kidnaped for ransom, and 300,000 houses have been burned.

China now has 17 Catholic missions operated by Chinese clergy under 10 native Bishops. The Roman Catholice total 400,000.

JAPAN SAID TO PLAN SEIZURE OF PEIPING

(Copyright, 1932.)

GENEVA, Dec. 3.—Japanese military forces plan to seize Peiping if necessary to suppress rebellious Manchurians and restore peace in the new state of Manchukuo, an authoritative Japanese source stated here today.

Peiping, headquarters of the "Young Marshal," Chang Hsueh-liang, is regarded by the Japanese as the brains of the rebellious movement in Manchuria.

The Japanese Army, it is said, has been pressing on Tokio for some time the point that the driving out of Marshal Chang from Peiping is essential to the pacification of Manchukuo, because Peiping is the chief base of supply for men, money and arms for the Manchurian rebels.

The Japanese Government, it is said, has been restraining the military until it learns what action the League of Nations will take regarding solution of the Chinese-Japanese Manchurian conflict.

Should the League take no action, or if the Assembly condemns Japan as the aggressor, then it is most likely the Japanese General Staff may strike at Peiping and Tientsin in order to end the Manchurian rebel movement.

Such a move, in all probability, would be taken under the flag of Manchukuo, on the ground that Marshal Chang is "making war against the independent state of Manchukuo by supplying rebels with men, money and arms."

Admiral Nagaoka, Japanese representative to the League Council, delivered a formal note today giving Tokio's explanation of the reported "massacre" of Chinese men, women and children near Fushun, Manchuria, as a fight with rebels rather than a wholesale slaughter as charged by China's Foreign Office and refugees near Fushun. The note did not state, however, that 350 Chinese rebels were slain in a half hour's engagement, as declared yesterday by a Japanese official. The question of the Fushun "massacre" is now officially before the League.

COMPROMISE ON CANAL AT BOULDER CANYON

Secretary Wilbur Approves Contract for California Irrigation Project.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Secretary of Interior Wilbur today approved a contract for the $38,500,000 all-American canal, the last part of the Boulder Canyon project.

The contract was negotiated by the Imperial Irrigation District and the Coachella Valley County Water District, both of California. Through the canal Colorado River water will come to them for farm use.

Before the contract becomes effective, it must be approved by voters of the two districts at an election. When this is done, the department, officials said, will begin preliminary work toward building the canal, the first contemplated step to be a request for the necessary appropriation.

The department's statement said: "The contract provides for unification of the lands to be served by inclusion in the Imperial Irrigation District. It incorporates, however, a number of provisions especially requested by the Coachella Valley interests, including arrangements by which the present Coachella District will retain its corporate entity and certain financial functions. It represents a compromise of the previously conflicting views of the Imperial and Cochella interests."

One fork of the canal, which will be Y-shaped, will be 80 miles long and serve the Imperial Valley, while the branch to supply the Coachella Valley will be 130 miles long. It is the third and last stage of the $165,000,000 Boulder Canyon project. The other two are the Hoover dam and construction of power production works.

How much would be requested of Congress as the first appropriation for the canal has not been determined. The department said the work would take several years and give employment to several hundred men.

Hydrophobia Epidemic in Spain.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

It took less than I minute

TO MAKE THIS DECISION IN YOUR FAVOR

AT THE START of this radio season the makers of Atwater Kent Radio faced this question:

Should they lower their standards in order to produce a "cheap" radio, at the expense of a reputation it has taken thirty years to build?

Their decision was made in less than one minute. Mr. Kent said to his laboratory force:

"Let's design the best radio it is possible to make. Include every new improvement and refinement. Do not skimp at any point. Be sure every model has the maximum number of tubes needed for finest performance. Make the chassis full-sized, rugged and strong, to provide plenty of power and to stand up under hard use. Specify only the best materials and workmanship. Price it as closely as possible. But above all for 1933, let's go the limit in having a better radio than ever before."

Done!

We ask you to do more than see and hear the 1933 Atwater Kent. We ask you to compare it with any other radio that is offered you, at no matter what price. Listen! Turn the dial! And, knowing that no radio is better than its chassis, look inside.

In the way it performs, the way it's made and the way it lasts, the 1933 Atwater Kent says: "You be the judge."

The moderate prices are the lowest in Atwater Kent history and the lowest at which completely satisfying radio can be sold.

SAYS ST. LAWRENCE PLAN WILL SAVE AUTO MEN 15 MILLION

Detroit Spokesman Argue for Seaway; Final Day of Testimony Before Senate Group.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. — Testimony that a St. Lawrence waterway for ocean going vessels would save $15,000,000 a year in the transportation of automobiles for export concluded formal hearings today by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the treaty with Canada for joint construction.

Chairman Borah announced that the hearings were closed except for possible testimony by Frank P. Walsh, representing the power authority of New York State.

In the final day of testimony nearly a dozen witnesses, including Julius H. Barnes, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, several Senators and Representatives of half a dozen Governors presented the case in favor of constructing the St. Lawrence waterway.

The estimate of savings in the transportation of automobiles was given the committee by H. M. Robins, chairman of the Foreign Trade Committee of the Detroit Board of Commerce.

BLACK TOM FIRE CLAIM AGAINST GERMANY LOST

Owen J. Roberts, Umpire, Also Rules Spy Charges in Kingsland Case Are Not Substantiated.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. — Owen J. Roberts, umpire of the German-American Mixed Claims Commission, handed down a decision favorable to Germany today in the Black Tom and Kingsland cases.

The decision is the second and final one favorable to Germany in the cases which were reopened at the request of the United States agents to permit the submission of new evidence.

Roberts, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, was called in as umpire after the American Commissioner, Chandler Anderson, disagreed with the German Commissioner, Wilhelm Kiesselbach.

The previous decision favorable to Germany was unanimous by the two Commissioners and the umpire.

The cases involved the destruction of the Lehigh Valley Railroad's Black Tom Terminal in New Jersey and the Kingsland (N. J.) munitions plant of the Canadian Car and Foundry Co. just before the United States entered the World War.

German Agents Blamed.

The United States sought to prove that German agents were responsible for both fires.

The combined Black Tom and Kingsland claims, including corollary underwriters claims, aggregated approximately $40,000,000.

At the reopening of the case the United States placed much dependence on a series of secret spy messages and letters in an effort to prove German complicity.

"With regard to the Kingsland case," Roberts said, "I am not able to conclude that the fire was of incendiary origin and think the proofs have gone very far toward the sort of industrial accident claimed by the German agent. It leaves me unable to conclude that the fire was the purposeful act of Theodore Wozniak."

The United States had introduced evidence seeking to show that Wozniak, at whose bench the Kingsland fire started, was a German agent.

Finds Letters Fraudulant.

"From the new evidence," Robert continued, "I am not able to conclude that Wozniak was a German agent; I am able to definitely conclude that the Wozniak letters were fraudulent, prepared recently, and not authentic, and that the German messages introduced in evidence do not advance the American case."

The case is the last to come before the commission. It will now conclude its 10 years of litigation and turn its records over to the two Governments.

Private claims totaling $186,000,000 have been awarded to American citizens against Germany by the commission. Of this sum about $132,000,000 has already been paid. Shipping Board and other claims of the United States Government totaling $65,000,000 have been awarded in favor of the United States, but these will not be liquidated until after the private claims are paid in full.

WOMAN IN FAKE MATRIMONY SCHEME SLAIN, MOTHER SHOT

Parent Says Ex-Husband of Mrs. Oda Lippens Invaded Home, Killed Her.

By the Associated Press.

MARION, Ind., Dec. 3.—Mrs. Oda Lippens, 38 years old, who a few months ago completed a Federal prison term for her alleged participation in a fake matrimonial agency, was shot and killed here today. Her mother, Mrs. Anna McClain, 60, was wounded.

Mrs. McClain told police that Roy Bobo, former husband of the slain woman, invaded her home and fired the shot that killed her daughter. Bobo then wounded her and fled, she told officers. Bobo was reported to have driven away from Marion in his automobile immediately after the shooting.

Mrs. Lippens was sentenced at Fort Wayne, Ind., April 8, 1931, to serve two to 14 years in the Federal Woman's Prison for use of the mails to defraud. Testimony was given that she was the author of letters sent to men throughout the country whose names were obtained from the matrimonial columns of various publications. A series of letters containing endearing terms went out to the matrimonial prospects, the Government alleged, and the mail courtships culminated in requests for money. The courtships ended with the receipt of the money, the Government charged.

Two brothers of Bobo, Charles, 31, and Harold, 27, were arrested. They are alleged to have taken him to the McClain home. Mrs. Lippens was married to John Lippens of Muncie following her divorce from Bobo. She and Lippens have been separated for some time.

Triplets Born; Two Are Joined.

By the Associated Press.

MALDEN, Mass., Dec. 3.—Three children, two of them joined together similar to the famous Siamese twins, were born to Mrs. Frank H. Reed of Malden today. Two girls, joined together, were born first and then a normal boy baby weighing more than six pounds. The conditions of the girls were precarious for several hours after their birth, but the hospital later reported them improved.

DRUGGIST FIRES AT ROBBERS AFTER $45 HOLDUP IN STORE

James Dallas, 6500 Etzel Avenue, Pursues, Shooting, But Intruders Escape in Auto.

Seven shots were fired by James Dallas, druggist, at two robbers who ordered him and six customers into a back room at the store, 6500 Etzel avenue, Friday night. The robber stook $45 from the cash register and a revolver from the back room, then fled out the front door to their parked automobile. When Dallas followed firing, one robber fired six shots in return. All the shots went wild and the robbers escaped in the machine.

Harry Eastman, 54 years old, attendant at a gasoline station at 5780 Thekla avene, was hit in the head with a brick and robbed of $21 by an unknown person ouside the station.

A safe at the Metal Goods Co., 2408 North Tenth street, was broken open and $113 stolen.

George R. Bardgett, 5562 Clemens avenue, and a young woman were held up when seated in his parked automobile in Tower Grove Park early yesterday. An armed robber took $5 and a wrist watch from Bardgett and escaped in an automobile bearing a stolen license plate.

HELD FOR ILLEGAL OPERATIONS

By the Associated Press.

WICHITA, Kan., Dec. 3.—Mrs. Millie Kane, 47 years old, was held in the county jail here tonight on a warrant charging her with performing illegal operations and with illegal practice of medicine.

W. O. Lyle, Chief of Detectives, said the woman had confessed to illegal practices upon Prebble Balser, 17-year-old Nashvilel (Kan.) girl, and others. She was arrested last night upon complaint of Miss Balser. Police quoted the girl as saying that in the week she remained at the Lane home between 30 and 35 others came for "treatment."

BABE DIDRIKSON

Dallas, Texas—Miss Babe Didrikson, record-breaking star of the recent Olympic Games at Los Angeles, was an enthusiastic admirer of the new Dodge Six after a pre-showing of the car here today.

"Day after day I watched the successful contestants at the Olympics," said the sensational girl athlete, "and I was impressed by the fact that the winners—every one—had class and form.

"And that's exactly what the new Dodge Six has. One look at its trim beauty and you know it has class. A closer inspection of its build and its features and you know it has form.

"Speed—unyielding strength—enduring stamina . . . that's the stuff that makes real champions, whether they're in the athletic arena or in the world of automobiles. And those are the things that make the new Dodge Six outstanding, the things that will make America cheer this great winner on to success in 1933."

The burning question in the automobile industry today is "What is Dodge going to do?" Official announcements have not yet been made, but it is known Dodge Dealers will offer a quality car at a price so low that it will set revolutionary new standards of value in the motor car field.

ALDERMEN SEEK FUND TO EQUALIZE TAX ASSESSMENT

Resolution Passed Calling on Estimate Board to Approve Survey of Realty Values.

A resolution calling on the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to include in the next municipal budget, next spring, a fund for equalizing real estate assessments was adopted unanimously by the Board of Aldermen yesterday.

The resolution, introduced by Alderman Wimer, recalled taht President Neun and half of the Aldermen had been elected in 1931 on a platform which included a pledge for equalization of assessments. The other half of the places on the board will be filled in next spring's election.

Mayor Miller and Comptroller Nolte opposed the equalization item in the current budget because of the municipal deficit. Alderman Eilers, chairman of the Legislation Committee, pointed out that his committe had been holding for some time, without action, a bill to appropriate $50,000 for the equalization. He declared it might be approved and passed before the fiscal year expires next April. However, it could not be passed without the approval of the Board of Estimate, which consists of Miller, Nolte and Neun.

It was argued early this year that Assessor Gehner might be replaced by someone else next year, and that it would be better to start the equalization under an official who was to be in office for a four-year term. Gehner has estimated that $100,000 to $150,000 might be required for the elaborate card index system and detailed real estate survey the proposal would involve.

The Board of Aldermen received a resolution from the St. Louis Benefit Tax Association, which is opposed to the street widening program. Its resolution charged the city had unlawfully diverted bond issue funds to pay for hauling earth in making Hampton avenue and to pay salaries of Law Department attorneys engaged in condemnation work. The association asked that Aldermen Pahl and Hennerich, the new Democratic members of the board, be included on an investigating committee, to avoid a "whitewashing."

Alderman Neumann moved to refer the question to the Streets Committee, augmented by Pahl and Hennerich. Alderman Schwartz objected, saying the board ought not dignify baseless complaints from a "fly-by-night" organization. The motion passed.

Yesterday's aldermanic session was special and there will be another at 4 p. m. tomorrow. The object is to pass an ordinance officially certifying adoption by the people in last month's election of the $4,600,000 relief bond issue.

COMMANDER SAYS LEGION WILL FIGHT FOR REHABILITATION

Veterans Are Up Against Organized Group Inciting Class Hatred, L. A. Johnson Charges.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 3.—The American Legion will fight to the last man against those who would have the Federal Government drop the rehabilitation of persons maimed in the World War, National Commander Louis A. Johnson said in an address prepared for delivery here tonight.

Speaking before the annual national commander's banquet, Johnson asserted the legion is up against an organized group which is inciting class against class and misrepresents facts deliberately.

"To those of us who returned able bodied from France, the war ended with the armistice or with our return to this country, but for the casualty of the battlefield, the war goes on forever," he said. "Nothing this country can do to rehabilitate that man is too good. That is the American Legion's creed of rehabilitation in a few words.

"At this time those disabled veterans and the American Legion, which is fighting their battles for them, are up against an organized crowd of clever opponents who are not disinterested in relieving themselves of the responsibility of taxation. They misrepresent the facts deliberately. They are inciting class against class."

SHOUSE FACES BIGAMY CHARGE

Subject to Prosecution If He Returns to Kansas.

By the Associated Press.

HUTCHINSON, Kan., Dec. 3.—The marriage of Jouett Shouse within five weeks after a divorce was granted here to Mrs. Marian Edward Shouse places the former chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee in technical violation of the Kansas bigamy law should he return to the State, officials said today, adding they plan no prosecution.

The Kansas statute says: "It shall be unlawful for either party (in a divorce suit) to marry again until six months after the date of the decree. Every person marrying contrary to the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of bigamy, and such marriage be absolutely void," the statute continues. Shouse's second marriage was to Mrs. Catherine Filene Dodd, wealthy Georgetown (D. C.) widow.

OLD ENVELOPE SWINDLE AGAIN

Youth Gets $10 by Old Trick at Cleaner's Office.

A second swindle by the old envelope confidence game, by which the North Side Y. M. C. A. was defrauded of $10 last week, was reported yesterday by Miss Lucille Steik, operator of a cleaner's branch, 3246 South Grand boulevard.

A youth obtained a $10 bill and, apparently sealing it in a stamped envelope, handed her nine $1 bills. When she counted them, he said he would have to get another from his room, handed her the envelope, picked up the $9 and departed. The envelope contained scraps of paper.

NEW SUPPORT FOUND FOR MILLIKAN THEORY

Prof. W. D. Harkins Says Tiny Atoms Called Neutrons Form Matter in Space.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 3.—The riddle of the creation of matter in space was given a new, authoritative answer tonight by Prof. William D. Harkins of the University of Chicago.

He filled space partly with a new kind of matter discovered this year in the neutron, a particle more tiny than electrons or protons, something tangible enough to be built up by creative forces.

Dr. Harkins speaks with authority because he is one of the two scientists who 10 years ago predicted that some day man would discover the very "neutron" which was brought to light photographically early this year at Cambridge, England. His new predictions supply some of the hitherto missing "parts" needed to justify the theory of Dr. Robert A. Millikan that creation of solid matter is going on all the time in open space.

This "creation" theory if verified means to scientists that life of some sort is immortal, because there would never be any end of "creation" itself, such an end has been held inevitable if matter is only burning up in the stars without being renewed.

Speaking before the University of Missouri Section of the American Chemical Society, Dr. Harkins said:

"During the present year a most remarkable new kind of matter has been discovered, a new element with properties almost entirely different from those of any previously known element. This element, thus far unnamed, may be called 'neutron,' since it consists of minute atoms called neutrons, which are very much smaller than any atoms known previously.

"Neutron which exists on earth escapes more easily than any other element. A considerable part of the neutron in the universe is almost certainly in the space outside the planets, sun and stars, though it is concentrated in such bodies by the weak force of gravitation."

Argentina Fines Big Packers.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 3.—Seven packing plants, including Swift's, Armour's and Wilson's, were fined 5000 pesos (equivalent to $1250) each today because they refused to submit to the Government production cost statistics demanded under the meat control law. The companies intend to make a test case of the issue and probably will appeal to the courts.

TWO WOMEN IN ROW DISRUPT BRIDGE PLAY

Mrs. P. Hal Sims and Miss Eleanor Murdock, Both Red-Headed, Taken From Room.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—An acrimonious dispute over a penalty between two contestants in the women's auction bridge championship disrupted the American Bridge League tournament for nearly an hour today.

The disputants were Mrs. P. Hal Sims and Miss Eleanor Murdock of New York, both red-headed. Tears and epithets flowed freely until officials escorted them from the room at the request of Sims and other players in the men's events, held in the same room.

The dispute continued outside, Miss Murdock finally demanding that an official be assigned to keep watch at their table for the rest of the tournament. The request was granted.

A meeting of the Executive Committee was called to settle the point at issue, which concerned penalties for revoking and looking at a quitted trick. The penalty Miss Murdock claimed, would have put her team in a tie for the lead with that of Mrs. Sims at the half way point, if the Executive Committee allows it. Both foursomes would have 15½ match points.

Other players on Miss Murdock's team were Mrs. H. I. Stengel of New York and Mrs. J. S. Jones Jr. and Mrs. H. L. Peterson of Philadelphia. Mrs. Sims' teammates were Mrs. Courtland Smith, Mrs. Norman N. Newman and Mrs. R. B. Fuller of New York. Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Peterson are the present holders of the pair championship, which is being played for simultaneously with the team title.

The dispute caused a long delay in the men's tournament and half-point scores were not available early tonight. Sims and Waldemar von Zedtwitz are defending their pair title against a field of 30, playing simultaneously for the team trophy which also is held now by Sims and Von Zedtwitz, with Oswald Jacoby and David Burnstine, the old "Four Horsemen."

Mrs. E. F. Clement, Mrs. Marie Black, Mrs. Helene Scranton and Mrs. Olga Hilliard of New York were one point behind the leaders in the women's event. They had a top on this hand:

When Mrs. Scranton and Mrs. Hilliard played the hand at East and West they bid and made four spades, their opponents failing to bid the maximum on their clubs. The bidding was: North, pass; East, three spades; South and West, pass; North, four clubs; East, four spades.

AL SMITH AND GENE TUNNEY SING AND TALK TO CHILDREN

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Al Smith and Gene Tunney, former Governor of New York and former heavyweight boxing champion, were on the platform of the Seventh Regiment Armory before hundreds of children gathered to start a junior relief fund campaign.

They joined Boy and Girl Scouts in several especially prepared song numbers, one of which was "Share a Meal," to the tune of "Tammany."

Then the speaking started. The program announcer said that "Al Smith (to you)" needed no introduction, and a few minutes later Smith, in presenting Tunney, said, "and neither does Gene Tunney need an introduction."

"Your papas and mammas are doing all they can to whip this depression," Smith told the children. "I know you want to help."

"This is not a fight—it's war," said Tunney, "but it's a different kind of war from the last one, and you members of the younger generation can help."

After that there were some more speeches and then some more singing. It was noticed that Smith had a comparatively strong baritone. From the rear of the hall it was impossible for critics to judge Tunney's voice. He didn't sing loud enough.

Democrats Retain Michelson.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Robert S. Jackson, secretary of the Democratic National Committee, today said party headquarters would be transferred from New York to Washington about Jan. 1. Offices of the party's publicity division have been maintained here under the supervision of Charles Michelson, director, since headquarters were transferred to New York last July. Michelson, Jackson said, would remain in charge of the publicity division for the next four years, under present plans.

CLEMENT STUDEBAKER, UTILITY MAGNATE, DIES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Clement Studebaker Jr., public utilities magnate and son of the late wagon and automobile manufacturer, died suddenly tonight in his apartment at 1500 Lake Shore drive.

The cause of his death was angina pectoris, from which he had been suffering for about 18 months. He had been seriously ill for the last two weeks, but his death was not expected.

Present at the bedside when Mr. Studebaker died were his wife and his two children, Clement Studebaker III and Mrs. James Masterson Pepicolas.

Mr. Studebaker was 61 years old and a native of South Bend, Ind. He followed in the footsteps of his father, but later veered his career from the automotive to the utility field. He was nationally prominent in this industry.

Mr. Studebaker was president of the North American Light & Power Co., the Illinois Power & Light Co., the Illinois Traction Co., Inc., and chairman of the board of the Illinois Terminal Co.

Following his graduation from Northwestern University, Mr. Studebaker entered the offices of his father at South Bend. In 1901 he became treasurer and second vice-president. He was later affiliated with the Studebaker Corporation as distinguished from the Studebaker Bros. Manufacturing Co. He resigned from these various interests in 1914 to enter the utilities field.

MUSSOLINI BARS TOWER RISING ABOVE STATUE OF MADONNA

By the Associated Press.

MILAN, Italy, Dec. 3.—The Madonna atop Milan's cathedral will continue to dominate the city's skyline.

Saying that symbols of humanity must not surpass those of the divine, Premier Mussolini ordered changes in plans for the city's new art palace, which contemplated a tower rising several feet above the Madonna. The official Vatican organ, Osservatore Romano, calls the decision "sagacious and eloquent." It points out that the cathedral tower is the highest in Italy.

'CHAPPIE' MORAN'S AID WILL PLEAD GUILTY

Thomas Brady, "The Doc," to Take Sentence for Okawville, Ill., Swindle.

Thomas Brady, once "The Doc" of the notorious "Chappie" Moran gang of swindlers, will plead guilty of mail fraud in Federal Court here during the week, Postoffice Inspector Burt announced yesterday after a conference with the prisoner, arrested Friday by city detectives in a police cleanup of a $23 coin-matching swindle at Sixth street and Lucas avenue.

Sought for seven years by postoffice detectives and policemen in every State, Brady urbanely declared he "thought it well" to admit complicity in the swindle in July, 1925, in which Mayor William G. Frank of Okawville, Ill., was defrauded of $40,000 by the Moran gang in a get-rich-quick confidence game.

In consideration of his plea, the Government is pledged by Inspector Burt to drop a similar charge now pending in Springfield, Ill., based on the fraud in which Lava B. Trotter, Jacksonville farmer, lost $14,500 in a similar swindle in the spring of 1925.

Police Guard Threatened Shop.

The cleaning shop of Hyman Karsh, 1425 North Euclid avenue, was placed under police guard Friday night after Karsh received a threatening telephone call. Karsh explained that he advertised reduced prices Friday. Later an unidentified man telephoned: "We are going to get you this time."

PROFIT-SHARING PLAN HELPS CHILE PAY DEBTS

Country Importing Nitrates Would Apply Part of Proceeds to Liquidating Debt.

By the Associated Press.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 5.—A new "compensation" plan, adopted for Chilean nitrate trade with France, may spread to other countries and eventually help pay this country's foreign debts. The plan allows the importing country to share in the profits of the deals and apply its part of the proceeds to liquidating Chilean accounts there.

"The "Cosach," or nitrate combine, wished to compete in France with local and foreign synthetic nitrates. The Paris Government agreed to grant the necessary import permits provided 50 per cent of the Chilean receipts were turned over to a special bureau for distribution to French creditors of the Chilean Government and also to help liquidate the French deposits "frozen" here by the foreign exchange regulations.

Negotiations for a similar arrangement with Italy have been started. It is stated, however, that the scheme probably would not work with the United States and England because of the huge nitrate stocks on hand there.

JOINT MOVEMENT TO ORGANIZE THIRD PARTY IS PLANNED

League for Independent Political Action Announces National Conference Early Next Year.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—A national joint conference of all interested groups will be held early next year to form a "united new party," it was announced by Howard Y. Williams, national director of the League for Independent Political Action. Dr. John Dewey, liberal leader and Columbia professor, heads the league.

Williams said the aim of the new party would be to capture as many congressional districts as possible in 1934 and to present a "united front" in the 1936 presidential campaign.

"The ramparts of the old parties cracked in the last election," his announcement stated. "Millions changed political habits of a lifetime.

"The election of Gov. Roosevelt means not a rebirth of the Democratic party, but a desperate attempt to secure an impossible new deal by any means.

Group's Immediate Program.

"Our first job is to exort all possible pressure at once to force an adequate Federal relief and public works program; to shift taxes from the backs of small consumers, and to fight for a sane adjustment of war debts and armaments.

"Obviously, the conservatives within the Democratic party will not permit a thorough-going program. Therefore, our second job is to convene a national congress in 1933 of all groups favoring a united party; 100 league branches, labor groups, farmers, unemployed, professional groups, women's organizations, insurgents who are breaking with the old parties, third-party groups, etc. This will be a jointly organized conference."

Williams also said:

"The defeat of leaders of the old guard—Senators Moses, Watson, Jones and Smoot—and the failures of nonentities like Chapple of Wisconsin and Field of Iowa to be elected, means that efforts for progressive legislation in the new Congress will not be so difficult.

"The polling of over 1,000,000 votes by the minor parties in the election and the splendid educational campaign of Norman Thomas will have their influence on Congress."

Lists Sympathizers in Congress.

He listed 11 members of the new Congress as being in symathy with a program of "political realignment." Those he named are the five Farmer-Labor candidates elected in Minnesota, Senator-elect Thomas of Utah, U. S. Representative-elect Zionchek of Washington, Senators-elect Clark of Missouri, Adams of Colorado and Bone of Washington and U. S. Representative-elect Ellenbogen of Pennsylvania.

"The most encouraging result in the election for those interested in a new political lineup," his statement said, "was the smashing victory of the Minnesota Farmer-Labor party. * * * It ran on a radical program. * * *

"The Nonpartisan League ticket swept North Dakota. Though running on the Republican ballot, these men and women have no illusions about the Republican party and their fullest support for a new deal can be counted on."

NOTE WITH ABANDONED BABY ANSWERED IN 'AD' TODAY

Mr. and Mrs. Bauer, Kimmswick, Mo., Comply With Request of Child's Mother.

In today's Post-Dispatch Mr. and Mrs. William H. Bauer of Kimmswick, Mo., are answering one of two notes pinned to the clothing of a five-month-old boy abandoned in front of their home last Sunday.

The Bauers, who discovered the baby in the back seat of their automobile when they investigated the cause of furious barking by the family dog, have written:

"Bobby in our possession, any communication will be held strictly confidential. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bauer, Kimmswick, Mo. Phone, Imperial 131."

The advertisement is in answer to the note which read:

"I will communicate with you when I see an ad in the newspapers telling who you are. Bobby was born June 16, 1932. He was taken away from me by my mother, regardless of all sacrifices. I can't write more now, I am too full of grief."

The other note gave complete instructions for feeding.

The Bauers, who have six children, ranging from 7 to 18 years old, plan to keep the baby if the mother fails to return for him.

In addition, a three-year suspended sentence was imposed.

VON SCHLEICHER'S CABINET ACCEPTED; TWO OFFICES OPEN

New Chancellor Retains Ministry of Defense—Has Power to Dissolve Reichstag at Will.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Dec. 3.—Gen. Kurt von Schleicher succeeded today in drawing up a virtually complete Cabinet list and President von Hindenburg affixed his signature to the General's appointment as Chancellor of the Reich.

The President approved a Ministry in which the portfolios of agriculture and economics were, for the time being, left blank.

In the resigned Cabinet Franz von Papen, the Minister of Agriculture, was Baron Friedrich Edler von Braun, and the post of economics was held by Dr. Hermann Warmbold. Apparently these two men could not agree on a common policy, thus making them unavailable, as Chancellor von Schleicher was determined to have a ministry which would be able to carry on the Government with complete unity. Negotiations concerning these two posts will continue tomorrow.

Following are the appointments signed by the president: Chancellor, Kurt von Schleicher; Foreign Affairs, Baron Konstantin von Neurath; Interior, Franz Bracht; Finance, Count Lutz Schwerin von Krosicgt; Defense, Kurt von Schleicher; Justice, Franz Guertner; Transportation and Posts, Baron Eltz von Ruebenach; Labor, Dr. Friedrich Syrup; Minister without portfolio, H. Johannes Popitz.

With the exception of Dr. Syrup, all these men were in the resigned von Papen ministry. Dr. Bracht was a Minister without portfolio in the Cabinet, and now he succeeds to the place formerly held by Baron Wilhelm von Gayl. Others in the von Papen ministry who are dropped are von Papen himself and Hugo Schaeffer, who was Minister of Labor.

Dr. Syrup, the new Minister of Labor, is 52 years old. He is president of the Federal Labor Exchanges and of the Unemployment Insurance Department, and also Reich's Commissioner of Voluntary Labor Service.

The reappointment of Baron von Neurath as Foreign Minister was taken as an indication of an unbroken policy so far as international relations are concerned.

Gen. von Schleicher was requested yesterday by the President to head the new Cabinet. When the aged von Hindenburg signed the appointment today he put an end to political uncertainty which existed for two weeks following the resignation of Franz von Papen.

The new Chancellor moves in with more extensive powers than any man who has held that office in recent times.

As head of a presidial cabinet he is responsible not to the Reichstag but to the President only. When he faces the Parliament he will have a decree of dissolution in his pocket ready for use at any time the Reichstag shows signs of getting out of hand.

STRAUSS' 'ELEKTRA' SUNG IN NEW YORK FOR FIRST TIME

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Richard Strauss' "Elektra," which the esthetes of 1910 felt was too strong for their taste was taken by Broadway at a single swallow when the Metropolitan Opera Company produced it for the first time today.

The large audience, however, failed to applaud at any time during the one-act tragedy, but that was because the music provided no gaps at the end of arias, but moved right along.

The performance of Gertrude Kappel as Elektra was generally regarded as one of the outstanding individual offerings of the season. She was on the stage without interruption for the entire period of one hour and 45 minutes required for the opera.

The strangeness of the Strauss score which created misgivings in Europe more than two decades ago seemed conventional enough to the 1932 audience. The unrestrained use of brass throughout sometimes constituted a severe challenge to the voices on the stage, but for the most part it did not obtrude.

Goeta Ljungberg as Chrysothemis and Karin Branzell as Klytemnestra were effective in two roles full of demands of drama and voice.

Arthur Bodanzky conducted.

LABOR TO SEEK 30-HOUR WEEK FOR GOVERNMENT EMPLOYES

Federation to Present Legislation to Congress for Five-Day Week.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 3.—Starting its campaign for universal adoption of the six-hour day and five-day week, the executive council of the American Federation of Labor today decided to present legislation to Congress ordering the 30-hour week for all Government employes and those under Interstate Commerce Commission jurisdiction.

At the same time it was decided to urge all state federations to launch movements for passage of unemployment insurance legislation in their states.

The annual convention of the Federation, which closed yesterday, went on record by overwhelming votes in favor of the 30-hour week and compulsory unemployment insurance, administered by the states, and paid for by industry.

Hood and Body Lines Changed —Longer Wheelbases, More Power and Comfort.

Announced yesterday, the new Buick cars for 1933 are now on display in St. Louis. In addition to improvements in appearance, style and performance, these new Buicks introduce for the first time the Fisher no-draft, individually controlled ventilation system.

The cars are longer, wider, lower and more roomy and these structural improvements harmonize with the new sweeping, wind stream lines, which are ultra-modern but not extreme.

The increased size of the Buicks is apparent at first glance. More than four inches have been added to the wheelbase of the 50 Series, bringing it to 119 inches. The 60 Series wheelbase has been increased from 118 to 127 inches; the 80 Series wheelbase has been lengthened from 126 to 130 inches, and the 90 Series from 134 to 138 inches. Added roominess and improved stability have been obtained by widening the treads from 57½ inches to 59 inches in the front and from 59 to 60½ inches at the rear wheels.

New Body and Hood Lines.

There is nothing to indicate that the new Buicks consist of a body mounted on a chassis. From roof downward they present continuous lines with the entire chassis concealed except the wheels. This is due to use of skirted fenders, continuing the rear quarter sheet metal down over the gas tank and frame in a wind stream design, and sheet metal skirts that are part of the general design and conceal part of the chassis heretofore revealed.

A fine mesh, dull chromium finished radiator grill is of graceful V-shape contour. Fenders are low and broad and are mounted with radiator and headlamps.

Radiator shells are finished in duco. Hoods are long and have a tapering chromium plated hood hinge.

Bodies have been lowered two and one-quarter inches without sacrificing headroom. The backward slope of the windshield harmonizes with the curved roof line that arches over the bodies and descends in two graceful reverse curves into the wind stream rear contour.

Fender skirts and running boards form a straight line that makes for appearance of greater length, while the large doors that close flush with the running board further emphasize the lowering of car height.

Exterior Details.

A new gravel deflector is attached to the rear bumper and dust deflectors under the ends of the running boards.

In the rear of the new models, curved sheet metal forms a continuous and unbroken line from roof to below the frame. The spare tire is tilted forward on a concealed mounting to conform to the windstream contour of the body.

A new artillery type steel wheel of 17-inch diameter with large hubs and short, stocky spokes. The new steel wheels or wire wheels are optional.

Grades of upholstery heretofore used on custom-built cars are standard in the closed body types of all the 1933 Buicks, and these may be had in whipcord, mohair or broadcloth weaves in colors that harmonize with exterior finishes.

Front compartments are 1¼ inches wider and the rear seats have been widened 1½ inches. The longer wheelbases allow increasing the size of the passenger compartments.

Rollers of window curtains in the closed models are concealed behind the upholstery, with the curtains working through slots. The mechanism of the dual windshield wipers has been removed from sight.

The 1933 Buicks have a new X-type cross member frame for greater strength.

Engines More Powerful.

The straight eight, valve-in-head Buick engines are mounted at five points in rubber. Two mountings are at the front end, two at the rear of the engine, and the fifth at the rear of the transmission.

Other engine improvements include use of two oil rings on the pistons in addition to two pressure rings, which reduces oil consumption and increases engine life, and electro-plating of the pistons with bearing metal to avoid a long "breaking-in" period.

Several refinements increased the horse-power and performance of the engines of all models. These include a new exhaust manifold and a new resonance type muffler.

The regulator of the adjustable front seat has been moved from the side to center for convenience. It is no longer necessary to reach with the right foot for the starter pedal. A touch of a finger on a button at the left of the dash automatically engages the starting gears by electro-magnetic attraction and turns the motor.

The automatic clutch and syncro-mesh transmission have been improved. The automatic clutch now has pendulum valve control to soften the clutch engagement through the action of car acceleration. Brake action has been made easier. The improved brakes have centrifuse drums.

New No-Draft Ventilation.

New headlights have the conventional two-filament bulbs and with dim and bright lights and fender parking lamps. In addition, they have a fourth control for a "passing beam." This is to be used when passing an approaching car. It throws a bright beam toward the right side of the road, illuminating the edge of the pavement, and a dim beam toward the left side traffic lane.

The new Fisher no draft, individually controlled ventillation system eliminates drafts in any part of a new Buick and clouded vision in wet weather. At the same time it provides a constant circulation of fresh air that can be regulated by each individual in the car without causing discomfort to any other occupant.

Front door windows in all closed models and the rear quarter windows in the four-door sedans are of two glass sections split vertically. The front parts of the windows do not raise or lower, but swing on a pivot, permitting a wide variation of ventilation and control of the air streams. The two sections in the front windows are weather-proofed by an aluminum slot when the rear sections are raised. The sections of the rear quarter windows also are weather-proofed.

Windshields are permanently set to insure weatherproofing. This also permits the use of narrower frames at top and bottom of the windshield which increases the vertical vision zone two inches.

Ride control, introduced last year by Buick, has been made automatic. Springs have been improved and are fitted with custom-built metal covers.

Models in New Line.

A large sun visor is fitted on a dual bracket, so that it can be used to shade either the windshield or the left front door. A new lock shows at a glance whether the locks are applied or not.

There are 20 models in the 1933 line: A two-passenger business coupe, two-passenger special coupe with rumble seat, two-passenger convertible coupe with rumble seat, five-passenger sedan and five-passenger victoria coupe with built-in trunk on the 119-inch wheelbase. A two-passenger special coupe with rumble seat, two-passenger convertible coupe with rumble seat, five-passenger sedan, five-passenger coupe with trunk and a four-door, five-passenger convertible phaeton on the 126-inch wheelbase chassis.

The 130-inch wheelbase line contains a five-passenger coupe with trunk, two-passenger special coupe with rumble seat, two-passenger convertible coupe with rumble seat, five-passenger sedan and four-door five-passenger convertible phaeton. There is a seven-passenger sedan, seven-passenger limousine, five-passenger close-coupled sedan with trunk, five-passenger coupe with deck and a five-passenger sedan on the 138-inch wheelbase chassis.

Real Streamlining For Willys-Overland New Low-Priced Car

Model, to Be Shown Jan. 7, Said to Be First to Go Whole Way in Aerodynamic Design.

John N. Willys, chairman of the Willys-Overland board, announces that his company has developed a car that will be available at a new low first cost, with lower maintenance costs and lower operating cost, and will be exhibited for the first time at the New York National Automobile Show and throughout the country on Jan. 7.

"So far as design is concerned," Willys said, "I think our development will be the most significant advance in styling ever achieved by any car manufacturer. This design is based on the aero-dynamic principle of complete streamlining, and while other manufacturers have partly incorporated this principle, I believe Willys-Overland is the first major organization to go the whole way. As a matter of fact, we have taken a page from aviation history in design and the results have justified our original thought.

"We will go into production about Dec. 15 and orders already on hand have taken our entire output for the first six weeks."

Willys-Overland has contracted with the International Harvester Co. to build that company's half-ton truck. Willys said that manufacture of the International units would be under way this month.

Chrysler Talks to His Dealers as Well as Public in Advertising

Using newspaper advertising space to urge the public to start buying, and his dealers to "shoot square with yourself, your customer, your competitor," Walter P. Chrysler is also declaring that now is the time to buy—his Plymouth car if they fancy it, any car if they prefer another make.

"Everyone buys when he can afford to," Chrysler says in the advertisements. "And when he buys, he makes work for someone else. That makes another customer for someone. And so it goes. It rolls up pretty fast. When everyone gets to working and buying, good times will be here."

"One point I want to make with our dealers," the newspaper advertisements continue, "is this: Do not criticise your competitor's products. There is no profit in that. It will not put a man to work or sell a single automobile."

To date 13 Sterling models powered by Diesel have been announced. The first regular production models are under construction at the Sterling factory at Milwaukee. A number of the larger units are already sold.

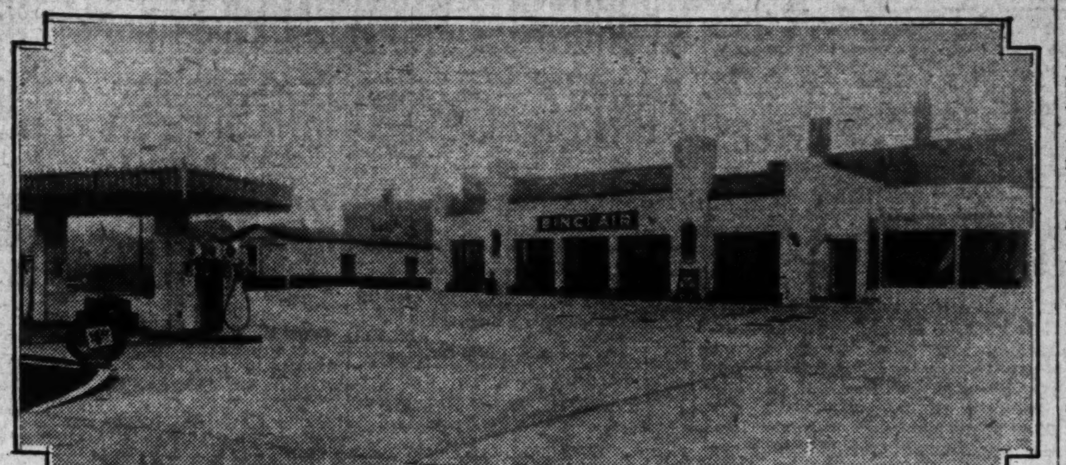
Nash Plants Busy Producing New Cars

With the low priced new Nash standard eight series well in production, and production also under way of the new Ambassador, Advanced and Special eight series, plants of the Nash Motors Co. were very busy the past week.

Shipments of the three big eights and the new standard eight are going forward from the Kenosha and Racine factories, while the entire organization is looking forward to presentation in December of the new big six.

The fact that Nash has enhanced its quality in the new standard eight, whose four-door, six-window sedan goes to the public at $170 less than the lowest priced eight in former series, and that its price is only $5 more than today's Nash six, has caused speculation concerning the consumer possibilities of the forthcoming big six.

New Automobile Super-Service Station



New service station of the Sinclair Refining Co. at the Southwest corner of Kingshighway and Easton avenue. In addition to nine-pump gasoline service, the station is elaborately equipped for greasing and lubricating cars.

New Sinclair Station On Kingshighway Has Elaborate Equipment

An elaborately equipped gasoline filling and greasing station has been opened by the Sinclair Refining Co. on the southwest corner of Kingshighway and Easton avenue.

Equipment includes hydraulic lifts for raising motor cars to a height to make greasing easy, each lift having reflecting lights, so placed in the floor as to illuminate the underbody of a car and parts to be greased and lubricated. All greasing mechanism is of the overhead swivel-line type. There is also complete vacuum cleaner equipment for use on interiors of cars.

A complete line of Goodyear tires and auto accessories also is carried.

The canopy over the pumps is of glass set in aluminum, and the station office is of the same type of construction. There are nine filling pumps, to insure handling cars without waits.

The station stands on a lot fronting 120 feet on Kingshighway and 30 feet on Easton avenue. The building's walls are surfaced inside and outside with white tiling.

At the opening of the station a number of Sinclair Refining Co. executives were present, including H. F. Nelson, manager in St. Louis; J. W. Carnes, vice-president and general manager; J. V. Dippel, Western district manager; L. P. Lockridge, domestic lubricating sales department manager, and C. E. Faler, construction department manager.

De Soto Dealers Will Hold Meeting In St. Louis Tuesday

De Soto distributers and dealers will meet Tuesday at the Coronado Hotel in a "keynote" meeting at which plans for introducing the new De Soto models and merchandising them will be discussed. Speakers will include John J. Palmer, assistant to Byron C. Foy, president of the De Soto Corporation, and Jack Whitaker of the sales promotion department.

The local meeting will be one of 27 to be held in key point cities. President Foy will head a group of executives who will speak at sessions in certain cities, General Sales Manager Roy Peed another group, and Palmer a group holding meetings in Indianapolis, Omaha, Kansas City and Denver.

The De Soto campaign for 1933 was launched Thursday at a "jubilee" meeting of its field organization and several hundred important dealers and their salesmen. As a result of this meeting, factory executives said that an upward revision probably would be made in manufacturing plans for the coming year.

It was stated at the Detroit meeting that, with the exception of only one car, De Soto made a better showing proportionately this year than any other in the industry.

Retail orders for immediate delivery of 15,232 new Plymouth Sixes are reported to officials of Plymouth Motor Corporation.

By actual count, 90,783 prospects who are in the market for new cars in the low-price field were interviewed by Plymouth salesmen throughout the United States, it is stated. Dealers also reported that 41,126 appraisals of owners' cars were made, it was said.

Production schedules will be continued through December, providing work not only for the 7500 men and women directly employed in the Detroit plant of Plymouth Motor Corporation, but for thousands of employes of suppliers of raw and finished material.

A total of 15,000 retail orders were taken by the dealer organization the first three days following the Plymouth Six announcement.

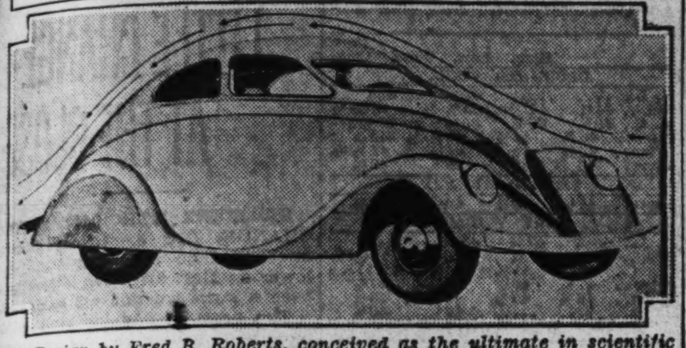
Real Streamline Car Design



Design by Fred B. Roberts, conceived as the ultimate in scientific streamlining, that also provides artistic body lines. Such a design should materially lessen wind resistance and make for increased speed and operating economy. The rear end design lessens formation of retarding wind eddies. Placing headlights within the fenders is in keeping with airplane and earodynamic principles. Arrows show course of air currents over and along hood, roof and rear end.

Rederer-Rengers Take on Pontiac Line In Addition to Buick

The Rederer-Rengers Buick Co. has been appointed associate Pontiac dealers in connection with its Buick line. To make this addition the firm has increased its floor space. It formerly occupied 3041-43 Locust street, and has added the floor space at 3039 Locust, giving a total space of 15,000 square feet for handling Buick and Pontiac cars.

F. H. Rengers.

The company will have two separate sales organizations. A. H. Rederer, president, will look after Pontiac sales, and F. H. Rengers, vice president and treasurer, will supervise Buick sales. Rederer said that in taking on the Pontiac line they had purchased special equipment for Pontiac service, so, with the central location, was in a unique position to take care of service on Pontiac as well as Buick cars in the downtown section. In fact, the firm is the only downtown centrally located authorized Pontiac dealer.

New arrangements have been made whereby a customer can leave his car at the firm's place and be taken to his office.

Cities Service Co. Device Detects Gasoline Waste

Cities Service Co. announces a new service for St. Louis car owners. Installed in its station at Page and Aubert is a Cities Service power prover, a machine which analyzes exhaust gases and detects gasoline wastage that otherwise would not be suspected.

On placing a tube in the exhaust pipe of a running engine, a dial immediately records whether unburned gasoline is being blown through the exhaust pipe and wasted. If power is wasted, the cause can generally be traced to defective spark plugs or faulty timing, ignition or carburetion. A "power prover" operator uses special tools to adjust and tune a motor until maximum combustion efficiency is recorded.

After a test, a car owner, say experts, is often able to save 10 to 15 per cent of his gasoline bill through the added combustion efficiency and performance of his motor.

Already 20,000 cars of every type and description have been "power proved." Of these, more than half were wasting as much as 30 per cent of gasoline.

Graham Reports Steady Export Gains

Continued improvement in export trade, following closely the introduction of Graham streamlined models overseas, is reported by the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation. In many important export markets the improved Graham models were not shown until mid-year. Their immediate acceptance was quickly reflected in increased orders, with the result that Graham, which stood in fifteenth place in April, climbed to ninth place in August, seventh in September, and fifth in October, in the standing of American exports, all makes included.

Among 16 makes of cars in the $850 to $1200 price class, Graham stood first in October exports with 40 per cent of the total, as compared with 10.3 per cent for the first 10 months of the year.

Kuhs-Buick Co. Also Pontiac Dealer

The Kuhs-Buick Co., which has been selling Buicks in North St. Louis for 11 years, has also been appointed a Pontiac dealer.

V. E. Soehnlin will continue as general manager, with W. C. King in charge of all Pontiac activities.

New Pontiac models will be announced this month.

Extensive alterations have been made in the Kuhs-Buick service department to care for Pontiac owners in North St. Louis. A complete stock of Pontiac parts has been installed as well as a safety lane, modern electric grease hoist motor X-ray and other equipment.

E. A. Brahm.

The Brahm-Mitchellette Co., Brahm said, with its location in the southwestern part of the city, which in a way is a comparatively new residential section of high type, in taking on the Buick line in addition to Pontiac, will be able to take care of customers who want larger automobiles.

With an attractive building, which contains 24,000 square feet of floor space, it is in a position to take care of servicing Pontiac cars as well as Buick.

Alterations are being made to facilitate the handling of service on both lines of cars and every convenience has been provided for customers.

A new waiting room, as well as equipment, and a complete line of parts has been installed for servicing Buick and Pontiac cars.

J. Mitchellette.

The Brahm-Mitchellette company is the oldest Pontiac dealer in St. Louis, having started in 1926 at 1049 South Boyle avenue, and in April, 1928, moving to a new building on South Kingshighway.

Brahm and Mitchellette have had a number of years' experience in the automobile business.

Rockne in Fast Trip, New York to Chicago

A Rockne sedan, owned and driven by M. T. Monson of Chicago, left Times Square, New York, at 3:36 a. m., after being checked out by Western Union, A. R. Lindburg, Inc., is informed. Exactly 22 hours and six minutes later the car was checked at a Chicago Loop office of Western Union. Monson took the Pittsburgh route, although he did not pass through the heart of Pittsburgh.

The distance was 912 miles, so the average elapsed time speed was 41.2 miles per hour. Monson made several stops for gasoline and food on the way. He said he had no particular purpose in making this record trip, except he wanted to get from New York to Chicago as soon as possible.

FISHER NO-DRAFT VENTILATION

Individually Controlled

An Epochal Development That Answers Every Ventilation Need

The Fisher Body Corporation makes a revolutionary advance in closed car comfort and safety! No longer need motorists endure the discomfort of chilly drafts—the dangers incurred by clouded windows and windshield—or the annoyance of a close, stuffy atmosphere within the car.

Fisher No-Draft Ventilation, individually controlled, is the most important advance in closed car comfort and safety since the advent of the closed body. It answers every ventilation need—it provides every ventilation requirement—yet it abolishes every one of the discomforts and inconveniences that heretofore were accepted as inevitable in closed automobiles.

On Display in All Buick Showrooms

This scientific new system is extremely simple in principle—it does not interfere in any way with the normal operation of the windows—and it is kept under perfect control at all times by quick, easy, manual adjustment. This is an entirely new development by Fisher—an improvement of epochal importance—offered now exclusively on the new General Motors cars for 1933. Don't miss an opportunity to see and try it on the new Buick, just introduced.

A Boon to Everyone Who Rides

The Fisher No-Draft Ventilation system brings new pleasure, new safety and new comfort to every motorist! Now you can enjoy a constant circulation of fresh air through the car without a single discomforting draft. You can drive in safety no matter what the weather, for windshield and windows can be kept completely clear of dangerous fog, without letting in rain or snow. . . . On hot summer days a greatly increased volume of circulating air assures cool comfort for everyone. And, what is more, this new Fisher No-Draft system puts individually controlled ventilation at the command of every passenger. No longer need any occupant of the car suffer discomfort for the convenience of another. Each chooses exactly the ventilation that suits him best—independent of the preferences of anyone else!

Ask for a Demonstration

The Fisher No-Draft Ventilation system, individually controlled, makes a surprising difference in the all-round enjoyment you and your family will get out of motoring. Before you buy any automobile, be sure to see and try the new Fisher No-Draft Ventilation system. And there are scores of other value-enhancing body features on the new General Motors cars—the only cars with Bodies by Fisher.

WALL STREET AWAITS WAR DEBT NOTES' REACTIONS

Problems of Taxation and Government Economy Also Influences — Slow Shrinking of Values for Third Successive Week.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—With industry drifting down the year-end slope, and the outlook obscured by the misty problems of war debts, taxation and Government economy, with which Congress will come to grips next week, the slow shrinking of security values has persisted through the third successive week.

Selling in the securities markets has been of sharply restricted proportions, but with buyers extremely apathetic, it has been sufficient to reduce the level of the stock market to the bottom of the trading range of the past two months. Recalling that a rally got under way toward Christmas in previous years since 1929, Wall street watched the share market with some hope, but it was tinged with skepticism, inasmuch as precedent is admittedly unreliable as a market guide.

The war debt situation overshadowed other developments, what with publication of the second British and French notes seeking deferment of the Dec. 15 installments, and the gyrations of sterling exchange, again tending to react on commodity prices. After breaking to a record low of $3.14½, the pound recovered sharply, then slid back just under $3.19. Wheat held above its recent lows, helped somewhat by reduced Argentine crop estimates, but bar silver broke to the lowest price in history, at 24⅞ cents an ounce.

Commodity price indices indicate that roughly 90 per cent of the extreme gain from June to September now has been lost. The stock market, however, has managed to resist the depressing effects of sagging staple prices in the past few weeks, somewhat better than in previous phases of the past two years. As measured by price indices of leading shares, the market has lost less than 60 per cent of its extreme rise from June to September.

Corporate news included the receivership for the Wisconsin Central Railroad, which had been operating unprofitably for some years. The railroads are scheduled to present their views on dealing with the difficult transportation situation before the Coolidge commission next week.

The price index of 90 leading stocks ended the week at 51.3, off 2.8 from a week previously. The index of 60 corporate bonds closed at 67.8, off 0.9 from the previous Saturday.

Saturday Market Quiet.

Activity in security markets today was barely sufficient to keep the machinery functioning.

Stocks droned through a characteristically dull Saturday forenoon, although their refusal to break the autumn lows offered some encouragement to chart followers.

Prices eased a shade and then firmed as shorts covered for the week-end, with the result that losses in leading issues were virtually recovered. Net changes were fractional. Sales totaled 399,550 shares.

Bonds were equally stagnant, although a trifle heavier, especially in the rail loan section. Bar silver was quoted just under 25 cents an ounce, or at a new low. Cotton reacted moderately, for some traders were anticipating a bearish Dec. 1 crop estimate in next Thursday's bureau figures. Wheat, which will have the final Government crop report at hand on Monday, rallied from an early decline.

Sterling exchange made a further retreat, cables closing at $3.18⅞, or a net loss for the week of slightly more than 3 cents. Continental currencies were quiet, although French francs slid off a little.

Railroad Changes Narrow.

Rail stocks fluctuated narrowly with the rest of the market. Car loadings for the week ended Nov. 26 dropped 81,969, but allowance had to be made for Thanksgiving day traffic curtailment and the recession was considerably less than occurred a year ago. The percentage decrease from 1931 was, in fact, the smallest so far reported for 1932, amounting to 11.6 per cent. Union Pacific shares showed some firmness and were up nearly a point net. Lehigh Valley, Atlantic Coast Line, Kansas City Southern preferred and Norfolk & Western lost 1 to 2; Lackawanna and Southern Pacific yielded less than half a point.

Transactions in utility, industrial and specialty shares were of a routine nature. Pressure against amusements relaxed and steels traded dully. Both the U. S. Steel issues made minute net gains. American Can, Westinghouse, Case, Consolidated Gas, Allied Chemical, Freeport Texas and U. S. Industrial Alcohol improved fractionally. Standard Oil of New Jersey, National Biscuit, American Rolling Mill and Radio Corporation eased.

Trading has been very dull for several weeks, or since well before election; changes during this period have been more gradual than over any similar interval in the depression, and public interest has also made a new low.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Trading was inactive on the Stock Exchange owing to the obscure international outlook. British Government securities declined in sympathy with sterling exchange, but closed above the lowest on partial recovery in sterling. Oil shares were slightly lower and international issues, notably steel shares, were weaker. The closing was quiet.

BERLIN, Dec. 3.—Prices on the Boerse improved due to the favorable reception at home and abroad of the appointment of Gen. von Schleicher as Chancellor. The closing was unsettled.

PARIS, Dec. 3.—Reacting to the heaviness in the American market, prices on the bourse were slightly lower and trading was quiet. The closing was dull.

"SHORT INTEREST" 22,865 SHARES ABOVE MONTH AGO

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—An increase of 22,865 shares was reported in the short interest on the New York Stock Exchange today.

On Nov. 28, the total short interest was 1,862,804 shares. This compared with 1,839,939 shares on Oct. 31, the date for which the previous monthly report was made.

Since May 25, 1931, when the Stock Exchange started compiling statistics on the market's short interest, there has been a fairly steady contraction in the size of the short account. The first published figure showed 5,589,700 shares in the short interest. On Dec. 31, the 1931 low point was reached at 2,842,072.

Throughout 1932, the short interest has fluctuated narrowly, but with a gradually receding total. The year's high water mark was reached on Feb. 11, when the short interest was comprised of 3,965,142 shares. The short account dropped below the 2,000,000 mark for the first time on Aug. 8, and with only two exceptions—on Sept. 7 and Sept. 9—has been consistently below that level. The year's low point was reached on Sept. 16, when the exchange's figures showed a short interest of 1,657,096 shares.

Record Low on Silver.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—A new all-time record low price for spot silver was established today at 24⅞ cents an ounce, a drop of ⅛ cent from yesterday.

The market has declined nearly 2 cents an ounce since the start of the week, largely in sympathy with weakness in the London market for bar silver, which was affected by the sharp drop in British sterling. Local dealers reported today that the week's selling was light in relation to the sharp decline in price.

New York Sugar.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Raw sugar was quiet today, but the tone was steadier, with refiners showing interest at last paid prices of 2.85. Holders, however, were unwilling to sell at this level, generally asking fractionally higher and no sale were reported.

The market opened unchanged to 1 point higher, and later January contracts sold up top .73, while May advanced from .78 to .82, or 5 to 6 popints net higher. This upturn was accompanied by increased trade buying and week-end covering. Final prices were at or within a point of the best.

A repoprt from the Internatoinal Sugar Conference said regarding yesterday's announcement of comlplete accord and adoption of the Ostend proposals, that it was understood there had been some alteration in the original proposals as finally accepted and that all parties had agreed to eliminate of surpluses next year by restricted sowings of crops. Approximate sales, 15,00 tons. December closed .72, January .73, March .76, May .81, July .86, September .91, October .93, December .96.

Wall Street News and Comment

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—November saw 100 unfavorable dividend changes, twelve more than were made in October, but 44 less than in November, 1931, says Standard Statistics Co. Sixty-three payments were passed last month and 37 were cut.

The New York Cotton Exchange reports that 518,000 bales of American cotton moved into sight this week, as against 447,000 last year. Forwardings to world mills totaled 329,000 bales compared with 339,000 a year ago. The world visible supply of American cotton is now 9,475,000 bales. At this time in 1931 it was 9,231,000 bales.

James A. Fayne, formerly of Boston, will retire from the Stock Exchange firm of Hornblower & Weeks at the end of this month, it was announced today. Fayne was made a partner of the firm, with his headquarters in New York, shortly after the 1920-1921 depression, and has played an active role since. Some time ago, he expressed his intention of retiring, but continued with the firm at its request until the end of this year.

Stock and bond financing in November totaled $131,400,000, the Standard Statistics Co. estimates. For the first 11 months financing totaled approximately $967,000,000, against $2,897,700,000 in the corresponding period of 1931.

Patino Mines & Enterprises reports for the nine months ended Sept. 30 net loss of £190,406, compared with net loss of £143,323 in the same period last year. For the September quarter the company had a net loss of £29,243, against a net loss of £46,188 in the like quarter of 1931.

The easing tone of prices last week was due, in the opinion of trade interests, to the general commodity trend rather than lack of confidence in the outcome of the international copper conference. Consumers in domestic and foreign markets are taking metal in very small volume.

The latest statistics show that Calcutta burlap stocks have been reduced about 50 per cent in the last five months, but the market effect of this was largely offset by the weakness in the pound sterling.

The melt of 14 United States sugar refiners from Jan. 1 to Nov. 26 totaled 3,505,000 long tons, compared with 3,910,000 in the like 1931 period. Deliveries totaled 3,375,000 long tons, compared with 3,690,000 a year ago. B. W. Dyer & Co. estimate sugar consumption in the United States in October at 456,676 tons, compared with 483,307 in October, 1931, a decrease of 6.48 per cent.

WEEK'S METAL MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Copper remained dull this week, but showed an easier undertone, as producers offered metal at concessions, said to be a reflection of reports of a deadlock in the conference here of foreign producers over the question of production quotas. Consumers were holding off, despite the low price equaled the record low, owing to uncertainties of the results of the conferences which are to be resumed next week. Easiness abroad, the foreign debt situation and the convening of the short session of Congress, were mentioned as additional unsettling factors. It was reported that the enactment date of the British preferential duty on copper has been deferred.

End-of-the-year quietness was reported in the steel industry. However, ingot production gained a point during the week to 17 per cent of capacity, "Iron Age" estimated, owing to reopening of plants which had closed at the Thanksgiving week-end. Prices remained unchanged. Pig iron was dull, but with prices steady.

Tin fluctuated irregularly reflecting sharp changes in sterling exchange. Consumers held off purchases pending return of a more stable market, although some inquiries were reported in the market. Importers were expecting resumption of demand when tin plate production picks up, but orders for the latter are said to be slow in appearing.

Buyers of lead remained cautious, and although quotations held steady, irregularity of other metals had a sympathetic influence in restricting demand to December needs. Although books have opened for January, no demand has appeared.

Zinc continued dull, owing to general uncertainties in the general economic situation and quietness of the steel industry. Selling pressure was restricted by continued firmness of the ore market, and prices held steady. A meeting of the international zinc cartel is scheduled for Dec. 19, with some producers said to be expressing a desire to increase their production quotas.

Antimony was easier, reflecting declines in silver and increased selling pressure from China. Demand, however, remained stagnant.

COTTON AT NEW LOW FOR SEASON AT THE WEEKEND

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Cotton prices declined to new low levels for the new season today in response to lower Liverpool cables and active Southern and foreign selling.

The convening of Congress next week, the Government crop estimate due next Thursday, tended to retrict buying. The trade was buyer on the decline and there was some covering, but toward the close the offers increased and final prices were at the lows. March sold down from 5.76 @5.72c, closing at that level or 10 points net lower, while the general market closed barely steady at 6 to 11 points net lower. Spot, quiet, 5.75c.

The opening was 5 to 9 points lower. Liverpool prices were said to have been influenced by further weakness in the Egyptian market.

On the whole, traders professed to see little in the situation to encourage active buying, although it was thought that the market may have discounted many of the unfavorable features and that the technical position was firmer.

Cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was placed at 207,000 bales against 225,000 last year and 133,000 two years ago.

WHEAT SHOWS LITTLE CHANGE AT THE CLOSE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Dec. 3.—Wheat closed unchanged on December and ⅛ lower on May, after the latter had been a large fraction off early.

The news of day included estimate of Canadian exports of up to 1,700,000 bushels, unfavorable crop comment, comment on United States visible, a rumor of pool that lacked confirmation, and decline in sterling exchange.

Liverpool wheat closed at ⅛d to ½d decline.

Winnipeg wheat closed ⅜@⅞c net lower.

May wheat opened at 47⅝c, down ⅛c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 43,400 bushels, compared with 53,200 a week ago and 70,000 a year ago, included 15 cars local and 16 through. Corn receipts, which were 109,200 bushels, compared with 112,000 a week ago and 67,200 a year ago, included 76 cars local and 2 through. Oats receipts, which were 8800 bushels, compared with 11,000 a week ago and 17,600 a year ago, included 2 cars local and 2 through. Hay receipts were 2 cars local.

In the cash grain Saturday, wheat was ½@1c higher. Demand was good. Corn was steady to ¼c lower and in good demand. Oats were steady to ½c lower. Demand was fair.

WHEAT CLOSES IRREGULAR AFTER AN EARLY SPURT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Wheat jumped up briskly, more than a cent a bushel late today, on rumor that a new bull pool in wheat was being formed with international backing.

The rumors, however, were not confirmed and the wheat market at the last made a quiet backward somersault, in which most of the price gain was lost. Contributing to the transient upward impetus of wheat were estimates that Canadian export business totaled as much as 1,700,000 bushels.

Wheat closed irregular, ¼c off to ⅛c up, compared with yesterday's finish; corn changed to ¼@⅜c lower; oats unchanged to ⅛@¼c down, and provisions showing 2 cents to 15 cents setback.

Before the wheat market began to mount the speculative pit had a sold-out appearance, and there were indications that domestic millers had absorbed the floating surplus of future delivery offerings. Under such conditions, a comparatively few good-sized purchase orders proved sufficient to hoist the market in rapid fashion from the day's low point. Bulls received timely help from comment that United States visible stocks of wheat were now smaller than in each of the last three years on Dec. 1, and that from July 1 to Dec. 1 this year, the usual period of accumulation, the increase was only 13,000,000 bushels, against a 10-year average increase of 59,000,000.

Another bullish factor as to wheat was a statement from a leading crop commentator that in spite of more snowfall in Canada and in the American Northwest up to date, the actual moisture received in available condition throughout the spring-crop territory had left that soil about as bad off as was the case a year ago. The statement added that domestic winter wheat as a whole was going into winter quarters in by no means as good shape as last year. New breaks in British exchange rates had much to do with pulling wheat prices down during the first part of the day, as well as serving to intimidate buyers later.

Oats fell to a new all-time low-price record for a future delivery, 13⅞ cents a bushel, December contracts. The tumble came early in the day, when all grains were being bearishly influenced by gyrations of the British pound sterling.

Corn was relatively firm on account of forecasts of big shipments from Chicago next week, presumably to go into winter storage at Eastern Lake ports.

Provisions lacked support.

Cash wheat was nominally unchanged on the Chicago market today, but there were no sales. Export wheat sales in all positions were placed at about 700,000 bushels largely out of Vancouver. Arrivals here today were 4 cars; shipping sales 60,000 bushels; none booked to arrive.

Cash corn was ⅛@⅝c lower. Arrivals, 164 cars; shipping sales, 305,000 bushels; booked to arrive, 21,000 bushels; charters, 640,000 bushels to Buffalo.

Cash oats were unchanged to 1c lower. Arrivals, 6 cars; shipping sales, 28,000 bushels. None booked to arrive.

Eleven cars barely arrived and 1000 bushels were shipped.

BOND MARKET HAS SPOTTY APPEARANCE

Contradictory Tendencies — Low Drift Apparent in Some Specialties.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Contradictory tendencies gave the bond market a spotty appearance today, with a lower drift apparent in various specialties.

The trading volume was somewhat larger than that of last Saturday, sales totaling $4,847,000 par value. The Associated Press-Standard Statistics average for 60 domestic corporate bonds was off four-tenths of a point.

While a number of railway liens dropped sharply on minimum transactions, some bonds registered improvement. New highs for the year on relatively small gains were reached by Cincinnati Gas 4s, Owens-Illinois Glass 5s and Philadelphia Electric 4s. Detroit Edison 5s of 1952; New York Edison 5s of 1951 and Public Service 4s of 1971 equaled their 1932 peaks. The heaviest traded of domestic loans were American Smelting 5s, which closed unchanged at 88⅜.

Wisconsin Central bonds were off 3 to 3½ points, while issues of the Soo Line, which leases the Central, were down as much as 4 points. Among other rail liens that lost 1 to 2 or more points were some of Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian Pacific, Chicago & Northwestern, Allegheny Corporation, Rock Island, Erie, Kansas City Southern, Louisville & Nashville, Denver & Rio Grande, Missouri Pacific, Rock Island, Arkansas & Louisiana, St. Louis Southwestern, Southern Pacific, Southern, Texas & Pacific and Union Pacific.

Foreign obligations that advanced included some of Argentina, Colombia, France, Germany and Uruguay. The Australians were weak, as were issues of Denmark and Poland. British 5½s closed unchanged.

United States Government loans were firm and quiet. Liberty 3½s and Treasury 3⅜s of June 1940, and the same registered issue, were up slightly to new year's tops.

MODERATE EASING TO MARKET ON CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—The curb market today wound up a week of price declines with further moderate easing. Transfers totaled 70,000 shares, the same as last Saturday.

Utilities met enough selling to cause some further price recessions. Electric Bond & Share, Niagara Hudson Power, Cities Service and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore yielded fractionally. American Gas & Electric and United Light & Power "A" were steady in quiet dealings. American Superpower gained slightly.

The mining shares showed a good undertone, although Newmont eased a little in fairly active turnover. Gold stocks did little in either direction.

OFFICIALS THINK MISSING GANGSTER FAKED DROWNING

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Dec. 3.—Authorities here and in Miami still are searching for Joe Costello, Cuckoo gangster from St. Louis, who disappeared with a companion a week ago and who is said by his associates to have drowned in a storm.

In support of their belief, Costello's friends have told authorities here that he and Dave Blumenfield of Chicago, with Arthur Vitale and Lawrence Lilly, were on their way to West End, Bahama Islands, in the cabin cruiser Carib when, in a storm off Palm Beach Nov. 26, a gasoline drum fell on one of Costello's hands and crushed it.

Blumenfeld thereupon offered to row Costello ashore, a distance of two miles, in a skiff which the cruiser carried, to get medical attention, Vitale and Lilly told Sheriff R. C. Baker. Neither has been seen since, and the skiff has been found, floating upside down in Lake Worth Inlet.

However, in continuing their investigation, authorities point out that Costello is under a two-year suspended penitentiary sentence and that Costello and Blumenfield both are under bond on charges of violating liquor laws. Hence, the officers assert, Costello and Blumenfield may have considered it a good idea to disappear and appear to have drowned.

Costello, arrested frequently in St. Louis and surrounding towns, is a former convict, having been sentenced to five years in the penitentiary on his plea of guilty to two robbery charges in St. Louis Circuit Court.

At the time Costello pleaded, he had just been released by Madison County (Ill.) authorities on a charge of murder. He was accused of killing John Gray and his wife, Catherine, who were shot to death and their bodies covered with kerosene, placed in an automobile and set afire near Collinsville. It was explained at Edwardsville that the evidence against Costello was largely circumstantial.

Dynamite Found at Empty House.

Three sticks of dynamite were found Friday against the wall of an unoccupied dwelling at 3915 North Eleventh street. The explosive did not have fuse or percussion cap attached, causing police to believe that it had been tossed aside by someone, rather than that it had been placed with intent to blow up the house. Police threw the dynamite into the river.

EXCEPTIONS TO REPORT ON SKOURAS BROS. ENTERPRISES

Stockholders Deny Harry Koplar's Litigation Was Meant to Force High Price.

Stockholders in Skouras Bros. Enterprises, Inc., a moving picture theater holding company now in receivership, yesterday filed exceptions to a report of Harry C. Barker, referee, who recommended that the Circuit Court deny their recent motion for an accounting, in connection with the receivership case. The stockholders alleged, in their petition for an accounting, that Skouras Bros. Enterprises, Inc., sustained losses and damage of about $4,500,000 by reason of its ownership of one-half the capital stock of Skouras Super-Theaters Corporation. The claim for an accounting was made against Spyros P., Charles P. and George Skouras and officers of Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

Referee Barker, in his report to which the stockholders took exception, said that Harry Koplar was the moving spirit in the litigation, which, the referee held, was designed to force Warner Bros. to pay a high price for Koplar's stock in the Skouras business. The exceptions deny this statement as to Koplar.

Complaining stockholders who filed the exceptions are Harry and Nat Koplar, Leo Rassieur Jr., Fred Rubenstein, J. Silverman, Elsie Probstein, Marjorie Schutz, Francis O. Everts, William J. Blake and I. Meyer. The case is before Judge Nortoni.

United States Has World's Hardest Economic Problem

Most Completely Self-Contained Nation in World Suffers Most From Depression—Policy of Co-Operation With Other Nations Needed to Lift It Out of the Depths.

By BENITO MUSSOLINI,
ROME, Nov. 26.

FROM the results of the American elections we can readily perceive that what happened Nov. 8 was not merely a change of administration. It was far more. It was a decisive demonstration of how the American people thought—not merely superficially, but seriously and profoundly that a complete change was necessary.

The blocks of votes received by the two principal candidates show that a desire for change had become a deep-rooted desire and that this time politics were not considered in America as a thing to pass by unnoticed and to be delegated to others, but a vital part of the life of the nation.

The staggering figures of the numbers who voted with the equally staggering figures which showed the multitudes who desired a complete change proved that the issues involved had burned deeply into the national conscience. Mass decision in one direction was the result.

Election to office on such a wave of popular decisiveness places upon the shoulders of the new administration two things.

Mandate From Whole People.

First, it is clothed with popular confidence in its ability to govern, its position is secure, it is not subjected to the desires of groups or tendencies, but it has a mandate from almost the whole people.

Secondly, responsibility is greater but that is compensated for by greater possibilities.

The American system of electing a President for four years works to the advantage of taking on the burden and carrying through a policy, as distinguished from the European system with its sudden changes, short periods in office with the risk of being turned out any moment.

Perhaps it can be said that governments of today face more difficult situations than at any other time since the post-war period. Especially can it be said of the situation in the United States.

Its domestic economic problem is perhaps the most acute in all the world. The gigantic industrial and financial machine has to be restarted, and the power necessary to start a machine almost from the point of inertia requires the long, patient effort of toil before it has resumed the normal pace.

U. S. Policy of Aloofness.

But how have the elections placed the United States with regard to the rest of the world?

The traditional United States policy has been one of aloofness from European affairs. In fact, during this post-war period this policy has been almost uninterruptedly maintained except where it touched on international movements in which the United States was deeply concerned.

We have, therefore, witnessed during the post-war period a conscious effort to remain completely aloof from Europe. But with all this effort the United States participated in several world conferences, in fact, called the Washington conference of which it was the sponsor.

Besides, we witnessed her full promotion with participation in the London conference and disarmament conference. To the latter she contributed considerable weight, while in the former she was instrumental in controlling the navies of Britain and Japan on a balance with her own.

In other words, the United States has always been ready for participation in any move for world tranquility and adjustment when she has conceived in that, a conspicuous duty which touches upon herself, either from political expediency or economic equilibrium.

When we survey the present depression we are convinced more and more that it is a world situation. The reasons for its being a world situation are many and complex. In many preceding articles I have had occasion to go into this matter.

Calls Isolation Impossible.

This is certain: It is a problem that touches every nation and by which every nation is affected because of the modern arrangement of commerce and finance. We have tried to solve the depression in many ways, but no one nation is able completely to solve it without adjusting relations with its neighbors.

The United States is the most completely self-contained nation in the world. If any great nation were in position to wholly lock itself behind its own walls and call itself

People Demand and New Administration Promises Cut in State Taxes, BUT---

Out of the Total Annual Revenue Nearly $68,000,000 Is Derived From Special Sources and All Must Be Spent in Special Channels---Only About $7,000,000 Is From Direct Taxation and From This Comparatively Small Sum Any Meager Saving Which Could Reach Down to the Taxpayer Must Be Made.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 3.

WHATEVER reasons actuated the voters of Missouri in transferring control of State affairs from the Republican to the Democratic party, one of the principal intentions was that the change should result in lower taxes. The voters took the Democratic candidates at their word when they pledged themselves to drastic reductions in State expenditures and equivalent cuts in tax bills.

Governor-elect Park told the voters he would get rid of the "lounge lizards" in the State Capitol, that he would bring about departmental consolidations and would abolish useless functions. He said the State had too much "hired help," that the government was costing too much and he was going to try to relieve the taxpayers of some of the burden.

There is no question about the sincerity of the Governor-elect. The State government has been spending approximately $75,000,000 a year, and it has been necessary to collect that amount to "balance the budget." It would appear that all that would be required to save, say $20,000,000, out of this huge sum would be the will of the State's chief executive. And who does not believe that a saving of $20,000,000 would reduce taxes?

However, it is not quite so simple, as the following examination of the State's books will show.

196 Departments.

The State has 196 departments and agencies of various kinds through which it performs services for the public of more or less value. It has approximately 7500 employes. It derives its $75,000,000 income to meet the expense of these agencies from a multitude of sources.

For just what purposes is this money expended? What do the people get out of it? Could they do very well without some of these services? Many a man is wearing his winter-before-last overcoat because he hasn't the money to buy a new one. Many a farmer is getting along with the muddy lane from his house down to the highway because he can't afford to buy the rock to surface it. Cannot the State do without some of the things it considered necessary in the happy days of four or five years ago, when States as well as individuals had money? Let's see where most of the money goes.

Where the Money Goes.

Approximately $40,000,000 goes to the building of State highways.

Approximately $8,000,000 goes for education.

About $1,125,000 is paid out in pensions to the blind.

About $2,500,000 goes to pay the interest on and retire the soldiers' bonus voted a decade ago by the people when "nothing was too good for our soldiers."

About $750,000 goes for various agricultural aids, and about $3,750,000 for eleemosynary and public health services.

Courts, penal institutions and the cost of criminal trials take about $4,000,000.

The State maintains a number of public parks at a cost of from $75,000 to $100,000 a year. It pays out about $60,000 for the State Fair in Sedalia.

The remainder of the $75,000,000 goes for other purposes too numerous to detail.

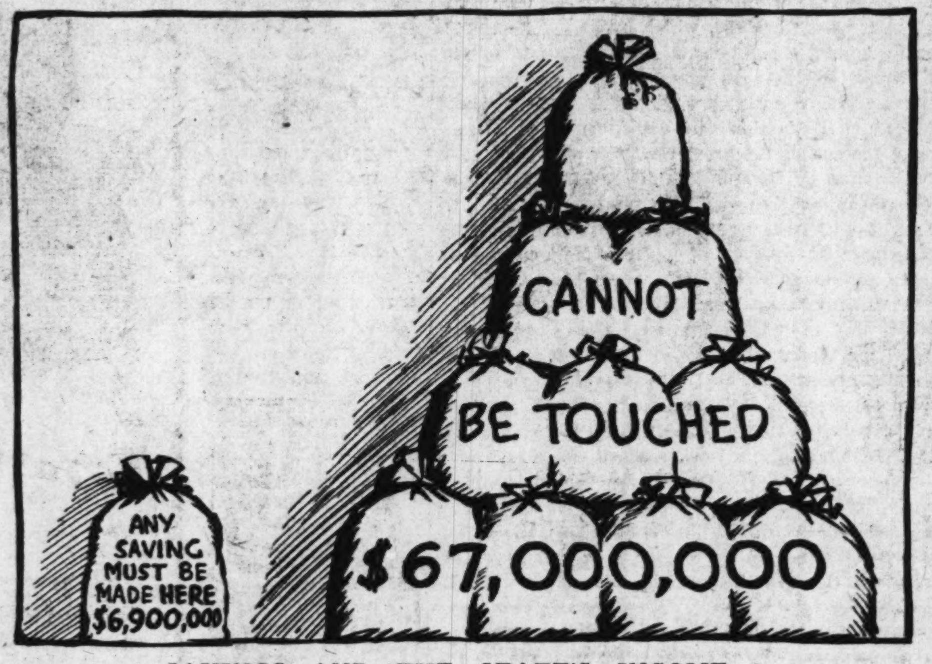
Inspectors of Many Sorts.

The State inspects all manner of businesses with all manner of inspectors in an effort to protect the public from fraud, from adulterated food and drugs, from bank losses and from many other evils. There are bank inspectors, food and drug inspectors, barber shop inspectors, potato inspectors, egg inspectors, honey-bee inspectors.

What services are we going to dispense with and how much tax money are we going to save if we do?

Ignoring the consideration of the economic problem of what becomes of a potato inspector or a honey-bee inspector if he is separated from his State job, and ignoring consideration of whether it is better to keep him on the State payroll at public expense or have him walking the streets trying to find the job that his jobless brother can't find, we will assume that expenses are to be cut ruthlessly and tax bills reduced, and we try to find out how to do it and what the saving will be.

The State agency spending the greatest amount of money is the Highway Department. Its expenditures vary from year to year, but may be safely figured at $40,000,000. Twelve years ago the people voted $60,000,000 in bonds for roads and four years ago an additional $75,000,000.



CANNOT
ANY SAVING MUST BE MADE HERE $6,900,000

SAVINGS AND THE STATE'S INCOME.

It might seem that we could stop building roads for a time and save a lot of money for the taxpayers. Nearly all the main highways have been constructed and high type roads are now being built in regions where there is comparatively little traffic. Why not stop construction for a time?

Each year automobile owners pay about $8,500,000 for licenses and about $9,000,000 in gasoline taxes. Suppose road building stopped. Would the taxpayer benefit? He would not.

In the first place, all of the bonds authorized have been issued except $18,000,000 worth and those will be sold during the next year. The Constitution pledges every dollar of automobile licenses and gasoline taxes to road building, first to meet the interest and principal requirements of bonds issued, and second any surplus above those requirements for additional construction. The last bonds will not be retired until about 1970.

When the last of the bonds are issued and the money spent, the Highway Department will not have as much for construction. It will spend less but the automobile owner will not pay less. Not a penny of the money used to build State roads shows up on anybody's tax bill.

Higher Gasoline Tax Barred.

But, it might be asked, why not take advantage of this source of revenue to get money for other purposes for which the taxpayer does directly pay? Why not increase the gasoline tax, make it 4 cents or 6 cents instead of 2 cents, and wipe out property taxes? If a 2-cent tax produced $9,000,000 for roads, an additional tax of 4 cents would produce $18,000,000 for other purposes.

But it can't be done, at least it can't be done for six years. In 1928 the voters in authorizing the $75,000,000 bond issue included in the Constitution a provision prohibiting the Legislature for a period of 10 years from increasing either the automobile license fees or the gasoline tax.

So that's out. There can be no saving to the taxpayer in this $40,000,000 of the $75,000,000.

No Help From the Bonus.

But to get to a subject of direct taxation. More of the property tax goes to meet the requirements of the soldiers' bonus than for any other one purpose. This tax, 6 cents on the $100 valuation, amounts to $2,500,000 a year, is a fixed expense and no saving can be made from it. The soldiers have spent their bonus money, but the bonds and the tax to pay them remain. So that's out. We now have accounted for $42,500,000 in which there is possible no saving to the taxpayer.

Then comes the blind pension tax. This is 2 cents on the $100 valuation and amounts to $1,125,000 a year. From this the State pays an annual individual pension of $300 to the blind. This pension could be reduced and this tax could be cut. The constitutional requirement is that the tax shall not be less than ½-cent nor more than 3 cents. The Legislature fixed the amount of the pension at $300 and a 3-cent rate is necessary to pay it.

The Legislature could cut the pension to $50 a year and make the tax rate ½-cent, but is there anybody who will propose that this is the place to do the saving? A person paying taxes on $3000 worth of property would save 75 cents a year, and the blind would be added to the great mass of those now dependent on private charity.

So we may count that out, and we now have a total of $43,625,000 in the $75,000,000 of expenditures and haven't yet found a place to save the taxpayer anything.

Then we come to the 1-cent direct property tax which goes to meet the interest requirements of the State certificates of indebtedness. This produces $425,000 a year. The interest must be met and there can be no saving there. So that's out and we have a total so far of $44,050,000 and still have saved nothing.

How the Fee Plan Operates.

Next is a large source of State revenue and also an equally heavy source of expense. Approximately $15,000,000 is received and expended each year by departments and institutions from sources which are not a direct burden to the taxpayer and are such an indirect burden that if none of it were received and expended there would not be a difference of 1 cent in anybody's tax bill.

This includes funds received from banks to pay the expense of examination by the Finance Department, from grain dealers for the expense of grain inspection, from building and loan associations for the expense of examinations, from food and drug dealers, and, yes, from the apiarist for bee inspection, from the potato dealer for potato inspection, and from all manner of other services. It includes money received by State eleemosynary institutions for the care of county and private patients, the earnings of the State penitentiary, and from many, many other sources.

For the most part, the bureaus and commissions in the State Capitol are supported from these fees. If the inspections were not made the State would not receive the money, and if it did not get the money the salaries and other expenses would not be paid.

The fees are fixed with the idea of charging only the amount necessary to meet the special expenses, and under the fundamental law any higher fees would be illegal.

If all these bureaus and commissioners were abolished the taxpayer would not be helped in the slightest degree. He pays virtually nothing now for their support, and if they were abolished their receipts would end just as their expenses would end.

So nothing can be saved from this $15,000,000, and that's out. We have a total so far of $59,050,000 of the $75,000,000 and nothing saved.

Where Direct Taxes Go.

We finally come to that portion of the State revenue arising from taxes which are paid directly. It makes up the State "revenue" fund and it amounts to approximately $15,000,000 a year. It goes to maintain the offices of the elective State officials, toward the maintenance of the public schools, to the State university and teachers' colleges, to penal institutions, eleemosynary institutions, to the courts and to pay other State expenses not taken care of from the special sources previously set out.

What can be saved from this fund? And how much of it is derived from direct taxation anyway? Two classes of taxes, the only direct taxes paid for administrative purposes, go into it, that produced by the 5-cent tax on property and that paid in income taxes. The total of these two taxes amount to about $6,900,000 a year. The remainder of the $15,000,000 or $8,100,000, is paid in from sources only remotely touching the average individual taxpayer. It comes from corporations, from inheritances, from foreign insurance companies and other sources.

Where Saving Is Just Possible.

None of the $8,100,000 is on anybody's tax bill, so we are down to $6,900,000, all that is paid by direct taxation for State administration purposes, from which any saving must come.

The first thing that happens to this $6,900,000 is that one-third of it is taken out for State aid for public schools under a mandatory provision of the Constitution. True, the Constitution requires that only one-fourth shall be taken for the schools. The one-third might be cut to one-fourth.

Suppose it is deemed wise to slow up a little on education and limit the State aid to one-fourth of the ordinary revenue. That would save $575,000, and one-third of the saving would go to the property taxpayer and two-thirds to the income taxpayer. The property owner paying on a $5000 valuation would save 20 cents and the income tax payer paying on a $2000 net income would save $2.

But there is not the slightest prospect that any attempt will be made to save money at the expense of the schools. Neither Governor-elect Park nor any other candidate had the temerity to suggest the educational system of the State as one of the places where saving might be made.

Chance to Save Pinched Down

So, with one-third going to the schools, we are down to $4,600,000 in which to save. It is possible if the people want to spend less on the already impoverished State university, on the over-crowded and fire-trap eleemosynary and penal institutions, if they want to curtail the public health services and the aids to agriculture. It is not probable they do. There has been some talk about cutting salaries in Jefferson City, but if the people knew what those salaries were it is doubtful if they would even want to do that.

Undoubtedly, there is waste, there are more employes than are needed, expenses could be cut by substitution of business methods for antiquated political administration, but Missouri is niggardly, not extravagant, in the salaries it pays.

Salaries of Officials.

Its Governor, charged with the responsibility of managing a $75,000,000 business, is paid $5000 a year straight salary, which is increased to $8000 or $9000 by free house rent and a few special fees. State officers get $3000 straight salary with special fees through which they eke out an additional $1500. It happens not infrequently that a $7500 Missouri Supreme Judge sits in the hearing of a case, in which the State is represented by a $4500 Attorney-General and the special interests on the other side by counsel drawing from $100,000 to $150,000 a year.

The direct management of big State offices is in charge of chief clerks, who are paid only $225 a month. Other clerks get from $150 to $200 a month. There is nothing fancy about those salaries. A public which complains of its public service could scarcely expect improvement if it had cheaper "hired help."

So that's out. There just isn't any way to save anything that would ever get to the gen-

"Machinery Let Loose"---World's Great Problem

To Believe That Time Alone Will Lift Humanity Out of the Mire Is Childish, Says Former Premier Caillaux of France—Only Patient Co-Ordinated National, Then International Action Will Set Things Right.

By JOSEPH CAILLAUX,
Former Premier of France.
PARIS, Nov. 26.

I SEE three primordial questions which it is indispensable to the world economic conference to take up and thoroughly to deal with in order to bring about a remolding of the whole economies of the world, at least give them a framework.

Number one is the monetary question. I am placing it in the foreground, not because it is most important, but because it regulates all the developments into which I am going to enter.

Nobody ignores the fact that yesterday wheat was burned in Canada and coffee was burned in Brazil, whereas in Central Europe and elsewhere millions of people were short of, are always short of, bread and fortifying drinks.

Everyone also knows that thousands of our fellow creatures are incapable of clothing themselves because they don't sell, or if they do sell, dispose at a very low price, of cereals which they get the earth to yield by the sweat of their brows. They find it impossible to acquire industrial articles offered them in abundance.

"Monstrous Anomalies."

How are these monstrous anomalies to be explained? Some economists answer, it is because of the poverty of the monetary organism. Other experts, although they also proclaim the deficiency of a means of exchange, deny that humanity is suffering from a scarcity of gold.

They say it is possible with the reduced mass of gold to impart value to and to put into circulation a large mass of paper money. This being so, that procedure can be extended so that the remedy would be within reach; namely, by using to its fullest extent the gold lying idle in banks.

They finally add that if difficulties stand in the way of realization we should rid ourselves of the tyranny of the metal whose production varies according to the whims of nature. They thus end by advocating a controlled currency, that is to say paper currency.

Many, of whom I am one, cannot help but view such a system with anxiety for its boundless elasticity frightens. We have not complete confidence in the wisdom of men and it is impossible not to agree that the disastrous experiment in controlled currencies tried in some countries in the last few years justify our fears.

Silver as Auxiliary.

It seems to us that man cannot, in the present state of his knowledge, establish a sane monetary system which has not as its foundation a metallic mass. We think that to the gold, whose scarcity we fear, we must add silver. We have committed the fault of demonetizing silver, under the influence of schools of theorists, without heeding that we were exposing ourselves, as indeed it came about, to cutting off from the sphere of human activities 700,000,000 to 800,000,000 of our fellow creatures who know and who wish to know only the white metal.

In my opinion, it is undoubtedly no longer possible to give back to silver its full monetary role of former days, but it can be admitted on an auxiliary standard.

We are convinced that if these views were adopted world economies would have considerable relief for the peoples of the Far East who seem to have been excluded from general business and that by such a move they would be brought into the trade circuit.

But it is madness to wish to make gold the scapegoat of the crisis. The monetary problem, including in its wide extensions such as agreements between issuing banks, etc., is, after all, a small problem in comparison to the fundamental problem of economic life. I earnestly hope the world economic conference will be imbued with this truth, which I regard as indisputable.

Natural Laws Defied.

I am sure that none of the great men who will participate in the meeting will refuse to accept as a truism that one of the great causes of the general disequilibrium is that people have striven everywhere to govern and act in contradiction to fundamental laws of natural economics.

It was a grievous error to raise in one place fantastic tariff walls, to authorize in another multiplication of tariff barriers, and finally to treaties said to be peace treaties, to strip bare vigorous economic entities, which, on the contrary, it was necessary to have maintained. At a period when vast international

Some Questions About State Printing.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN A RECENT issue of the Post-Dispatch, I read a dispatch from Jefferson City in which your correspondent stated that "negotiations are under way here for purchase by a group of Democratic politicians and business men of a controlling interest in the Botz Printing & Stationery Co. of Jefferson City, holder for years of the profitable State contract for printing, stationery and office supplies, it was learned today." In that dispatch it was further stated: "During the last three Republican State administrations, in each of which the company has held the State printing contract, the company has been controlled by a group of Republicans, including Mayor Victor J. Miller of St. Louis." Also: "The syndicate proposing the purchase is headed by Howard Cook, president of the Central Missouri Trust Co. of Jefferson City and a member of the Democratic State Committee; Supreme Judge W. T. Ragland of Jefferson City, who will retire from the court when his term expires at the end of this year, and A. L. Hawkins of Jefferson City, former secretary of the company, who sold his interests recently. . . . The printing contract in recent years has averaged about $325,000 a year. The contract is awarded every four years by the State Printing Commission, which comprises the Secretary of State, State Auditor and State Treasurer."

May I inquire why it is necessary to have a printing company owned and controlled by Republicans during Republican administrations and apparently necessary or advisable to have the same company owned or controlled by Democrats during a Democratic administration? Must the printing of our State be done by a company controlled by those of the same political party as that which holds office and presumably represents the people of our State?

Is there no competition among printing firms or corporations irrespective of party affiliations? Can it be that the State during a Republican administration will not permit companies controlled by Democrats to bid for or receive a contract and vice versa? That when a Democratic administration goes into office, printing companies must change their ownership from Republicans to Democrats? Does anyone know or has anyone attempted to find out whether or not $325,000 a year is a fair price on a competitive basis for the printing contract? Is it necessary to have a State Printing Commission, as well as many other commissions, bureaus, etc., to administer simple governmental functions?

Perhaps your readers and the taxpayers in this State, of whom I am one, would be interested in information answering the foregoing questions which have been asked.

Democracy and the Inner Life.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THERE follows a quotation from De la Bedoyere's "The Drift of Democracy", the length of which I can only apologize for by what seems to me to be its extraordinary pertinency:

"Democracy rests in theory and in practice on the character of each and every person. Whatever be the ways and means of giving effect to the 'say' of the individual, all depends in the long run on the quality of the citizen. Obviously, this quality is not static; it improves or deteriorates; it is shaped by a thousand influences. There was one influence which was once of supreme importance, and which today has not only weakened in practice, but is deliberately weakened by the prevalent philosophies and by the ideals of modern life: it is the inner life. . . .

"Until the second half of the nineteenth century, it was taken for granted by all, except a few theorists, that religion was a necessary condition of the inner life and of the development of the personality. All philosophers have seen the necessity of philosophy, but in fact religion alone has given to the vast majority of people a philosophy, an appreciation of values, an insight into what is permanent in man and in things. . . .

"The idealist hopes that a truer and deeper philosophy will supplant traditional religion, but even if he is right, he has yet to show how the average man can, in the first place, appreciate such a philosophy, and, in the second, be persuaded to live up to it.

"In practice, the decay of religious faith leads to a skeptical and shallow outlook that changes with every popular and journalistic wind. No inner life is possible. When men sink to this, it is high time they resorted to the manufacture of automata and robots, and to the discovery of weakness-proof institutions. But by then it will be too late to speak of man, still less of democracy, which is founded on the quality of human beings. Whether we can do without religion is a question that demands the serious consideration of our leaders, most of all of those who have forgotten its existence. And it would be a curious thing if religion were at once a necessity and a lie."

Hard Times and the Government

Mr. Hoover desires to leave a balanced budget for his successor, and the means by which he hopes to achieve this end are threefold: (1) economies, (2) pay cuts, (3) enactment of a general manufacturers' sales tax.

There is no doubt that the Government faces a serious financial situation at the end of the current fiscal year. On top of the $903,000,000 deficit of 1931, and the $2,885,000,000 deficit of 1932, looms a deficit for this year of possibly another two billion. The revenue bill enacted at the last session of Congress thus far has fallen far short of expectations, and the country is probably due for a further shock when the income tax returns are made next March.

To meet the emergency, it is deemed necessary to find new revenue, and most discussion has revolved around two sources, i. e., beer and a sales tax. Mr. Hoover opposes the former and, we believe, rightly so. Modification of the Volstead Act to produce beer strong enough to attract wide purchasing would amount to nullification of the Constitution and to a cheapening of the wet cause. Weak beer could not compete with home brew and would be a failure as a revenue producer. In view of the imminence of repeal, and the vast revenue that would be derived from legalizing liquor of all kinds, the agitation for beer loses its force.

The sales tax, even as an emergency measure, is also open to severe criticism. It is a well known fact that, for many years, there has been a movement for a sales tax, sometimes covert and sometimes in the open, as a means by which the income tax could be torpedoed. In the last Congress, the proposal was defeated both in the House and in the Senate, though it had the support of the Treasury, the White House, the Ways and Means Committee and many powerful individuals. The case against it has often been stated, but never more concisely, we believe, than by Secretary of the Treasury Mills, who later changed his position. Secretary Mills, when he appeared before the House Ways and Means Committee Jan. 13, 1932, said the Treasury had laid aside all thought of a general sales tax, > not only because, generally speaking, it bears no relation to ability to pay and is regressive in character, but because of the great administrative difficulties involved and the almost inevitable pyramiding of the tax in the course of successive sales.

Yet less than a year later we find the sales tax hotly advocated as the only means possible to balance the budget, by the same persons who opposed it then. We believe the budget should be balanced, but there should be some limit to the devices used to accomplish that result. If the principle of a sales tax is once accepted, it will be as hard to remove from our backs as the Old Man of the Sea was from the back of Sindbad the Sailor. Once we are in easier circumstances, it will be used as an excuse to reduce the income tax, which is based upon ability to pay, thus permitting those best able to bear the country's financial burdens to escape their just share.

The sales tax is not unknown in history, and in the current Scribner's, Christian Gauss, dean of the college at Princeton University, tells how it operated to ruin a nation. Dean Gauss says:

> In the sixteenth century, at the beginning of of what is sometimes called the Modern Age, Philip II of Spain was involved with England in one of the early nationalistic struggles for the control of the sea. It ended, as every schoolboy knows, with the defeat of the Armada. It is not so generally recognized that Philip had ruined his country long before his fleet was destroyed. To raise money for his wars, he had levied a tax, the alcabala, of 10 per cent upon every article sold in Spain.
> This sales tax did not operate only once, it was taken every time the commodity changed hands. Any intelligent historian could have told him this was bound to ruin his country. Spain, then the symbol of riches and plenty, was reduced to a condition of poverty from which she has not yet fully recovered. What happened was inevitable.
> The tax "snowballed" the cost of commodities, for the cost mounted as the commodity in its various forms rolled along, and soon became prohibitive. This meant that goods no longer circulated and traffic in them was more and more restricted to a narrowing zone around the locality where they were produced. The distribution of goods made in Spain, as well as of those coming in from the outside, was so seriously interfered with that it paralyzed not only commerce, but industry as well, and Spanish craftsmen were reduced to idleness.

We are in the frying pan. Shall we leap into the fire? We trust Congress, which expressed itself vigorously against a sales tax a few months back, will not permit itself to be stampeded into voting for it now. The country has survived two Treasury deficits and it can survive a third, especially as just around the corner the great reservoir of liquor taxes is waiting to be tapped. If the repeal of the eighteenth amendment is expeditiously pursued, we can be rid of it within a year and, once that occurs, the Government is assured of revenue aggregating at least a billion dollars a year, more than the most ardent sales tax supporters claim for their measure.

Moreover, in the meantime, the Government, pressed for funds, will have an incentive for drastic economy measures. The Democratic platform promises to cut Federal expenditures one-fourth, and the party can fulfill that pledge if it will. As the National Economy League has shown, it can save nearly half that sum, or $452,000,000, in one field alone, namely, by depriving of pensions and compensation those veterans who were not disabled in war. In another field, consolidation of the War and Navy departments, the Government can save from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 a year. With these two economies to begin with, certainly, in the vast extent of the Federal Government others are possible to make up the billion.

Hard times are a great teacher. Let the politicians at Washington learn from them, instead of going on budget-balancing sprees that set up vicious principles of taxation.

If Hindenburg Resigns

According to a report from Germany, President von Hindenburg is disgusted with the prolonged Cabinet impasse, and seriously considers resigning. The party deadlock is enough to discourage anyone, but it is to be hoped a solution may be found before Hindenburg is pushed to this drastic step. It is republican Germany's misfortune that she has not produced men of presidential caliber, and that the present regime's continuance depends largely upon the life of the 85-year-old Hindenburg, who has been a pillar of strength in successive crises since he took office seven years ago.

Should Hindenburg resign, the possibility of another era of monarchy would be near. His abdication would leave the Junker group in control, and they have never pretended to be other than monarchists. The Nazis, the strongest single party, are enemies of the republic, and number several Hohenzollerns among their members. Ludwig Lore, a German-American journalist, writes in Current History that "the monarchy is on the march." To many Germans, the Hohenzollerns symbolize the "good old days," before the era of reparations, hunger, poverty, territorial losses and disarmament. They forget, of course, that Hohenzollernism is in large part responsible for their present plight, by reason of its pre-war policies.

The next move, after Hindenburg quits, or the Republic reaches the end of its road, would be the setting up of a Hohenzollern Prince as Regent. It would then be but a short step to his coronation as Emperor, just as the French in 1852 put Napoleon III on the throne after he had served four years as President. Von Papen has said, "We concede to no one outside Germany the right to decide what form of state best suits the needs of our people." However, we fancy the former Allies, who have placed an embargo on former Hapsburgs in Austria and Hungary, would have something to say about that. At any rate, it would be a backward step for Germany to abandon her Republic and, worst of all, to place herself again under Hohenzollern rule.

"Gas"

The philosopher Oswald Spengler is convinced that the machine will at last consume our Western civilization. The dramatist Georg Kaiser has dramatized this postulate in "Gas," which is now running at the Little Theater of St. Louis.

There is nothing inscrutable, nothing esoteric, about "Gas." It merely lifts the curtain upon that ultimate time foreseen by Spengler. The machine has conquered the world. All power is distributed from a central station. In Japan, in Australia, in the Argentine, in Europe, in Asia, in the Americas, they all run their factories with the product of this central plant. Is it improbable? Of course not. We have seen too much either to doubt or to wonder at the marvels of man.

But a terrible thing happens in the first act of the play. The tube which shows how the whole world is doing, just as the thermostat shows how the domestic menage is doing, unaccountably turns red. That means danger. There is terror in the central plant. At last an explosion. Immediately the world is on the radio. What has happened. They all want power. The Japanese, the English, the Germans, the Italians, the Russians, all rush experts by air to help get the world started again. "How is it in your country?" says the German to the Japanese. "Not a wheel turning. How is it in yours?" "Not a wheel turning." Not a wheel turning anywhere. The mechanization which Bertrand Russell would rather have seen Europe sink in the sea than adopt holds this mundane sphere fast in its iron grip.

The manager of the plant is the son of a billionaire. The explosion cures him. He gets the surviving workers together and starts a back to the land movement. The machine has made them its slaves. It has deformed them. They are only a part of the mechanism which makes profits for the great industrialists everywhere. He exhorts them to live, each upon his little bit of land, each to dig in the soil. The industrialists are horrified. Is the world to stop? Are the airplanes to come down out of the skies? Are the great ships to desert the sea? Is all the machinery everywhere, that great whirling, devouring, crashing, miraculous mechanism, the miracle of "the little joker man," is it all to be junked? They cannot believe it.

The workers decide it. Do they want to be peasants? Not they. They are a part of all scientific progress. It is upon their backs that men have climbed out of darkness into light. It is true that the machine has deformed them but they are inseparable from it. They cannot leave it. It may maim, impoverish, destroy them, still they cling to it. Why is it so? The dramatist makes it very plain. The workers are proud of their part. They make the planes, the great wheels, the dynamos, the submarines, the automobiles, the telephones. Without them the world would be a barren waste. Are they to take their loving hands off all the great things they have made and dig in the ground?

Not the workers. They catch the engineer up and bear him away on their shoulders. "Rebuild the plant," is their cry. "More gas—gas—gas—GAS!"

It is terrific. Call it expressionism or what we will, it is life. Nothing more powerful, prophetic, terrifying, has ever been seen in the theater.

The Beholder's Eye

Yes, there are sermons in stones and books in the running brooks, and there is poetry in a box of vegetables, as Elsie Robinson revealed to us Thursday in the Post-Dispatch Daily Magazine.

To the legion of writing hopefuls, whether in schools of journalism or in side-line reveries, we presume to commend that piece. Here is eggplant, "magenta, and dusky as new wine." A cauliflower is a "hard white rose." A bunch of yellow turnips "old ivory balls." Red cabbage "cold, claret-colored globes." The "coral flesh" of carrots. A hubbard squash is cast into "old green bronze."

A primrose by the river's brim
A yellow primrose was to him,
And it was nothing more.

Wordsworth was right, of course. Most of us having eyes see not. But to Elsie Robinson, a primrose is Etruscan gold in flower, and with a delectable adjective or metaphor, she could transmute spinach into a thing of beauty and a parsnip into a joy forever.

This woman knows how to write and how to think. A worth-while person whom all the readers of this paper will do well to know, especially the youngsters who are dreaming journalistic or literary dreams.

"Of Making Many Books"

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

The Flower of the Spirit

AMID THESE STORMS. By Winston S. Churchill. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York City.)

IF one who has read widely were asked to name offhand a single book best suited to express the fine, unconscious flowering of the British aristocratic spirit in the heyday of the Empire, he might well balk at the superlative, in view of the appalling mass of books that clutter every field of thought and deed; but if urged to risk a choice, "A Roving Commission," by Winston S. Churchill, could not be deemed a bad one.

The word "aristocratic" is one which, for excellent social and economic reasons, has lost its one-time luster, and we of the great gray masses, constantly, and perhaps increasingly, at grips with the problem of mere survival in a sordid, pitiless scramble, are in no mood to contemplate the beauty of any flower that must cost so much to grow. Nevertheless, no spirit of toadyism nor of disloyalty to one's fellows in the mass is necessarily involved in the suggestion that conceivably the supreme achievement of any race in any time may be, in the long view of history, certain large free realizations of life made possible in a few individuals at a heavy cost to the many for whom such direct realizations are impossible.

Such large realizations of life may be in the realm of art or of science or of deeds among men; and the ready question, as to whether or not the suggestion here made is anti-democratic, would seem to demand something like a clear understanding of what we mean by democracy. Do we not commonly seem to confuse it with its opposite, individualism? Are we of the great mass to be the soil, rich and justly tended, from which the fine flower of the human spirit may bloom at its best in various forms and colors; or shall we believe that each is in himself somehow the flower? May not he who would urge the former view be the better democrat in the last analysis? Shall we of the mass triumph otherwise than through the exceptions we produce, as the mother triumphs in a son or the fertile earth in her flowering?

And while we are considering the possible advisability of re-definitions, might not the term "aristocracy" be furnished with a better meaning than that of hereditary privilege?

In the case of Churchill's book, it is the approach to life that seems a splendid masterpiece—the sense of life as of a noble game, to be played fearlessly and with gusto, according to the rules of a lofty morale. And, as always in the contemplation of a masterpiece, one is lifted for a moment, as on wings, above the dull level of habitual frustration into a vicarious realization of what the human spirit dreams to be.

There is in all of Churchill's books something of the same exhilarating sense of a brisk wind blowing under vast blue heavens in a world of high emprise. It is to be felt no less in his monumental account of "The World Crisis"—the work of his maturity, when a bitter disillusionment might have been expected—than in his "Roving Commission", in which he recalled the joyous adventures of his youth. It is to be felt as strongly as ever in his latest book of essays and memories collected under the title, "Amid These Storms"—even in his meditations upon the dire possibilities of the present world chaos; and certainly he is in position to realize how dire they are.

Always the touch is light, whether he is enjoying with his reader the thrill of dangers remembered or peering into the lowering future of his people and the world. It is not the lightness of the shallow spirit, but of one who habitually, both by virtue of temperament and training, takes the impersonal view. Neither triumph nor defeat is to him the measure of the merit of the game. Victory for him seems now, as in his youth, to be found in the mood and manner of the playing; and to say as much is to describe the heroic adjustment to life—perhaps the noblest adjustment mankind has yet achieved, though not conspicuously the fashion in an age insanely self-seeking and accustomed to measure all values by quantitative standards.

In two especially striking articles, Churchill discusses the present world situation in a manner well calculated to startle the complacent, but with no essaying of the heavy vatic role. In "Shall We All Commit Suicide?" he considers the probability of another great war, the means by which it will be fought and the results that may be expected from it. The only hope he sees for our civilization is in the League of Nations, "deserted by the United States, scorned by Soviet Russia, flouted by Italy, distrusted equally by France and Germany." Nevertheless, it is our only safety, he believes. "To reinforce it and bring it into vital and practical relation with actual world politics by sincere agreements and understandings between the great Powers should be the first aim of all who wish to spare their children torments and disasters compared with which those we have suffered will be but a pale preliminary."

At this point, there are those who may venture to ask if the author's scheme for salvation may not prove to be quite as anachronistic as is his high heroic view of life, suggesting that perhaps a vital point is missed in assuming that the fatal evils of a competitive industrial society can be avoided merely by agreement and without radically altering the social structure itself.

In "Mass Effects in Modern Life," Churchill considers the "marked lack of individual leadership" in the modern world and the substitution of mass processes therefor. "With every natural wish to be complimentary to our own age and generation," he observes, "with every warning against 'singing the praises of former times', it is difficult to marshal today in any part of the English-speaking world an assembly of notables, who either in distinction or achievement can compare with those to whom our grandfathers so gladly paid attention and tribute."

In every field of activity, he points out, "the throne is occupied; but by a throng." "Is it then true," he asks, "that civilization and democracy, when sufficiently developed, will increasingly dispense with personal direction; and that they are capable of finding the right way? Or, are they already going wrong? Have they quitted the narrow high roads which alone lead to glorious destinies and survival?" In short, can mankind permanently dispense with heroes?

His answer is suggested in the essay, "Fifty Years Hence", in which, assuming the survival of our civilization until then, he foresees the increasing folly of entrusting to the whims of the many, and to the inevitable demagogue, the increasingly intricate problems of a complex society dominated by a steadily developing applied science.

It is the aristocratic temper in the fine sense, unassociated with wealth or birth, that speaks at the conclusion of this essay: "Democratic governments drift along the line of least resistance, taking short views, paying their way with sops and doles and smoothing their path with pleasant-sounding platitudes. . . . There never was a time when the inherent virtue of human beings required more strong and confident expression in daily life; there never was a time when the hope of immortality and the disdain of earthly power and achievement were more necessary for the safety of the children of men. After all, this material progress, in itself so splendid, does not meet any of the real needs of the human race."

In such words, truly, flowers the human spirit; but how shall that flower flourish in a soil impoverished by the scheme of life we know?

"EDUCATING FOR CITIZENSHIP." By George A. Coe. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York City.)

"WHAT do you want children to get in school—propaganda or facts?

"What do you want children to be after they get out of school—intelligent citizens or yes-men?"

These are in substance the questions discussed by Prof. Coe in this study of the "Sovereign State as Ruler and as Teacher." He realizes, as anyone should if the matter be considered, that the sovereign state, or rather the ruling power back of it, is not conspicuously given to the deliberate development of a rebellious attitude in its subjects toward itself. Nevertheless, he seems to advocate with some hope that education should be modified to that very end.

Loyalty to democracy should be taught as the only true patriotism, he is convinced; and he defines democracy as the full identification of one's self with the least privileged of his fellows, with "Jack and Mike and Hans and Ole and Giuseppe and all the members of their families." And since Jack, Mike, et al., are certainly having a hard time just now, Prof. Coe ends his educational inquiry with the appropriate statement: "The stern call to patriotism today is a call to identify ourselves, as citizens, with the existence of economic injustice and futility, and then to form a cooperative industrial commonwealth that shall express, as the political finality, the value of persons." This is nobly said, and the whole book is nobly intentioned: but is not a naive begging of the question somehow involved?

Furthermore, the author's frequent repugnance to the idea of authority from above, of anyone being wholly "over" anyone else, regardless, apparently, of the relative ability existing under or over, would seem to mark him as belonging to an era now rapidly approaching its end. Prof. Coe seems to take it as a matter of course that democracy, in the legitimate sense of popular self-rule, is actually approaching its final triumph. But do not the shadows of our world seem to point the other way?

CITY ASKED TO SEE THAT JOBLESS GET UTILITY SERVICE

LOWER RATES ARE ADVOCATED

Organization Also Requests Representation on Citizens' Committee—Wages and Working Hours Discussed.

Demands of the Unemployed Citizens' League for relief of present conditions among the poor were presented to the Board of Aldermen yesterday afternoon by the league's president, Frank H. Wall, 1315 Grattan street, they were read to the board by its Clerk.

In addition to the remedies heretofore proposed by other organizations the league demanded that the city of St. Louis and the public utilities cease forthwith their practice of cuting off water, gas and electric service to families unable to pay their bills.

A demand for destruction of slum districts and erection of community-owned apartments for low rentals was also included in the resolution, which Wall and a committee left with the Clerk of the board just before yesterday's meeting.

Other Demands Made.

The preamble of the resolution said that "the records of history demonstrate that desperate and hungry men are often driven to violence, rioting and bloodshed"; that "the present relief agencies are incapable of dealing adequately with the present situation"; that "thousands are still threatened with the loss of homes and savings, eviction for nonpayment of rent, malnutrition, starvation and lack of clothing which can lead only to great mental and physical suffering, increase of crime, disrespect for the law."

First among the demands which followed was that the Unemployed Citizens' League, described as a non-partisan organization, be represented on Citizens' Unemployment Committee, and that the city provide adequate financial aid for the league's commissaries already in operation.

The city was then urged to take immediate steps for a loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for unemployment relief; to declare immediately a moratorium on taxes owed by the unemployed; to ask the State to take the same step, and to act immediately to prevent eviction of the unemployed for non-payment of rent.

Would Save Homes.

Also the citly was asked to urge holders of mortgages not to foreclose on homes of unemployed and to grant renewals and extensions of mortgages. The resolution continued:

"That the city of St. Louis initiate a program for the destruction of the slums and provide for the erection of community-owned apartments to be rented at a sum that will enable the former occupants of the slums to rent same; that the wage scale be the prevailing wage scale in the occupation involved, or if there is no prevailing wage scale a minimum of $4 for an eight-hour day.

"That the government of the city of St. Louis demand that the public utilities furnishing gas and electric light cease their practice of turning off said service in the homes of the needy unemployed because of nonpayment for same; that steps be taken immediately to reduce the cost of said service, including street car and telephone rates; and that provisions be made for public ownership and operation of said utilities.

"That the city of St. Louis immediately cease the turning off of water being furnished the homes of the needy unemployed for nonpayment of the charges for same."

Wages of Building Wreckers.

Enforcement of prevailing laws governing hours of work per day led up to a demand that the city see that proper wages be paid to laborers engaged in wrecking buildings for public improvements. These, the council declared it had reason to believe, are now getting an average of $1 a day. This work is being done by contractors who employ the labor.

The resolution closed with demands that a portion of the relief bond issue be devoted to giving employment, that the league be consulted in the equitable distribution of the work, that the Board of Aldermen support enactment of old age pension and unemployment insurance laws.

After the clerks of the board had read half of the resolution, Alderman Schwartz of the Twentieth Ward interrupted to remark that he saw no point in continuing, since there was nothing the board could do about the matter. President Neun insisted that as a communication from a body of citizens it deserved a full reading and the clerk continued. The board had no discussion, took no action, but went on to other business.

Mussolini on Economic Problem Of America

sufficient, it would be the United States. She has everything, or almost everything, and if there were necessity for any of us to shut ourselves off from our neighbors, the United States would be the most capable of doing it and would be, according to her resources, the least to suffer.

And yet, while this is obviously true, we find that the depression has reached its lowest depth right in the United States. There suffering is apparently greater and the number of unemployed larger in proportion than in any other country. Complete isolation, or even partial isolation, is then impossible in this modern world.

We have talked enough about world prices, world markets and world economy to know we are all so dependent on one another, and any talk of isolation or modified isolation is treading on dangerous ground if we wish to live in a reasonable state of prosperity with each of us enjoying the share of commerce and trade which ought to come to us.

At present each works against the others—tariffs, quotas and other trade inpediments. The only way to realize a resumption is through a better spirit of co-operation in the international market.

My own government has in principle from the beginning been against a system of protective tariff. It is now very obsolete, in that the world depends on the products of all nations and if we do not find what we want in one nation we find it in another. The craze for protective tariffs has reached extreme limits. Customs barriers are raised all over the world.

None can deny the power and strength of American commercial potentiality when it is fully functioning. But the system of selling everything and buying nothing has had, and is still having, very disastrous effects.

None questions the ability of the United States to conquer the world in commerce if she desired to set about it. It would, however, be at a great loss to herself, for, having crushed others commercially, where would she find anyone in a position to buy? That is to say that the very hand with which she had crushed others also would deal a terrific blow to herself in not letting the others live and furnish her with a market.

The United States was well launched on this policy when it was overcome by the depression. Now the tariff walls of the world are closed against her. When a resumption does come it must come with a lowering of all tariff walls. The flow of trade cannot be impeded with artificial barriers which take no account of a nation's capacity to buy or sell and throw both buyer and seller into consternation.

International trade cannot flow by a unilateral legislative act. Mutual understandings must be arrived at between nations. We have seen too well that nations have put up tariff barriers against themselves. The United States has realized that for one nation to do all the selling and others to do all the buying is not economically sound.

We must make trade agreements which will insure the flow of trade so that commodities may be taken from where they are not needed to where they are needed, so that in satisfactory exchange goods and trade can circulate for all alike.

This is the international need of the present. Trade and commercial intercourse must resume but they are only possible by mutual understandings. This is now the larger sphere in which the United States will extend influence. Her efforts to crush the trade of the world did not meet with happy results, but the launching of a policy of co-operation and collaboration will have found results.

10 PCT. WORLD TARIFF CUT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—A horizontal reduction of 10 per cent in world tariffs was proposed today by Senator Cordell Hull (Dem.), Tennessee, as the first step in a broad program to improve markets and increase employment.

Hull said the United States should "take the lead" in suggesting such a cut to all countries, as well as liberalization of exchange restrictions and discontinuance of export subsidies and unfair trade practices."

ADAMS STRESSES WEAKENED TREATY POSITION OF NAVY

Secretary in Annual Report to President Compares Force With Those of Japan and England.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. — The United States' weakened treaty position in warships as compared with Japan and Great Britain was stressed today by Secretary of the Navy Adams in his annual report to President Hoover.

"Curtailment of expenditures has been made principally at the expense of the fighting fleet," Adams said in discussing limited congressional appropriations for the Navy.

He made no direct recommendations, but presented numerous comparative figures and tables of the strength of the three navies to speak for themselves. In this connection, the report pointed out that the present building program of the United States does not provide for a treaty Navy for the next four years, makes no provision for the replacement of over-age vessels, nor the "rectifying of our already seriously impaired position relative to other signatories of the naval treaties nor for preventing further undermining of that position."

The President's attention was called to the fact that the private shipbuilding industry of this country "is in a serious condition due to almost complete lack of work either commercial or governmental." Permanent injury "to this vital industry would mean serious impairment," Adams said, "to the national defense and to the maritime and general economic welfare of the country."

Regarding the present status of the United States' warship building program the report showed that between now and the end of 1936 it would be necessary to build 135 ships involving 316,530 tons to bring the naval forces up to treaty strength. Congress has made no provision for these vessels which the United States has been authorized to lay down prior to expiration of the London treaty on Dec. 31, 1936.

In the total number of combatant ships (tonnage not considered) in commission by the three Powers, the United States lags a poor third. Adams said Japan leads with 219, Britain is next with 187 ships and the United States has 148.

Nearly all of these American ships, he said, excepting submarines, are operating with only about 85 per cent of their enlisted complements; while of the Japanese vessels, some are classed as being in reserve, but all are fully manned.

Of 15 United States battleships, 11 are in full commission, one in reduced commission and three in reduced commission being modernized; of 15 British capital ships, all are in full commission except one battleship under refitting in reserve. Of 10 Japanese capital ships, all are fully manned.

Three United States aircraft carriers are in full commission; of six British aircraft carriers, three are in full commission and three in reserve commission undergoing refitting; four Japanese aircraft carriers are fully manned.

Seventeen out of 19 British heavy cruisers are in full commission; the other two are in reserve commission. Twelve Japanese heavy cruisers are fully manned. Eight United States heavy cruisers are in full commission, and one more was commissioned in November, 1932.

The United States has one cruiser, second class, in full commission. Japan has seven cruisers, second class, fully manned.

Of destroyer leaders, the United States has none. Of 16 British destroyer leaders, 10 are in full commission and six are in reserve commission. Japan has 24 destroyer leaders fully manned.

Of 101 destroyers, the United States has 72 in full commission, 10 in reduced commission, and 19 in rotating reserve. Of 787 British destroyers, 74 are in full commission and 47 in reserve commission. Eighty Japanese destroyers are fully manned.

Of 10 United States light cruisers, all in full commission. Of 33 British light cruisers, 25 are in full commission and eight are in reserve commission. Twenty Japanese light cruisers are fully manned.

Of 54 United States submarines, 42 are in full commission, 11 are in rotating reserve and one in reduced commission. Of 52 British submarines, 44 are in full commission and eight in reserve commission. Sixty-two Japanese submarines are fully manned.

Comparing shipbuilding plans of Great Britain, Japan and the United States, the report set forth that the British have contracts let for three cruisers, of a total of 19,000 tons, and has appropriated for 18 destroyers and six submarines.

Japan has appropriated for two cruisers, of a total of 17,000 tons, nine destroyers, total 12,400 tons, and seven submarines of 8900 tons.

The United States has three additional cruisers authorized, but under treaty terms the vessels may not be completed before 1936, 1937 and 1938. Only one of these has been appropriated for and the contract has not as yet been let.

The naval expenditures in the fiscal year of 1932 were $353,628,362, or about $33,000,000 less than the estimated amount.

NEW U. S. NOTE FORWARDED TO SPAIN IN PHONE DISPUTE

Negotiations Involve Revision of Contract in Which I. T. & T. Is Interested.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Dec. 3.—It was learned in official quarters that a United States reply was dispatched from the Embassy today shortly after receipt of the Government note on plans for revision of the contract for the Spanish telephone monopoly, in which the International Telephone & Telegraph Co. of New York is principal stockholder.

It was stated that the Spanish note was unsatisfactory. Foreign Minister Zulueta said negotiations with the United States were proceeding satisfactorily and he hoped both countries would reach a satisfactory agreement.

He refused to divulge contents of the note addressed to the American Government. It was learned, however, that the note recognized Spain's right to revise the contract. The American position has been that it would not oppose revision if mutually agreed on by the Government and the company, and it was stated the American note reaffirmed that stand.

The dispute over the contract has revolved about labor agreements.

But Dr. Jacob Warshaw of Missouri U. Does Not Think Case Is Hopeless.

Inside 10 years there would be no Latin taught in Missouri high schools and inside 20 there would be no French or Spanish if the decline shown by figures covering 1926 to 1930 were to continue, Dr. Jacob Warshaw, professor of romance languages at the University of Missouri, told the Modern Language Association of St. Louis at a luncheon at Hotel Statler yesterday. However, statistics have a way of lying and there is little possibility of this coming to pass, Dr. Warshaw said.

While educators in the rest of the United States are well pleased with French and Spanish in their curricula, the Middle West, particularly Missouri, is a battlefield on which French and Spanish are fighting for existence, Dr. Warshaw asserted. This situation in the Middle West would not be so extreme, he added, if educators would submit all subjects in the curricula to the same extensive critical investigation they have submitted French and Spanish and would then compare the results.

CHRISTMAS CAROL PRACTICE WILL START THIS WEEK

School Children to Take Part in Festival of Street Singing Dec. 24.

School children of St. Louis and St. Louis County will begin practice this week on Christmas carols for the festival of street singing Christmas eve, the St. Louis Christmas Carol Association announced yesterday.

Song books and song sheets, carrying the words, music and brief histories of the carols, have been distributed to the schools. School authorities are co-operating in the organization of singing groups.

There has been a substantial increase in the number of groups thus far enlisted and the association estimated the number of school children participating Christmas eve will be double the number last year. To carry out its expanded plan for city and county-wide coverage, however, the association will require the volunteer services of hundreds of other groups, it was stated.

EVERETT SANDERS SAYS HE HAS NO INTENTION OF RESIGNING

G. O. P. Chairman Replies to Questions on Report Mills Will Take Over His Job.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican National Committee, told newspaper men today he had "no intention of resigning" after President Hoover leaves the White House March 4.

He made the statement when questioned about reports that Ogden Mills, Secretary of the Treasury, would take over the Republican organization here when Franklin D. Roosevelt becomes President.

"I expect to spend a good deal of my time in Washington," Sanders added. He said he expected to conduct an aggressive campaign during the next four years and was perfecting his organization for the work.

SUGAR COUNCIL IN AGREEMENT

Systematic Effort to Be Made to Eliminate Surplus.

THE HAGUE, Dec. 3.—The International Sugar Council adjourned today with the announcement that a complete agreement had been reached.

Efforts will be made to eliminate systematically surplus stocks which have accumulated in the various countries, and there will be no attempt to force the market. Under the agreement these stocks will be taken into consideration at the sowing of next year's crop. The council will meet again in Paris April 13.

Caillaux Writes On "Machinery Let Loose"

solidarity had been brought about by every sort of progress and obliged the nations to come closer and closer together, an effort seems to have been made to confine them in proudly sterile isolation.

Many will reply that there is a decisive remedy to the situation consisting of an auto-da-fe of the customs papers of the old continent and a considerable lowering of United States barriers. Won't it of necessity be the mission of the world conference to realize these things at the outset?

Yes, certainly, but it must have no illusions. Private interests are so rampant, are making so much noise, that they are deafening those in charge of public welfare.

But let us not throw stones too hastily, too violently, at one another. They are not entirely wrong. They all feel more or less confusedly that free trade cannot co-exist with the present industrial anarchy, that will prevail on the day production has been disciplined.

I have now come to what I regard as the capital and essential fact—to put into order that economy which scientific discoveries have put out of gear.

Machinery Let Loose.

Science has left man behind and man is losing his breath trying to keep up to it. The great, all important question which far exceeds every other is to proportion employment of techniques and the technicians themselves to the needs and faculties and conditions of human existence. Machinery let loose is causing at the same time unbridled production exceeding the buying and consuming capacity of articles manufactured, even of agricultural produce and — increased unemployment.

The idea has not occurred to me to enslave science. Science I consider one of the great factors of progress. What the world conference will have to deliberate upon before long, if it does not want its work to be rendered sterile, is that we shall not be rid of the crisis until we see that henceforth production is proportioned to consumption.

It is a redoubtable problem. It is not insoluble provided we resign ourselves to throwing overboard ready-made theories and expired theses.

To persuade oneself that everything will correct itself of itself, that it suffices to have confidence in that fine fellow, Time, is childish. It is also childish to believe that by a stroke of the magic wand of Marxism, under whatever form it is administered—collectivism or Communism—humanity will be able to escape from the mire in which it is stagnating.

All the paradises being presented to men are artificial. They dazzle when seen from afar, but deceive woefully when one enters them.

For International Co-Ordination.

It is only patient co-ordination between all wheels of economy, at first operated on a national basis and later on an international basis, that can usefully help our fellow beings and draw them step by step from the terrible path where they run the risk of crushing one another or clashing against one another.

The "climate" of the city where the world economic conference meets should be propitious to a profound examination of the principal causes of the distressing depression and of remedies which it entails.

Each of those who participate in the discussions should understand their gravity. There must be no question of following the path of ease, of adopting a policy of least effort. It is necessary to have a broad outlook, to see far ahead.

Raps Sales Levy and Predicts Riots Unless Congress Helps Farmer and Worker.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. — Predicting riots unless Congress assists the farmer and worker, Norman Thomas, twice Socialist candidate for President, told the Joint Committee on Unemployment today that the only means of balancing the Federal budget and providing relief funds was increase of income and inheritance taxes. The committee is composed of representatives of 17 organizations interested in social service and similar work.

Thomas rapped the sales tax as a burden on workers and farmers to the advantage of the income taxpaying group, asserting that 80 per cent of general purchases are made by families with incomes of less than $5000 a year.

A three billion dollar housing program as first means of providing employment was urged as the foundation for building better times.

"Ohio, one of the most important industrial states in the Union, finds itself in well nigh a desperate position," said Dr. I. M. Rubinow, director of B'Nai B'rith, of Cincinnati.

"In a population of some 7,000,000 people, over 100,000 families, or a population of between 400,000 and 500,000, are being supported by private and public relief funds."

The relief load in Illinois is steadily climbing, said Karl Borders, secretary of the Chicago League for Industrial Democracy.

"The fourth winter of unemployment," he said, "finds the State with the stupendous total of 1,400,000 unemployed. This is two-fifths of the number normally employed in the State. Over half of this number is in Chicago where fully one-half the number normally working are on relief."

Difficulties in Cutting State Taxation

eral taxpayer. As a matter of fact, he contributes less than 10 per cent of the cost of the State government.

No Practical Means of Cutting.

In an article by Charles G. Ross, chief Washington correspondent, in the Post-Dispatch last Sunday, it was shown that material savings in national expenditures are virtually impossible, and the problem was passed on down for state, county and city solution. So, in this article, it is shown there is no practical way of materially reducing the State tax bill, and it is passed on down to the county and the city.

An examination of his tax bill by any citizen will convince him that he contributes very little to State revenue. An actual example is the case of a Webster Groves taxpayer who, paying on a property valuation of $6000, pays a total tax of $242.40. Only $3 of this amount goes to meet the administrative costs of the State government. The remainder goes for interest on State, county and city indebtedness, for county purposes, city purposes and for local school taxes. The farmer in Adair County who pays on a property valuation of $3500, pays a total of $43.05, but only $1.75 of it goes to the administrative cost of the State government.

The problem which will confront Governor-elect Park will not be how he can reduce taxes. It will be how he can avoid increasing them. The figures given in this article of receipts and expenditures of the State government were for the fairly prosperous years of 1929 and 1930, the latest for which complete detailed statistics were available in State reports. Estimates by the State Tax Commission are that a much smaller amount will be available during the next two years.

There was a heavy slump in receipts during the last two years of Gov. Caulfield's administration and in an effort to keep expenses within the revenues he forced an arbitrary reduction of expenses of 26 per cent in nearly all State departments. At that there will be a deficit of between $500,000 and $1,250,000.

Revenue Falling Off.

For the biennial period of 1931 and 1932 the total receipts of the State revenue fund (two months estimated) were $23,899,113 instead of $30,000,000 as in the preceding two years. Of this amount, $7,679,504 was set aside for the public schools, leaving a balance of $16,228,609, to which was added $2,267,191 surplus from the preceding biennium, making a total of $18,495,800 available for appropriations for administrative purposes.

The Tax Commission estimate is that total revenue fund receipts for 1933 and 1934 will be only $21,083,650, of which $6,716,550 will go to the public schools, leaving a balance of only $14,367,100 available for State support appropriations. Only $7,000,000 a year. Even this will be reduced by the amount of the deficit at the end of this year. It appears that the funds available for Governor-elect Park's administration will be at least $2,000,000 a year less than Gov. Caulfield had even during the hard times of his last two years.

Before the new Governor can begin to reduce tax bills he will have to cut State expenditures about $2,000,000 a year below those of the last two years. If he can do no more than that he will take rank as the greatest business Governor Missouri ever had.

Some Roads to Revenue.

He will, of course, consider methods by which additional funds can be raised without increasing the direct taxes.

There has been talk of a State sales tax, but it hardly stands to reason that a Legislature which will refuse to increase direct taxes will add many times the amount such an increase would be to the taxpayers' bill at the corner store.

Repeal of the eighteenth amendment and modification of the Volstead act, and the State bone dry law will open up one source of revenue of which the State has been deprived for 13 years. Before the adoption of the eighteentr amendment the State obtained about $1,500,000 a year from State licenses on saloons, from a tax on beer and from wholesale liquor dealers' licenses. In 1918 the State collected a license tax of $400 a year from each saloon, the revenue from this source amounting to $1,169,134.30. The beer tax yielded $357,035.86, and the wholesale liquor dealers' license tax, $30,500.

For the same period the counties of the State collected $1,555,047 in saloon licenses and cities and towns a larger sum.

Gay Music Drama Arrives

The Pulitzer Prize-Winning Play, "Of Thee I Sing," a Delightful Satire on Present Day Politics, Comes to the American Theater Tonight for A Week's Visit—More About Katharine Cornell's New Offering Which Opened in Cleveland.

GETTING back into the more or less legit for a single week the American Theater tonight will have that gay satire on politics, "Of Thee I Sing," a musical which won the Pulitzer prize last season. For the time being there are no shows scheduled to come to the downtown theater until after the holidays. The book—it was the book without the music which captured the much coveted Pulitzer award—of "Of Thee I Sing" is by George S. Kaufman and Morrie Ryskind and the music and lyrics by George and Ira Gershwin. The story is a satire on politics and begins with a scene at national committee headquarters—"Let's see which party are we?" as one of the committeemen asks. The tale follows John P. Wintergreen's campaign for President through until his triumphant election on the slogan, "Put Love in the White House." No other issue seemed available, although the committeemen combed carefully the party's record from 1776 through the early decades of the last century. As the chairman explained, "What you need for an issue is something that everybody can get excited about and yet something that doesn't really make any difference." Love was just the thing—especially for the handsome, but otherwise wholly undistinguished, Mr. Wintergreen.

The committee arranges a bathing beauty contest, the winner of which will marry the new President. All that the candidate needs to do is to fall in love with the successful girl. Wintergreen will become the Great Lover. He will propose to his future bride in every state in the Union. The pictures of John and Mary will hang on every wall in the land, each step in their romance will be accompanied by answering throbs in the great American Heart. Love will sweep the company and carry John P. Wintergreen into the White House on a rose-decked tidal wave.

AS President, Mr. Wintergreen transacts the public business briefly. Perils domestic, rising out of his marriage, engross him more. They even threaten a war with France over the thwarted love and destiny of "an illegitimate daughter of an illegitimate son of an illegitimate nephew of Napoleon." Along with the President, comically obtrusive, goes Vice-President Alexander Throttlebottom. Campaign managers overlook him, policemen thrust him from his own meetings. To enter the White House he must join a tourist party. Belatedly he finds his way into the Senate over which he should preside.

Along the way, the authors kid our campaign parades, councils and rallies; the returns and bulletins of our election nights; renew the kidding when the ways of the executive mansion, the Senate chamber and the diplomatic corps are in question; make merry over the announcement of a baby in the White House, and take leave of us with the comforting assurance that "posterity"—do not confuse the word—"is just around the corner."

In the cast will be Oscar Shaw, Harriette Lake, Donald Meek, Cecil Lean, Al Sexton, Roberta Robinson, Audrey Christie, Paul Everton, Adrian Rosley, John Cherry, Francie Pierlot, William Pringle and Abe Reynolds.

CLEVELAND theatergoers cordially received Katharine Cornell's American Premiere of "Lucrece," the French play by Andre Obey, last Tuesday night, but as the final curtain descended they appeared slightly baffled by a bit of stage technique new to them.

Archie Bell of the Cleveland News termed it a "magnificent production and a beautiful gesture in the right direction." He asserted, however, it would not be a popular success as compared with "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," in which Miss Cornell also made her premiere there in January, 1931.

Bell added that the play is "a starring vehicle for Katharine Cornell as a producer, not as a stage star."

Imaginary stage properties piqued the curiosity of the audience. The opening of a door, when no door was visible, caught their attention. The spinning of an invisible spinning-wheel was another item of stage technique they found new.

Guthrie McClintic, Miss Cornell's husband, directed the play. The cast included Robert Loraine, who came from London for his appearance; Brian Ahearne, who was the Robert Browning of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street"; Blanche Yurka, star of many plays; Charles Waldron, Joyce Carey and Pedro Cordoba.

Although the play is based on a Roman story, the stage settings were Renaissance.

Miss Cornell now announces that the first performance in New York City of "Lucrece" will be given on Tuesday night, Dec. 20, in the Belasco Theater. Edgar Wallace's "Criminal at Large," now playing there, will be transferred to another theater.

Star Once a Boilermaker.

The Week's New Films

—:— By NIE —:—

JOAN BENNETT, loveliest of the Bennett sisters, after fooling around in the films for some time, has found exactly the sort of role she should play, always, in "Me and My Gal," which is at the Fox this week. In this story of a fresh New York cop and a smart quick-lunch cashier, Joan is bright and snappy and develops a fine flair for comedy, and another part or two of the same sort will establish her pretty firmly as the screen's best light comedienne. Spencer Tracy is the wise-cracking, good-hearted cop who stumbles upon a bank robber in time to capture a $10,000 reward, and he, too, is excellent, so that "Me and My Gal," without meaning anything very much, is the best entertainment of the week.

Rockabye and Good-By.

AND Sister Connie Bennett is the star of "Rockabye," across the street at the St. Louis. Constance is no slouch herself when it comes to looking pretty, in a cold and more or less expressionless way, but the picture is not one which will help her much as an actress. The title sorter tips off the plot for Connie, a musical comedy star, has adopted a baby about the time the affair opens and develops so much mother love that after she has fallen in love with Joel MacCrea she decides to send him back to his wife when she learns he is about to become a father. Then she falls back on good old reliable Paul Lukas, who happens to be hanging about, for love and protection.

More Laughs.

FOR the fans who want an hour or so of rough-and-tumble fun, Joe E. Brown's "You Said a Mouthful," at the Ambassador, is recommended most highly. The picture shows Joe being mistaken for a champion swimmer, but, when the film begins, he can't swim a stroke. Before it is all over, however, he manages to win a 20-mile race in the Pacific and the hand of Ginger Rogers. In between there are a lot of comical situations of the usual Joe Brown order, and the fun is pretty fast and furious throughout.

The Facts of Life.

JOE BROWN and Joan Bennett have not cornered the fun of the week by any means, for Stuart Erwin provides plenty of good laughs in a dandy comedy called "He Learned About Women" at the Missouri. Stuart is a rich young man—has $50,000,000, to be exact—but what he didn't know about women, until he met Alison Skipworth and Susan Fleming, would fill a large sized library. Old Miss Skipworth and young Miss Fleming take him over the jumps for seven reels and then find that he is too fine a fellow to be fleeced, so Susan marries him and Miss Skipworth decides to become a mother to him and protect him from the hungry New Yorkers who are always in the market for any part of fifty million. "He Learned About Women" is a most enjoyable comedy and the Missouri's other film, "That's My Boy," is a good college football yarn if you haven't grown tired of campus-gridiron drammers by this time.

The Dandy Copper.

"MAN AGAINST WOMAN," at Loew's, is more serious entertainment with Jack Holt as a New York detective who might easily be mistaken for a well-dressed man about town. For some reason Jack is wild about Lillian Miles, the screen's newest platinum blonde. His infatuation costs him his job on the force, but Jack evidently has independent means, for he goes rushing around the country as a one-man department tracking down a bunch of yeggs and bootleggers. He gets 'em, too, in Bermuda, where Lillian, who never had much time for policemen, is living with a slightly crooked boy friend. Jack sends the latter to the hoosegow, which clears the track so that he and Lillian can settle down and be happy. Miss Miles, who looks and acts and talks like Jean Harlow—which, we dare say, is how she got her chance in the films—does very nicely in this, her first part on the screen. Once upon a time she lived here in St. Louis and sang torch songs in a night club. Then she went to San Francisco as a cabaret entertainer and there the Hollywood magnates found her. She and Holt make "Man Against Woman" one of the best of the underworld-racketeer type of mellers.

W. U. Players in a Revival of "Charm"

Rachel Crothers' comedy. "Charm," will be presented at Washington University on the evenings of Dec. 14 and 15, in January courtroom on the campus.

Prof. William G. B. Carson is directing the cast, which is led by Betsy Huxel, William Schuyler, Virginia Ebrecht and Alfred Wilkinson. Others are Ruth McFarlane, Bernard Offner, Barney Morris, Julius Lesser, Kathryn Evers, Janette Miller, Dorothy Nesbitt, Elizabeth McIntyre and Harold Clover.

Two Native Stars In Bow at the Met.

Three stars, two of them Americans, make their first appearance of the 1932-33 season at the Metropolitan Opera House during the coming week.

The first two to make their debut of the new season are Lucrezia Bori, an Italian, and Nina Morgana of Buffalo, sopranos, who are featured in a special matinee of "Boheme," to be given Thursday afternoon. The third, Leonora Corona, of Dallas, also a soprano, will appear in "Cavalleria Rusticana" next Saturday night.

Youngest to Oldest.

The huge cast in the picture, "If I Had a Million," ranges in age from 4-year-old Jerry Tucker to Ruby Lafayette, 89.

More "First-Time" Music Scheduled By the Symphony

George Antheil's "Capriccio" To Be Given Its Initial Hearing in America by Golschmann on Friday.

CONTRASTS between the music of masters of the romantic school and that of the masters of today are provided in the all-orchestral program Vladimir Golschmann has arranged for the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra's concerts of next Friday afternoon and Saturday evening at the Odeon. Mendelssohn and Wagner represent the masters of our grandfather's days—both of them in their time hailed as "revolutionary"—while the music of today is represented by Ottorino Respighi, foremost of the Italians, and by George Antheil, a young American who within the past decade has won for himself high recognition in Europe, although his work is not widely known at home.

The program will include Mendelssohn's "Scotch" symphony and Respighi's "Fountains of Rome," although either of them would be entitled to major place upon a single symphonic program. The bill also presents for the first time in America Antheil's "Capriccio."

That Antheil's work is little known in this country is not surprising, for most of his productive years have been spent in Europe where he is now living, the holder of a Guggenheim Fellowship. In the years since the World War he has been more at home in Berlin, in Paris, or in Italy than in the United States. Many of his principal works for orchestra, the Symphony in F, the Piano Concerto, and the Suite for Orchestra had their world premieres under the baton of Golschmann at the Concerts Golschmann, Paris, as did his "Ballet Mechanique," which Eugene Goossens presented in this country. In the years 1928-29 Antheil was assistant musical director and composer of incidental music at the Berlin State Theater. His opera, "Transatlantique," was produced at Frankfort-on-Main in 1930 and a second opera, "Helen Retires," written with John Erskine, head of the Juilliard Foundation, has been heard over the radio in Germany and from New York, and is to be given its premiere early next year.

Wagner is represented on the program by "Waldweben," the "Forest Murmurs," which Siegfried hears as he meditates upon his parentage and awakens to his destiny.

Second Concert for Students Thursday

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra presents the second of its series of student concerts at the Odeon next Thursday at 3 p. m., with a program devoted largely to music which illustrates the functions of the woodwind in the orchestra, and the instruments will be illustrated by their players and discussed by Conductor Golschmann.

Unusual in the program is the inclusion of two numbers from Ravel's "Mother Goose" suite, music in the modern idiom which is presented for the first time in these concerts for young folks.

Leading Musicians in Philharmonic Concert

The orchestra of the Philharmonic Society of St. Louis, numbering more than 100 of the leading musicians of St. Louis, under the direction of Alfred H. Hicks, will give a concert at Moolah Temple, 3821 Lindell boulevard, next Friday evening at 8:15. The Philharmonic Orchestra is one of the oldest organizations of its kind in the United States and was founded by the Philharmonic Society of St. Louis in 1859. The society was duly incorporated in 1863. From this orchestra's personnel professional musicians have emerged, and a considerable number afterward became prominent members of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

The soloist Friday night will be Joseph Faerber, who has had several successful appearances in St. Louis and elsewhere and is one of the foremost young violinists of the city. He is also a member of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

Miss Sands at Principia.

Miss Dorothy Sands will present her novel entertainment, "Styles in Acting," at Howard Hall, the Principia, on Friday evening.

Ganz in a Piano Recital at Odeon On Tuesday Night

RUDOLPH GANZ, former conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, and now director of the Chicago College of Music, will be presented by the Civic Music League in a piano recital at the Odeon on Tuesday night. His program is a succession of master works of pure pianism from Haydn, Beethoven, Chopin and Liszt, to Scriabine, Debussy, Ravel and the compositions of Mr. Ganz himself.

Ganz came to this country first in 1900 to join the faculty of the Chicago College of Music, which he now heads. His rise to a position of pianistic authority was rapid, and consistently has it been maintained. He has done considerable work as composer as well as in his varied roles of pedagogue, conductor and virtuoso, his most recent publication being a delightful and humorous group of "Twenty Animal Pictures for Children Who Want to Grow Up." They recently have been orchestrated and will be presented in several cities in that form this season.

Show Boat Company Playing at Gayety

"Tildy Ann," a comedy-melodrama with a "Merton of the Movies" theme, is the current attraction of Capt. J. W. Menke's Hollywood Showboat Co. which has moved into the Gayety Theater for a winter season of old-time melodrama. The initial play began a 10-day run last Friday with performances nightly and with matinees on Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays.

The cast is composed of the entire original company which appeared with Capt. Menke this summer when the "Hollywood Showboat" was tied up on the Missouri River.

German Folk Play.

"Der Bergschreck," a Bavarian folk play by Caroline Haeusser, will be given this evening by the German Co-operative Theater Company in the auditorium of the German House, 2345 Lafayette avenue. The St. Louis Bavarian "Schuhplattler" Society will dance some of the celebrated mountaineer dances, which originated in that part of Bavaria.

One Big Cinema Folding Up

The St. Louis to Close Again on Thursday After Expensive Come Back Attempt, But May Make Another Bid After the Holidays—How the Hollywood Economy Wave Is Extending to the Dressmakers, Who Now Half-Sole the Stars' Costumes.

THE St. Louis Theater, which, after some months of idleness, reopened its doors a few weeks ago, has found the going on Grand avenue entirely too tough, with losses running well into the thousands weekly and will close its doors Thursday night. There is some sort of word that the house may have another try when the Christmas holidays arrive, but there is nothing very definite on this point. At the same time there are rumors that RKO, owners of the St. Louis and operators, under lease, of the Missouri Theater, almost next door, may turn that house back to the Paramount-Publix chain. That deal is still in the discussion stage according to film row rumors.

While the failure of the St. Louis to attract customers was due, partly, to its ill-timed reopening, the real cause is to be found in the fact that St. Louis, as has been pointed out in these columns many times, is badly overseated, with not enough potential customers in sight to fill all the benches even in boom times—and these are far from boom times in the show business.

It is conditions like these which is causing the economy wave, sweeping over Hollywood right now, to grow in momentum. Dollars are being trimmed from expenses right and left and at the moment the studio magnates are turning their attention to the matter of the cost of dressing their stars and near stars.

Time was, not so long ago, when an expensive gown, worn by one of the Gold Coast prima donnas in one picture appeared one more time on an extra girl in a later film and then was sold, for a song, to the shops dealing in cast-offs.

THINGS are different now and when a studio pays $2 for a gingham dress for a heroine in a homespun drammer or $2000 for a costume for a society star part, it gets $2 or $2000 worth of wear out of the affair before it is through with it.

A little over a year ago Marion Davies appeared in "The Florodora Girl." The charming costume she wore in the "sextette" number was bid for by all the Hollywood costume companies. But the studio refused to sell. While this costume was so distinctive it could not be used in another picture, it more than proved its value by making history for the studio. It was sent for by the board of directors of the museums in Exposition Park, Los Angeles. Today it is in that institution's collection of motion picture exhibits.

The procedure is entirely different when modern clothes are worn by a star. Their workmanship is so fine, the material so costly, they must be used again and again. After the star has finished with them, they are kept for a featured player in another production. Alterations are made, perhaps a neckline is changed, but usually they remain the same. From the featured player they go to a "bit" player, and then they are passed on to an extra in a mob scene.

By this time there is little left to the life of a gown. As its final distinction it is sent to a charitable organization, where it becomes artificial flowers, pillows, or rag-rugs.

JOAN CRAWFORD usually wears elaborate gowns in her pictures. As a rule the strong lights on the set fade these gowns, so on rare occasions Miss Crawford has one copied for her own use. In "Possessed" she had a beautiful black velvet evening gown, with an off-the-shoulder neckline, and its simplicity and good lines appealed to her. She had worn it in only one scene for about two hours. This dress was purchased by Miss Crawford for her personal wardrobe.

Miss Crawford has an ideal way of disposing of her cast-off clothes. Most of her own things are worn but once or twice. The necessity of keeping up to the moment in style warrants a large expenditure. When she is through with a dress, Miss Crawford sends it to a school she attended. Girls working their way through that school are benefited by this generosity.

The wardrobe department of the studios are thoroughly checked over every six months. Styles change so rapidly and the volume of clothes made is so great they must be kept moving to make room for others. Those clothes that can be altered are sent to the workroom. Those of good material, but beyond the alteration stage, are sent to the costume department. There they are cut up and made over into "period" costumes.

NORMA SHEARER has many requests from shop girls, secretaries and movie fans, who write and ask her to send them her old clothes. Most of these demands are disregarded, as there are people who make a business of imposing on the generosity of motion picture stars. But if there is something in the request that rings true, the case is investigated. If the applicant is found worthy she is taken care of with no one the wiser.

Marie Dressler's clothes have so much character they are kept in the studio wardrobe. Every character actress is anxious to get something worn by her and considers it an omen of good luck. Most of Miss Dressler's own clothes are given to servants.

Letters pour in to the studios begging for patterns, asking for samples of materials and inquiring as to colors of gowns worn by stars. There are hundreds of telephone requests every week from feminine admirers eager to pay for gowns worn by their favorite stars.

The larger studios never have wardrobe sales, as was the case in the earlier days. They salvage every inch of material and every spare bead. There is very little waste connected with the making of clothes for stars. Fur trimmings are transferred from one gown to another and delicate beading and fine embroidery are often re-appliqued if the dress happens to wear out first.

There is no telling where a studio dress may spend its final days. But once it leaves its star it continues on its way, serving its purpose to the end.

HENRY GARAT, French stage and screen star, who was recently signed by Fox Film Corporation, is due to arrive in this country shortly to begin his American screen career. His first role is to be the lead, opposite Janet Gaynor, in "Princess at Your Order," a romance with music.

Garat played in the French version of "Princess at Your Order," when it was produced in European film studios. Lilian Harvey, who also comes to America shortly to play in Fox pictures, appeared opposite him in the foreign version of the picture.

Jack Holt in "Man Against Woman" at Loew's State Theater.

Thelma Francis in "Tildy Ann" at the Gayety Theater.

Miss Mackay Makes Debut At Reception

Several Hundred Guests at Brilliant Party in Large Family Home at 3693 Lindell Boulevard.

MISS SUZANNE MACKAY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Castleman Mackay, was presented to society Friday night at a brilliant reception for several hundred guests at their home, 3693 Lindell boulevard. The house, a massive Victorian structure of red brick and stone built 32 years ago by Mrs. Mackay's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George Castleman, provided the setting for Mrs. Mackay's own debut ball, an outstanding social event of that season. At that time she lived in Rock Island, Ill., with her parents, but spent much of her time here.

The charm of another generation still prevails. For the party last night the great rooms with their wide windows were transformed into bowers of blossoms. Chrysanthemums in white and pale yellow and yellow roses were effectively arranged in the drawing room against walls covered with blue brocade. Here the host and hostess with their daughter and her guest, Miss Jean Preston of Lexington, Ky., received the debutantes, their escorts, their parents and even their grandparents, many of whom had greeted the hostess there when she was a debutante.

Miss Mackay wore a white tulle gown caught up with pink rose buds, similar to her mother's debut gown. The long, full skirt with its flower decoration was belted with a tulle sash, and about her shoulders was tulle drapery fastened with rosebuds. She carried pink roses. Mrs. Mackay's gown was of black sequins, with which she carried a round bouquet of yellow roses, and Miss Preston wore a white beaded creation.

American beauty roses were used in the reception hall, and in the dining room were dozens of pink roses banking the buffet and arranged in baskets on the serving tables. The reception table had for its centerpiece an elaborate old carved candelabrum filled with lighted ivory tapers, surrounded by four silver epergnes of roses.

Later in the evening the younger guests danced in the third floor ballroom.

Miss Mackay, who has already been the guest of honor at many parties this season, will be honored at a dance given for her by her parents during the Christmas holidays.

There the entertainment will include competition and balloon dances. At the same time on the opposite side of the auditorium the bowling alleys and pool tables will be available.

Panhellenic

THIS month a new program of philanthropic work will be inaugurated by the women's city Panhellenic alumnae board. Co-operating with the Central Committee for Relief, of which Mrs. M. Donovan Curran is acting chairman, city Panhellenic will have charge of all volunteer relief work in the Ashland district in the northwestern part of the city and will furnish two office aids to the Provident Association, six visitors' aids and 12 volunteers for automobile service.

Alpha Omicron Pi and Zeta Tau Alpha were hostesses for a meeting of the board held Tuesday at the home of Miss Eleanor Rench, 5544 Chamberlain avenue, when plans for this work were discussed and the committees appointed. Mrs. Louise Stark, representing Phi Mu, will serve as chairman of the newly organized committee for social service. Mrs. Stark is chairman of the clothing bureau of the St. Louis Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment.

Mrs. Fred Armstrong Jr., Alpha Phi, who is president of Panhellenic this year, is also chairman of the department of family welfare of the Board of Religious Organizations, of which the Toy Shop is one of the major activities. Several member sororities of Panhellenic are making Christmas gifts of children's toys to be distributed by Mrs. Armstrong's department.

A new program providing for a rotation of membership in each standing committee of Panhellenic was presented last week by Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. Ronald [illegible] Foulis, secretary, representing Delta Gamma. With the adoption of this program there will be appointed a new committee which will co-operate with the present committee in charge of arrangements for the annual bridge benefit party to be given in January.

Alpha Gamma Delta and Alpha Delta Pi will be hostesses for the next Panhellenic board meeting to be held Jan. 2.

In an editorial in the last issue of the Greek Exchange, George Banta said, "When we can refer to the one hundredth anniversary of a fraternity (Alpha Delta Phi) and to the fiftieth anniversary of the magazine of another (Delta Kappa Epsilon), we feel that the fraternity system has safely weathered many a storm. The old catchphrase, 'The first hundred years are the hardest,' is no longer a joke to the American college fraternity."

This brings to mind the thought that even here in St. Louis, where our college fraternity chapters are Calvin Dobson read the service. The bridal party stood before an altar banked with chrysanthemums and greenery.

The bride was attended by Miss Edna Sutter, as maid of honor; Mrs. Florence Rein Thomas, as matron of honor, and Miss Sylvia Kleinschmidt and Miss Carol S. Boedeker as bridesmaids. Tall floor baskets of white chrysanthemums and candelabra with white cathedral candles were placed on both sides of the altar. As the bridal party approached the altar, a white kid carpet was rolled down the aisle by the ushers.

The bride wore a gown of white point d'Alencon lace cut along princess lines, with square neckline and short train. The sleeves were puffed and extended into long tight cuffs falling over her hands. The dolls were on display in the Vandervoort Music Hall Friday and Saturday, this show being sponsored by the Girl Scout Council of which Mrs. Frank Mayfield is commissioner. White House Season Will Open Thursday

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.

THIS week Mrs. Hoover paid a brief visit to Camp Rapidan. Next Thursday she will be hostess at the Cabinet dinner, opening the White House social program of a dozen dinners and receptions.

High officials of Army and Navy attended box parties today at the Army-Navy football game. Those who had invited guests included the Secretary of War and Mrs. Hurley, the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Adams, Chief of Staff Gen. Douglas MacArthur, and Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs Jahncke.

Congress, with a prohibition vote promised in the House, was assured a brilliant opening day gallery Monday. Mrs. Dolly Gann said she would be in the vice-presidential box. Mrs. John N. Garner plans to have as her guest in the Speaker's box Mrs. Charles Linthicum, widow of the late Representative Linthicum of Maryland.

In Warm Springs, Ga., where Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the Inaugural Committee, went to consult President-elect Roosevelt, it was given out that the inauguration would be simple. This silenced murmurings about the possible revival of the inaugural ball.

Vice-President-elect Garner let it be known he and Mrs. Garner would continue the policy they have followed during his Speakership—to decline all social invitations except the official events at the White House. This course, remarkable for a Speaker to have followed, is more precedent-shattering when applied to the Vice-President's office.

Vice-President Curtis and his hostess sister, Mrs. Dolly Gann, with blast of bugles and smart salute of aids, took their places in a box at the annual Thanksgiving Navy relief ball. They will be guests of honor at the fifth annual ball of the midshipmen and cadets Dec. 26. Mrs. Gann will head the receiving line next Wednesday night at a benefit card party for the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines' Club.

Miss Louise Tittman, in white lace and ostrich feathers, made her debut in the same Connecticut Avenue home in which her mother, Mrs. Charles Trowbridge Tittman, the former Miss Jean Crosby, was presented to society.

There was a quiet family celebration of the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of Col. and Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant III. Washington remembered when President Roosevelt had as aids in his social functions the grandson of President Grant and the son of Gen. Sheridan. President Roosevelt attended the Nov. 27, 1907 Grant wedding, proposed the toast to the bride, Edith Root, daughter of Secretary of State Elihu Root. As director of Public Buildings and Parks, Col. Grant supervises the White House, checks its inventories; mends the surface cracks in Washington monument; watches over the famous cherry trees; looks after the Lincoln Museum and plans the restoration of the house where Lincoln died. His sister, Princess Cantacuzene, came from Florida to attend the anniversary celebration.

Miss Gladys Szechenyi, daughter and namesake of the former Gladys Vanderbilt, now Countess Szechenyi, wife of the Minister from Hungary, has been chosen to lead the figures in the Dec. 12 bachelor cotillion with Gen. William E. Horton, cotillion president.

Miss Helen Manley made her debut Thursday.

Logs burning in open fireplaces, evergreens and trailing vines formed a background for the sixth annual debutante dinner dance at the National Women's Country Club. Less than 100 young people received the coveted invitations. Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, ball chairman, wore fuscia velvet, Mrs. Arthur MacArthur black velvet. Others on the Ball Committee were: Mrs. Richard Aldrich, Mrs. Hamilton Fish Jr., Mrs. Charles Trowbridge Tittman and Mrs. Granville Fortescue.

Among the whirling debutantes were Miss Mai Sykes, daughter of the Radio Commissioner, in a gown of rough gold crepe trimmed with sable, and Helen Fortescue in a black satin dress with cape buttoned high about her throat, and caught at the back with a corsage of white gardenias.

Pre-Wedding Parties For Frances Boogher

A SERIES of pre-wedding parties is being given in honor of Miss Frances Boogher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Boogher, 6341 Waterman avenue, and her fiance, Samuel Jackson Bland, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Bland of Clayton road and Log Cabin lane, who are to be married next Saturday. Last night a buffet supper was given by Mr. and Mrs. Edgar E. Rand, 7756 Davis drive. Tuesday afternoon, Miss Boogher will give a trousseau tea. Invitations to the wedding to take place at the Boogher home at 6 o'clock in the evening have been received by 250 friends and relatives.

Miss Hillary Boogher, a cousin of the bride, will be maid of honor, and Miss Aileen Blanke will be bridesmaid. Edgar E. Rand will be best man. The groomsmen will include Arnold Boogher, a brother of the bride, and John Brownrigg.

Mr. Bland and his bride will reside in St. Louis. Miss Boogher made her debut several seasons ago at which time she served as a special maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball.

The sons of Daniel A. Ruebel and Dr. Floyd W. Bennett are Sigma Chi upper classmen.

Sigma Chi held its province meeting in St. Louis Friday and Saturday, the national organization being represented by Charles Eldridge of Chicago, executive secretary, and the province by Fred Armstrong Jr., alumni officer. Sherman S. Senne is president of the city alumni chapter.

Another convention, that of Kappa Phi Sigma, national honorary literary and forensic fraternity, was held in St. Louis Friday and Saturday. The program included the judging of poetry, short story and essay contests sponsored by the fraternity and of debates between chapters. 'MRS. SANTA CLAUS' REPORTS HARD TIMES MAKE JOB EASIER

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Dec. 3.—A woman who has been Mrs. Santa Claus here for 16 consecutive years, in which time her list of children has grown from 300 to 5000, is convinced "hard times only makes the role easier."

Every grade school teacher in the city is giving at least one doll. Junior and high school teachers are contributing money.

Club women have taken her in their automobiles to the homes of the needy where she jotted down names and ages. About 1000 families are on the list.

Merchants are contributing clothing, candy, food and toys. As in past years, the distribution will be carried on largely by students home from college for the holidays.

Here and There on the Air

Jeritza in Radio Concert Tuesday.

MARIA JERITZA of the Metropolitan Opera, will sing during the Five Star Theater program at 9 o'clock Tuesday night. . . . Nino Martini, tenor, will sing an operatic aria and two songs in the Columbia Symphony Orchestra concert at 10 o'clock Monday night on the CBS chain. . . . Morton Downey is billed for recitals on the CBS network at 6:45 tomorrow night and at 9 o'clock Saturday night. . . . Plans for Radio City broadcasts include an oratorio performance on Christmas day with a 110-voice Tuskegee Institute choir singing, and a concert on New Year's day by an orchestra led by Leopold Stokowski that may number 200 musicians. Meanwhile Roxy and his gang will continue their Sunday noon concerts, which are coming from the WJZ studios instead of the Roxy Theater in Radio City.

Winchell in New Program Tonight.

WALTER WINCHELL, the columnist who is heard in the Hour of Dance Music broadcasts over KSD, begins today a series of weekly programs on the WJZ chain stations, including WLW and KYW, at 8:30 tonight and succeeding Sunday nights. At 10:15 Sunday nights, Winchell will have a repeat program on WSM, WKY, KTHS, WBAP, KPRC and KOA. . . . President Wilhelm Miklas of Austria will speak from Vienna, as will Dr. Adolph Lorenz, noted physician, at 3:30 this afternoon over WEAF chain stations. . . . In an attempt to enliven late night programs, the CBS chain will carry a "Columbia Revue" series at 9:30 Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights, starting tomorrow. Freddie Rich will lead the orchestra, which will play so-called "symphonic arrangements." Staff artists and entertainers at the New York studios are billed. . . . Billie Dausch, who has sung frequently over the networks, has been engaged as a staff singer for WLW. She is featured several times a week, including 8:45 Friday nights. . . . Jones and Hare are to go off the air, their broadcast last week being their concluding one. . . . Eddie Cantor expects by New Year's day to have regained his old position as a radio leader. At present, he feels, competition in humor on the air has become so keen that other comedians are at least rivaling him in popularity.

Radio Poll Closes Tonight.

THE radio poll conducted by a receiver manufacturer is to close at midnight tonight. Disregarding any influence on the results that activities of press agents for various artists and entertainers, as reported by Peter Dixon, may have had, the poll, going into its last week, showed Kate Smith, singer; Rubinoff, instrumentalist; Rudy Vallee, orchestra leader; Richard Gordon, who plays Sherlock Holmes, actor; the Gypsie program; Ed Wynne, Eddie Cantor and Ray Perkins, comedians, and Milton Gross, Kelvin Keach, Ted Husing, John S. Young, James Wallington, David Ross and Graham McNamee, announcers, leading in their respective classifications. It is worth nothing that the overwhelming choice thus far among the miscellaneous programs is that of the Gypsies featuring Harry Horlick's orchestra and Frank Luther, tenor.

The trio includes Mrs. Frank A. Habig, pianist; Miss Martha Short, violinist, and Miss Louise Evers, celloist. Miss Josephine Farrington will read a child's story over WIL at 11 a. m. Saturday.

Broadcasts From Congress Planned.

TOMORROW morning, Frederick William Wile, wearing a lapel microphone, will interview members of Congress on their way to their seats, for a broadcast over the CBS chain. At 11:05, he will read parts of President Hoover's message. Tuesday, the CBS network will carry the first of a daily series of five-minute resumes of the day's doings of Congress. These bulletins will come at 5:15, with Edwin C. Hill at the microphone. Wile will replace Hill after Dec. 12. . . . At intervals Tuesday, Ted Husing, wearing a lapel microphone, will accost pedestrians in Manhattan and ask their opinions on the beer question. These informal interviews will be carried by the CBS chain. . . . Discussions of current problems will be broadcast by the WEAF chain from 12 noon to 1 o'clock on six Saturdays—Dec. 10, Jan. 14 and 28, Feb. 11 and 25 and March 18. Speakers Dec. 10 will include Congressman La Guardia of New York, Oswald Garrison Villard, editor, and B. Charney Vladeck of the Jewish Daily Forward.

RICHARD CROOKS

TIBBITT and CROOKS will sing on a new series of weekly programs on KSD that will begin at 7:30 tomorrow night. Crooks, who went to the Metropolitan Opera from opera in Europe and the concert stage in this country, took Tibbitt's place in the same series when the latter went abroad last season. Crooks will sing tomorrow night, and Tibbitt the next three Monday nights. Then they will alternate.

Part of the Metropolitan Opera performance of Verdi's "Simon Boccanegra" will be broadcast over a WJZ chain at 1:30 next Saturday afternoon. Lawrence Tibbett will sing the title role.

Carveth Wells will begin a new "Exploring America" series at 9:30 Wednesday night, on an NBC chain.

Black to Direct NBC Music Programs.

FRANK BLACK has been appointed general musical director for the NBC chains, taking over the duties from Erno Rapee. . . . The Compinsky instrumental trio's concerts, at 9:30 Sunday nights, will be continued over the CBS chain into February. The trio plays chamber music. . . . A Christmas broadcast from Germany over an NBC network will bring carols played on the chimes of cathedrals in 30 cities. . . . Among music to be played by the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra under Leopold Stokowsky, at 1:30 Friday, will be Stravinsky's choral work, "The King of the Stars" and "The Raven of Edgar Allen Poe," by the young American composer. Dubensky. Perofrmance of the Dubensky music requires the services of a narrator. . . .

In the Studios

By PETER DIXON

THE advent of Rex Beach as a featured writer in the first of that series of Five Star programs may begin a new trend in radio broadcasting. Sponsors have suddenly realized that plays, musical comedies and motion pictures have depended somewhat on the ability of writers. The day of the radio program which provides $3000 worth of talent with a continuity costing $30 seems near its end. In January, it is reported, a program will go on the air featuring the author above everyone else. He will be paid $1000 a week just for writing the radio show. Booth Tarkington is listed already as a radio writer and Irvin Cobb, who has been interested in the new medium for some time, too, will contribute material to the broadcasters. In all the popularity polls, Jessica Dragonette's name is always among the leaders, which is interesting when one knows that she does not employ a high priced publicity agent. She has glamor, though. She has been seen seldom. She has made some personal appearances but to the average listener she is just a voice. Some day, some movie producer is going to appreciate the box office value of the name Dragonette, and then watch what happens. So they want programs for the makers of beer and wine? The wine maker sponsor who offers a real Viennese orchestra with a large repertoire of Strauss will endear himself to the listeners. . . . The Rhythm Boys, anticipating the brewery broadcasts, are making a collection of drinking songs. . . . Perhaps one of the brewers will give us "The Student Prince," in serial form on the air. That show is made to order for the brew that cheers.

$1200.00 IN CASH PRIZES

PROVERB PICTURES

$300.00 Each Week for 4 Weeks

Ninety-nine Post-Dispatch readers will divide $300.00 in cash prizes each week for the next four weeks—a total of $1200.00 in cash!

Next Tuesday, December 6, the Post-Dispatch will begin the first of four Proverb Picture Competitions. On each of the seven days of the first competition two pictures, representing familiar proverbs or quotations, will be published in the Post-Dispatch.

To participate you need only name the proverb each picture represents and make up a maxim or quotation of your own, using only the words in the 14 proverbs you name. Your maxim may be of any length you desire.

The prize awards will go to participants who name the proverbs represented by the pictures most accurately and whose maxims are judged to be the best. Awards will be divided as follows:

First Prize	$50.00
Second Prize	25.00
Third Prize	15.00
Fourth Prize	10.00
20 Prizes, each	5.00
25 Prizes, each	2.00
50 Prizes, each	1.00
Total of 99 Prizes	$300.00

To assist participants, lists of well-known proverbs will be printed in the Post-Dispatch. From these lists, totaling more than 1000 proverbs and quotations, eleven of the fourteen proverbs in each competition will be chosen. To add interest, the titles of three pictures in each competition will not be given in the lists. Readers should clip the lists of proverbs and save them for reference.

Try your wits on the first six Proverb Pictures reproduced in this announcement. See how much entertainment they provide. Then read the simple rules and decide to try for a share of the $300.00 in cash prizes by entering the first

Proverb Picture Competition

POST-DISPATCH

Rules of the Competition

1 The Post-Dispatch will conduct a series of four Proverb Picture Competitions, each competition lasting one week.

2 During each of the four competitions, the Post-Dispatch will publish each day, including Sunday, two pictures which illustrate familiar proverbs or quotations. Fourteen pictures will be published in each competition.

3 Ninety-nine cash prizes totaling $300.00 will be awarded in each competition to participants who name the proverbs represented by the 14 pictures most accurately and make up the best maxims of their own, using only words in the 14 identifying proverbs named by participants. Maxims may be of any number of words.

4 Prizes will be divided as follows:
First prize, $50.00; second prize, $25.00; third prize, $15.00; fourth prize, $10.00; 20 prizes, each, $5.00; 25 prizes, each, $2.00; 50 prizes, each, $1.00.

5 The entire set of 14 answers in each competition is to be submitted at one time. Clip the two pictures each day; write your answer in the space provided, and save all the pictures until the entire 14 have been published. Copy your 14 answers on the entry form (which will be published in the Post-Dispatch on the last day of the competition) in the order in which pictures appear; write your maxim; and fill in your name and address. Enclose the entry form with the set of 14 pictures and mail to the "Proverb Picture" Editor, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, St. Louis, Mo.

6 You do not have to be a subscriber to the Post-Dispatch or buy a copy each day to compete. If you prefer, you may trace the drawings from the newspaper. Copies of the Post-Dispatch will be found in public libraries or in the business office of the Post-Dispatch. Instead of the entry form in the Post-Dispatch, you may use a piece of paper the same size. The entry form is printed merely for your convenience.

7 Everyone except Post-Dispatch employees and members of their families may take part. All members of a family are eligible.

8 You may submit as many sets of answers in each competition as you wish. Each set, however, must be in a separate envelope and be complete with the 14 clipped or traced pictures, and entry form. Participants who submit more than one entry are eligible for only one prize. If two or more entries submitted by the same participant are each judged to be worthy of a prize, the one of a higher value will be awarded.

9 If two or more participants are tied for any award, the full amount of the award will be paid to each tying participant.

10 Elaborate entries will receive no more consideration than plain ones.

11 The decision of the "Proverb Picture" Editor will be final in all matters pertaining to the competitions. No entries will be returned.

12 The first "Proverb Picture" Competition will begin Tuesday, December 6. Pictures in the first competition will appear on successive days, including Sunday, up to and including Monday, December 12. The first competition will close Tuesday, December 13, at midnight. Entries must bear a postmark before that time.

Can You Name These Six Proverb Pictures?

The pictures on this page are the first six in the First Post-Dispatch Proverb Picture Competition. They represent six proverbs or quotations which are given in the list below. Can you name them? More than 1000 proverbs and quotations will be printed in the Post-Dispatch Daily Magazine to help participants.

Penny wise and pound foolish.
Beggars should not be choosers.
As ye sow so shall ye reap.
And a little child shall lead them.
A miss is as good as a mile.
It's an ill wind that blows nobody good.
A wise son maketh a glad father.
A soft answer turneth away wrath.
Dead men tell no tales.
Never look a gift horse in the mouth.
Murder will out.
Money begets money.
Faint heart never won fair lady.
Fair exchange is no robbery.
Keep your tongue within your teeth.
Half a loaf is better than no bread.
No offense taken where none is meant.
Blessed are the poor in spirit; for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.
Be not wise in thine own eyes.
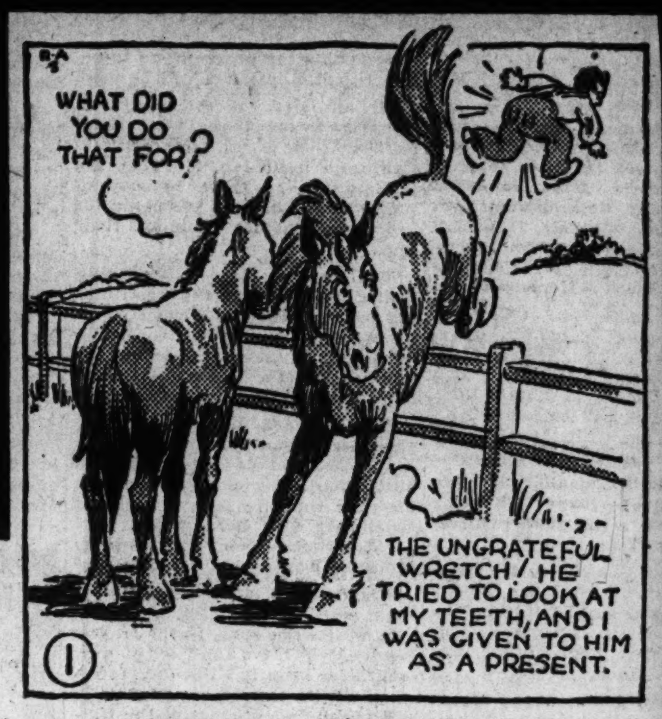
The lone sheep's in danger of the wolf.
The fairest apple hangs on the highest bough.
The devil is good to his own.
Ye cannot serve God and mammon.
Whom the Lord loveth, He chasteneth.
There's many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip.
Righteousness exalteth a nation.
Man proposes, God disposes.
Familiarity breeds contempt.



WHAT DID YOU DO THAT FOR?
THE UNGRATEFUL WRETCH! HE TRIED TO LOOK AT MY TEETH, AND I WAS GIVEN TO HIM AS A PRESENT.

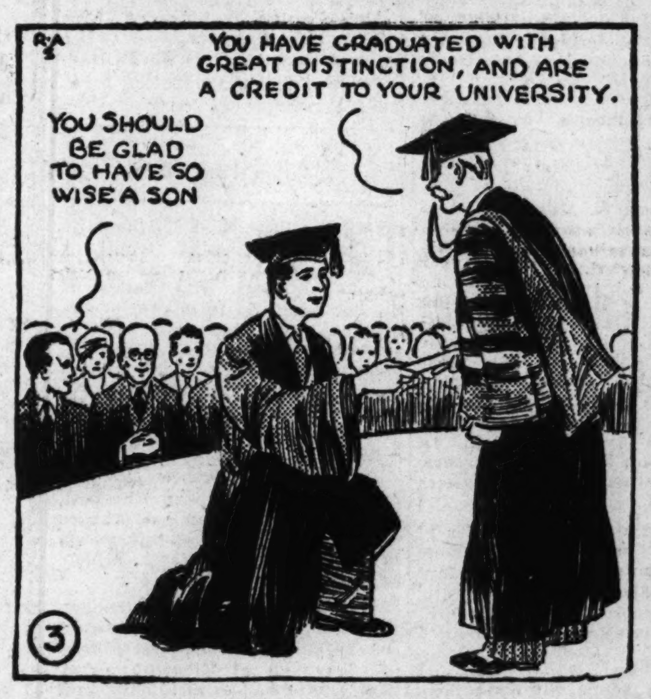
WELL, THERE ARE TWO FELLOWS WHO'LL KEEP SILENCE!
THAT'S WHAT COMES FROM THREATENING TO INFORM ON US.



YOU HAVE GRADUATED WITH GREAT DISTINCTION, AND ARE A CREDIT TO YOUR UNIVERSITY.
YOU SHOULD BE GLAD TO HAVE SO WISE A SON
③

④
"I JUST STOPPED TO CHOOSE THESE ORCHIDS FOR YOU,—
—THOUGH THEY ARE NO MATCH FOR YOUR LOVELINESS."
"OH, THANKS. YOU ARE A WRETCH, BUT IT'S IMPOSSIBLE TO BE ANGRY WITH YOU."

THOMASSON ASKS FOR REHEARING ON SANITY QUESTION

Counsel Cites 85 Reasons Why Verdict Ordering Hearing in St. Louis Should Be Set Aside.

In a petition listing 85 reasons for a new trial, counsel for Hugh W. Thomasson, wealthy real estate owner, yesterday took exception to the verdict of a jury which ruled Friday, at the end of a 90-day hearing, that Thomasson must face insanity proceedings in St. Louis.

The petition charges Circuit Judge Hoffmeister with the usual type of errors alleged in such documents and alleges friendliness between the jury and counsel for Miss Elmira Townsend, Thomasson's second cousin, who brought the action to have him declared insane.

The Court erred, the petition states, in dismissing the jury after it had decided a question of jurisdiction and in not keeping it to hear testimony on Thomasson's sanity alone. Early in the case Judge Hoffmeister ruled that the jury must determine Thomasson's legal residence before any testimony on his sanity alone could be heard. Lengthy testimony was introduced on the point of whether he was sane enough to change his residence.

"Jurors Roamed at Large."

Objection is made to a three weeks' intermission last August, when Judge Hoffmeister underwent a throat operation and "permitted the jurors to roam at large," according to the petition. Patrick H. Cullen and Taylor R. Young, counsel for plaintiff, should not have been allowed to congratulate the jury on the verdict, the petition avers, as such a display of friendliness impaired the future value of the jury in the case.

Immediately after Randolph Laughlin, head of Thomasson's counsel, filed the motion for a new trial, Cullen and Young objected on the ground that the case was not concluded but that only one issue — that of whether Thomasson is a resident of St. Louis or not—had been settled. The Court allowed the motion to be filed but suggested that Cullen and Young might file another motion to strike it out, which they did.

Both motions still stand. Judge Hoffmeister, assigned to Criminal Court last summer, will leave the civil division in which the case was heard next week, to be succeeded by Circuit Judge Hamilton. Judge Hamilton in turn will be succeeded in January by Charles B. Williams, elected recently. Because of such a situation, Judge Hoffmeister declined to set a sanity hearing immediately.

Litigation Since 1930.

Litigation involving Thomasson has burdened the courts of St. Louis and St. Louis County since his marriage in 1930 to Mrs. Grace Carolyn Mahood, divorcee 44 years his junior. Laughlin, in asking for a new hearing, charges that 85 days in the recent hearing were spent in "trying Mrs. Thomasson."

Thomasson and his wife were absent from court throughout the hearing, his cousel holding that to bring him in would be to surrender to a jurisdiction they questioned. They argued he had lived in Clayton after the marriage and was a legal resident of Illinois at the time of the trial.

Attorneys Cullen and Young have 28 contracts with relatives of Thomasson to get 50 per cent of anything that may come from his estate to the relatives. Their next step, they have announced, will be to obtain a hearing on his sanity, have the Court require him to be present for examination and seek appointment of a guardian.

After that, they told the jury, the guardian would seek to have his two marriages to Mrs. Mahood annulled, recover property lost or money expended since the marriage and conduct the estate for him the rest of his lifetime.

SECOND ST. LOUIS HUNTER VICTIM OF RABBIT FEVER

Charles Coello, 21 years old, is at Christian Hospital suffering from tularemia, commonly known as rabbit fever. This is the second case reported in St. Louis recently.

Coello, who lives with his parents at 752 East Thrush avenue, became ill several weeks ago following a hunting trip. He told his physician, Dr. S. A. Van Hoefen, that he handled rabbits after accidentally cutting his finger. Blood from a diseased rabbit entered the wound, causing the fever. Coello has responded to serum treatment and expects to leave the hospital this week.

Herbert Compton, 23, 2903 Macklind avenue, was discharged from Lutheran Hospital Friday after receiving treatment for tularemia. He scratched his hand on a barbed wire fence three weeks ago while hunting and subsequently handled rabbits afflicted with the disease.

Physicians who haev studied the disease, say it can prove fatal, and in some instances requires treatment for six months.

CITY ASKS R. F. C. FOR $2,500,000 TO COMPLETE BRIDGE

Formal Application for Loan to Finish Rail Approaches Signed by Mayor Miller and Nolte.

Formal application for a loan, up to a maximum of $2,500,000, for completion of rail approaches of Municipal Bridge and rehabilitation of the rail deck, has been made to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation by Mayor Miller and Comptroller Nolte.

It states that construction work can be started about 10 days after the loan is granted and can be finished within a year and the undertaking will become fully self-supporting when completed.

Plans for the additional approaches have been completed and bids received. The only preliminary remaining to be carried out, the R. F. C. was told, is agreement between the city and the Terminal, Missouri Pacific and Frisco railroads for easements for two western approaches over their rights-of-way.

An ordinance authorizing the application became effective on Nov. 19. The money is to be used for a western approach leading to the Union Station tracks, another one connecting with the Missouri Pacific, and one to the Illinois Transfer Railroad (a unit of the Terminal) in East St. Louis; also for laying tracks on the new East St. Louis Union Station approach and for new ties and rails on the main deck.

145 Men Can Start Work.

During the first three months of construction, 145 men will be employed directly, the application relates, with 195 men in the second quarter, 300 in the third and 280 in the last.

Working time will be limited as far as possible to 30 hours a week, except for those in executive and supervisory capacities, the city promises. It also agrees that preference in employment shall be given to qualified war veterans having dependents.

"Because of its location," says the application, "Municipal Bridge offers a more convenient facility for crossing the Mississippi River than the other bridges, and for that reason will be used almost entirely for passenger traffic from the East and for the bulk of the freight movements between the east and west sides of the river."

Gross income from the rail deck, after completion of the approaches, is expected to be $732,500 in the first full year and $1,023,500 in 1935 and thereafter, the Mayor and Comptroller declare. The first year's tolls, in their estimate, would consist of $500,000 guaranteed by the Terminal, $150,000 anticipated from the Missouri Pacific, $55,000 from the Alton & Southern Railroad and $27,500 from the Manufacturers' Railway. The latter two lines are using the crossing now.

Would Repay Loan in 10 Years.

A letter from President L. W. Baldwin of the Missouri Pacific, accompanying the application, expresses the opinion that his road would spend at least $100,000 a year in tolls. The estimate for 1935 and later consists of $650,000, Terminal; $220,000, Missouri Pacific: $98,500, Alton & Southern, and $55,000, Manufacturers. The Terminal will be credited with its guarantee of $500,000 a year until it is repaid for $1,370,000 advanced for the East St. Louis Union Station approach.

The balance of income will be available for repayment of the R. F. C. in quarterly or semiannual instalments. The application expresses belief that the R. F. C. can be repaid in less than 10 years. No more would be borrowed than necessary to meet the cost and the loan would be received in instalments, as needed.

Owing to the nature of security offered—assignment of rail tolls and the city's credit—the ctiy asks for the lowest possible rate of interest, not exceeding 5 per cent. It says it should get the loan for no more than it pays on its bonds, which have not drawn more than 4½ per cent interest for years. Cost of Municipal Bridge to date, exclusive of interest on bonds, carrying charges and taxes levied on the Illinois end, is stated as $9,170,000.

MAN, 86 YEARS OLD, KILLED BY MARKET STREET CAR

John Kahmann, 86 years old, was struck and killed by a Market street car yesterday when he apparently attempted to cross in front of it on Oakland avenue near the Forest Park greenhouses, where he was employed as a laborer.

Witnesses told police that Kahmann, who resided with a daughter at 4452A Arco avenue, was standing or walking north of the tracks at 5800 Oakland avenue when he started to run across. He was past the middle of the eastbound tracks, police reported, when the car, which was going east, struck him. The motorman was Willis Montgomery, 6454 Wise avenue.

Gravois Taxpayers' Meeting.

The Gravois District Taxpayers' Association will hold its regular meeting at Long School, Morganford road and Gravois avenue, at 8 o'clock tomorrow night. Members of the Board of Aldermen and Legislature have been invited to discuss relief for taxpayers.

ACTIVITIES OF BOY SCOUTS

SCOUTS' SAVINGS CLUB RECEIVING ENTRIES

Boys Have Chance to Earn Money to Pay for Summer Camp.

The first news of the 1933 camp season at the Boy Scouts' summer camp at Irondale, Mo., will be sent out this week when information about the Campers' Savings Club will go to all the scout troops.

The Campers' Saving Club was organized several years ago and provides a plan whereby each scout can, by systematic saving, pay his own way for a two weeks' stay at camp. The regular camp fee is $14, but if a scout joins the club this month and deopsits $2 regularly for seven months he will receive a $1.50 rebate when camp time comes.

Rebates of $1 and 75 cents will be given to scouts who join in January or February, respectively, after which time the club closes. If eight scouts from one troop, together with their scout master, attend camp at one time each scout receives a further reduction of $2.

Applications for membership in the club are now being received at scout headquarters. Each scout when he joins will be given a bank in which he can save his nickels and dimes for his monthly deposit. Scouts who join the club will be given preference in choice of sections at the camp.

Five sections will be held at regular two-week intervals beginning June 19 and closing Aug. 28. The camp is under the direction of M. D. Shippey. A winter camp will be held at Irondale during the Christmas holidays.

Troop Notes

Headquarters Notes.

December boards of review are scheduled as follows: Monday, Dec. 19, South district at Rose Fanning School, Inter-racial district at Banneker School; Tuesday, Dec. 20 West District at Ben Blewett Jr High School, Suburban District at Webster Groves High School, and North District at Farragut School; Wednesday, Dec. 21, Central District at Gallaudet School.

Boards of review begin at 7:30 o'clock and close at 9:30. Since this is the last meeting before which scouts can help their troop qualify for the president's award, all scouts who have not yet appeared before the board should do so. Scouts must bring their credentials and evidence that they have passed their tests with them.

West District.

At a court of honor, held at a parents' night meeting, Troop 61 awarded one tenderfoot, three second class, one first class and one star badge. Leroy Law was invested into the troop. Phil Thompson received a cooking kit for a troop contest and Harry Haeussler received a medal for ticket sales.

Troop 101, West Park Baptist Church, was defeated in a football game by Troop 132 by a 24 to 6 score on a hike held recently to Ferguson.

Eighteen scouts and Scoutmaster France Washburne of Troop 154, Sherman Park Community Center, held a three-day hike to Weldon Springs, Mo., over Thanksgiving. Scout Joseph Cook of Silver Fox patrol won the achievement award for passing the most tests.

South District.

Scouts Diehl, Kiebler, Linter and Schumann of Troop 68, Mt. Pleasant School, accompanied by Mr. Schaeffer, troop committeeman, gave a first aid demonstration last Tuesday before employes of the St. Louis County Water Co. The troop has recently reorganized into three patrols.

A party for all scouts in the South District will be held Saturday night at 8 o'clock at the Western Rowing Club, 5500 South Broadway. The committee, headed by A. W. Lantz, has designated the party as "Ye Wise Penny County Fair." All scoutmasters, assistant scoutmasters, troop committeemen and field executives, their wives and friends, have been invited.

An old timers' banquet will be held by Troop 198, St. John's Episcopal Church, on Wednesday, Dec. 14. In its seven years of existence the troop has graduated 137 scouts, all of whom will be invited.

North District.

Troop 33, St. Peter's Evangelical Church, began a new series of patrol and individual contests Friday night. Knot tying was the first in the series.

Troop, 88, Salem Evangelical Church, will hold a patrol contest on Wednesday, Dec. 14.

Central District.

Troop 118, Chouteau School, will have open house on Tuesday night, Dec. 13. Scouts John Anzulovich, Ted Liebig and Jauquin Hernandez have passed requirements for their scout tests.

Order of the Arrow.

A powwow for members of Shawnee Chapter, Order of the Arrow, a scout camping fraternity, will be held Wednesday night at the Knight sof Columbus Building, 3547 Olive street. Nischeneneyit Gegeyjumhet, mysterious leader, will be present.

Cub Notes.

Plans for organizing a Cub pack at Richmond Heights School were made at a meeting there last Friday. The phases of the work were explained to parents and prospective members by Mr. Reaves of scout headquarters.

ST. ROCH BOY SCOUT TROOP PRESENTS PLAY IN CHICAGO

400 Delegates at Regional Conference See "Mightier Than the Sword."

The St. Louis Council of Boy Scouts received outside commendation Tuesday night when scouts of Troop 98, St. Roch's Catholic Church, presented their play, "Mightier Than the Sword," before 400 delegates at the conference of the Seventh Region, Boy Scouts of America, held in Chicago.

The play, written by Dr. Forest H. Staley and directed by Dr. Staley and Mrs. George Gundlach, has been presented several times in St. Louis and was given in New York last spring at the national scout conference. It depicts the good influence which scout training should have on the statesmen of tomorrow.

The scouts, accompanied by Dr. Staley and C. H. Mills, activities director, left Monday night and returned Wednesday, staying in Chicago for a visit to the 1933 World's Fair grounds. There were 40 scouts in the group.

DROPS INDICTMENT AGANST M. B. PATTIZ

County Prosecutor Says There Is Insufficient Evidence in Arson Case.

An indictment for arson, filed against Max B. Pattiz, real estate dealer residing at 7272 Forsythe boulevard, University City, was nolle prossed by Prosecuting Attorney Castlen at Clayton yesterday, on ground of insufficient evidence.

Pattiz was arrested after a fire in his former $35,000 residence, 7440 Somerset avenue, Clayton, in March, 1931. Firemen reported they found six celluloid trays in the house, tissue paper, gauze and newspapers strewn about and detected a strong odor of gasoline.

No one was at home at the time and the fire, which caused $13,000 damage, virtually burned itself out because of a lack of oxygen. Pattiz denied knowing anything about the fire or the inflammable materials reported by firemen.

In dismissing the charge, the Prosecuting Attorney told Circuit Judge McElhinney he did not think the State's case was strong enough for further procedure.

FORGER IN LETTER ADMITS FRAUD ON TOBACCO FIRM

Expresses Penitence and Promises to Repay $25—Company Asks for His Arrest.

Thanks, regrets and "no hard feelings" were expressed by a forger in a letter to the victim, Brockmeyer Tobacco Co., 4001 South Broadway, which turned the letter over to police yesterday with a request for his arrest.

The wholesale tobacco concern had not suspected fraud until it received the letter, dated Nov. 30, signed "Jerry," and promising restitution. Investigation disclosed that a $25 check which "Jerry" had given for goods and $15.22 change, was worthless.

"I am very sorry for what I did," wrote the penitent, "but I had to do this so as to have a way to go and borrow some money. So please don't feel hard about me, for I am going to make this good, which is $25. So please believe in me, and I'll be in some time after the first of December. Thanking you, Jerry."

The site has a frontage of 100 feet on the south side of Morgan, with a depth of 105 feet on Eighth, comprising four 40x105-foot parcels. Stores occupy the corner parcel. A garage stands on the east 80 feet of the site. The other 40 feet are vacant.

Glueck and Stedlin own the Ninth street garage on the east side of Ninth street between Franklin avenue and Wash street, which will be operated in connection with the Morgan street parking lot.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment has voted to recommend passage of an ordinance providing for payment into Circuit Court of $2,107,899, the cost of widening Morgan street from Third street to Twelfth boulevard, and from Jefferson avenue to Spring avenue. Payment of the money into court will permit completion of the widening, which has been finished between Twlefth and Jefferson.

The purchase was made as a speculative investment, predicated on the benefits to accrue to Morgan street, as a result of the widening of the thoroughfare.

Park Drug Co. Lease.

The Park Drug Co., a chain concern, has taken a long lease on ground floor space at 522 Olive street, in the Commercial Building, with plans for another drug store. The lessor, the Commercial Building Co., was represented by Isaac T. Cook Co. The lessee was represented by Edward Glik.

The drug concern has plans for seven additional drug stores with fountain service in greater St. Louis, and for several new stores in outlying cities, within a radius of 150 miles of St. Louis. The concern now has stores at 711 Washington avenue and at 2720 North Fourteenth street.

Negotiations were reported pending for the building at 608 Olive street, owned by clients of the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. A nationally known drug concern, it is understood, has had this building in view.

Ground floor quarters, 50 by 150 feet, at the southeast corner of Washington avenue and Fifteenth street have been acquired under a five-year lease by the S. L. Friedman Co., wholesale dealer in ladies' cloaks, etc., through the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. The building is owned by Ruff estate. Possession of the new quarters, comprising two storerooms, will be taken Jan. 1. The concern has quarters at 1201 Washington avenue.

Inquiries on Brewing Plants.

With legalized beer in the offing, further inquiries have been reported concerning the buildings of the Independent Brewing Co., listed for sale with the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., representing the Bondholders' Protective Committee, and the Hyde Park group, owned by the St. Louis Brewing Association, of which C. Norman Jones is president. Interest is also manifested in other buildings with track facilities considered available with slight alterations for the manufacture of beer.

Attention is focused on the extensive plant formerly owned by the Bridge & Beach Manufacturing Co., occupying eight and one-third acres at Union boulevard and Brown avenue, in the northwest industrial region, regarded as susceptible to conversion for the manufacture of beer.

Union boulevard and Brown avenue is the center of the northwestern industrial district, including the plants of the General Motors Corporation, Fisher Body Co., United Drug Co., Pullman shops, Moloney Electric Co., Monarch Weatherstrip Co., Barton's Dyanshine, Kilgen Organ Co., Broderick & Bascom Wire Rope Co., General Electric warehouse, Standard Underground Cables, Metalcraft Corporation, the majority of which were brought to St. Louis as a result of the enterprise of the switch property department of the Mercantile Trust Co., now incorporated in the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co.

The Bridge & Beach plant entailed an investment in excess of $1,300,000.

The Bridge & Beach Manufacturing Co. maintains sales quarters in a section of the building under lease, subject to cancellation in event of the sale of the property. Other concerns also occupy space in the plant.

SAYS U. S. ROADS FALL SHORT OF SUPER CLASS

Road Builders' Association Makes Study of Extra Width of Highways.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. — The American Road Builders' Association declares that the United States is still concerned primarily with a stage of highway development that falls far short of the super-highway classification.

In a study of extra-width highway in State systems, just completed, T. H. Cutler, president of the association, said that analysis of these figures, which show only 3790 miles of road having more than two-lane width in the 48 State systems, indicates the sound wisdom with which highway funds are being allocated to a balanced program.

"With but slightly more than 1 per cent of the more than 3,000,000 miles of road in the country of greater than two-lane dimensions," he said, "it is obvious that State highway officials have followed an economically sound policy of widening. It is equally clear that widening is one of the next great steps in the total program of making the road fit traffic requirements."

The breakdown of the study made from the United States Bureau of Public Roads reveals that of the extra-width highway comprised in State highway systems, only 1385 miles are of the four-lane dimensions. It is this type which the general definition regards as the beginning of the super-highway.

Small Homes of Aluminum, Steel Predicted for Future

Final Reports of President's Conference Describes Houses, Fully Equipped and Ready for Assembly at Site.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Houses of steel and copper and even of aluminum as well as of wood and masonry, built at the factory with rooms such as the kitchen and bath completely equipped and the rest ready to be assembled at the site, are described in the final reports of the President's Conference on Home Building and Home Ownership, published a few days ago. The houses, which will be insulated against heat and cold and noise, cost perhaps only half as much as the present small house, and be placed in cities free from smoke, awaits merely the application of knowledge already largely in hand, the statement says.

The statement comes from a committee of nationally known scientists and engineers led by the late Dr. George K. Burgess, Director of the Bureau of Standards. It is supported by a careful analysis of practices and materials at present employed in small-house building which leaves no room for doubt of their relative wastefulness and inefficiency. For example, the committee shows that the adoption of the practice of welding pipe would permit the use of thinner sheet steel and eliminate the laborious hand threading at the site which now raises the cost of plumbing. This practice plus the possible reduction of numbers of pipes, fittings and fixtures by simplification and standardization, would in the opinion of one contractor who has installed a great deal of welded piping "reduce the cost of heating and plumbing installation by one-half."

Sloping Roof Condemned.

The committee's analysis takes no aspect of the present small house for granted, and concedes no authority to tradition. Beginning with the foundation and cellar and going through the walls and floors and finishes to the roof every feature of the house as we now know it is made to answer as to whether present materials and practices are less efficient than others that might be used. As a result, many things which we now take for granted are found wanting. The universal practice of fabrication at the site and the use of the sloping roof are condemned as costly and unnecessary and practical substitutes recommended. It is shown that some of our present heating practices are wasteful and that it is possible to reduce the cost of heating to the home owner and eliminate the dirt and the smoke nuisance. Again it is shown that present methods of garbage disposal are crude and expensive.

This final volume of the President's Conference reports, entitled "Housing Objectives and Programs," completes the program, formulated by the conference at its meeting in Washington last December, to raise the standard of American housing. The volume contains the reports of the six correlating committees, whose business was to consider the material assembled by the 25 fact-finding committees and to indicate how their findings could be translated into action.

The report of the Committee on Standards and Objectives, which was under the chairmanship of Lawrence Veiller, director of the National Housing Association, reveals the complex nature of housing—its dependence upon the neighborhood, the public utilities, the financing system, and the government of the community. Robert P. Lamont, former Secretary of Commerce, says in a foreword, the statement of objectives "once for all proves the impossibility of producing acceptable housing by isolated individual effort."

The reports of the Committees on Legislation and Administration, on Education and Service and on Organization Programs deal with the problem of getting knowledge applied in order that proper standards of housing may be realized. The first committee measures the possibilities of law in improving housing, analyzes the weakness of present laws, indicates the need for improvement in administration, and compiles a common-sense manual on the drawing up and promotion of legislation. It emphasizese, however, the desirability of action by extra-legal means, as being both surer and more successful. Its report leads, therefore, naturally to those of the Committees on Education and Organization Programs, which list the agencies and the methods for molding public opinion and leading it to realize for itself higher standards of housing.

The Committee on Research indicates the gaps in our present knowledge that must be filled if housing is to be all that it ought to be. Throughout the reports in this volume runs the demand for a permanent Housing Institute to inspire and guide the many agencies that must be mobilized if the far-reaching program outlined by the President's conference is to be put into effect.

HOW RED CROSS GIVES FLOUR TO THE NEEDY

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Many small millers, as well as hungry thousands, have been benefited by the 85,000,000 bushels of Farm Board wheat the Red Cross is distributing, William M. Baxter Jr., distribution director, said today.

Baxter was explaining the system used in distributing the flour and the work of making it. It has been supplied to chapters in all but about 100 of the country's 3500 counties, he said, as much as possible through millers in the vicinity.

Baxter cited the Pennsylvania miller, with a water-powered mill of about 20 barrels a day capacity, who asked for wheat to grind, but wanted it held up until "the water got up to the crick." When high-water came, he notified the Red Cross and the next batch of wheat for his neighborhood was sent him. It gave him a month's work.

Work for 800 Mills.

Baxter pointed out that some 55,000,000 bushels of the wheat, worth about $25,000,000, had already been utilized and that, as a result, some $8,000,000 had been paid to millers, railroads and flour-bag makers. Milling and shipping charges are paid by the millers, who are then repaid with more wheat which they may sell for cash. About 800 of the country's 4000 mills have been given, such work.

The wheat organization, Baxter also said, has taken the burden of much emergency relief work and the pressure of great need has set up some speed records for delivery. Wheat is milled only as flour is requisitioned.

In answer to a recent demand from Puerto Rico for 5000 barrels of flour, he cited, wheat was moved from elevators in Buffalo, processed, bagged, moved by railroad to New York, shifted to lighters and trans-shipped to a Puerto Rico-bound freighter in 41 hours from the time the telegram was delivered in Chicago.

Aid Sent to Alaska.

Alaska's need, too, suddenly became acute recently, Baxter said. Three small towns—Kalawock, Craig and Hydaburg—needed flour for the winter and the last boat arriving there before the harbors froze was to leave Seattle the day after the wire was received here. Nevertheless, 110 barrels—the winter's supply—was put aboard the S. S. Zapora within 15 hours.

Rockford, Ill., got 660 barrels of flour from Omaha wheat Oct. 28, two days after an emergency request. Pontiac, Mich., and Statesville, N. C., among others, also asked for and got flour in their emergencies. In some Montana counties wheat had to be shipped in time to be trucked over mountain trails before they were snowed in.

Indian reservations have also felt the economic stress, Baxter said; more than 60 have been supplied with flour.

UTAH FARM BUREAU FAVORS NATIONWIDE WHEAT POOL

By the Associated Press.

OGDEN, Utah, Dec. 3.—A plan for a nation-wide wheat pool which would include every grower and thus eliminate competition, will be presented to the National Farm Bureau convention in Chicago next week by officers of the Utah Farm Bureau.

The plan is sponsored by William A. Shuldberg of Preston, Idaho, president of the Intermountain Grain Growers, Inc., a Federal Farm Board co-operative with extensive elevator properties. Shuldberg estimated it would save $50,000,000 a year to wheat growers in handling charges and freight. Under its provisions the farmer would be guaranteed the world price, plus the tariff, for wheat sold on the domestic market, and the world price for that disposed of in the world market.

"The basic principle of the plan is that the farmer maintains control of his wheat at all times," Shuldberg said. "The plan can become operative only when every grower signs a contract stating that he will handle his grain through the one organization. Thus competition of every kind is eliminated. The country-wide facilities now under the control of the Farmers' National Grain Corporation and other local organizations of the Federal Farm Board already give a perfect set-up for the administration of such a plan and make it possible to put it into effect immediately."

RULING SOUGHT IN BUILDING AND LOAN RECEIVERSHIP CASE

Homestead Association Asks Whether Receiver May Accept Stock on Purchase Price of Real Estate.

The following letter with reference to the application in the receivership case, now pending, of Matilda E. Musler vs. Homestead Building and Loan Association of St. Louis, which contemplates accepting stock of the association in payment for property owned by it, has been received by the stockholders of the association:

"To the Stockholders of Homestead Building and Loan Association of St. Louis:

"We have filed an application in the receivership case Matilda E. Musler vs. Homestead Building and Loan Association of St. Louis, in Equity No. 161911-B in the Circuit Court of the City of St. Louis, for instructions as to whether or not the receiver should accept the stock to apply on the purchase price of real estate owned by the association, and if such authority be given, requesting the Court to fix the basis of value to be placed upon this stock in accepting it for credit upon the purchase price of such real estate.

"The reasons for presenting this application are obvious. Many stockholders would prefer to use their stock to apply upon the purchase price of real estate which they could take, manage themselves and dispose of individually, rather than to wait until it is possible for the receiver to sell this real estate and distribute the proceeds to stockholders. If a considerable number of stockholders were to do this, it would greatly facilitate the liquidation of the assets of the association. The demoralized condition of the real estate market makes it exceedingly difficult to sell real estate for cash. The burden of carrying this large amount of real estate, i. e., the payment of taxes and insurance, the cost of repairs, etc., has been a very heavy drain upon the association.

"This application will be heard by Hon. Robert W. Hall, Circuit Judge, in Division No. 3 of the St. Louis Circuit Court, Civil Court Building, St. Louis, Mo., at 10 a. m. Friday, Dec. 16, 1932, at whch time these matters will be determined. All stockholders are privileged to attend this hearing and be heard if they so desire. You are not obligated to attend—it is purely optional with you. However, the Court and the receiver are interested in knowing the wishes and desires of the stockholders in this matter. We shall be pleased to receive an expression on this matter from any stockholder by letter or at this hearing.

"Yours very truly,
"GEORGE W. WAGNER,
"Receiver, Homestead Building and Loan Association."

RECEIVER APPOINTED FOR 24-FAMILY APARTMENT

On petition of the Lenore Realty & Investment Co., a receiver was appointed by Circuit Judge Hall yesterday for a 24-family apartment building at 2051-55 Maury avenue and 4561-65 Flad avenue. The Milford Realty & Investment Co., owner, consented to the action, and the court named Oliver J. Kratz as receiver, with Ben L. Shifrin and Max Sigoloff as his counsel.

The Lenore Co. alleged that it is the legal holder of notes issued against the property, but a prior lien of about $80,000 is liable to be foreclosed, which would endanger petitioner's security. The property yields $1200 a month, the suit states.

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 3.—Marshal Henri Petain, the "Savior of Verdun" and one of the world's greatest soldiers, today accepted membership as a private on the staff of Gen. W. McK. Evans, commander-in-chief of the department, Army of Northern Virginia, United Confederate Veterans.

Marshal Petain, who represented France at the Yorktown Sesquicentennial last year, expressed admiration for the Army of Northern Virginia. Gen. Evans who heard the great French soldier, extended him an invitation to join his staff with the honorary rank of Brigadier-General. The letter of acceptance declined the honorary rank and asked that he be enrolled as a private.

Works 5 Days, Owes Company.

By the Associated Press.

ABERDEEN, Wash., Dec. 3.—Joe Dubrovick worked five days and two hours in a logging camp near here and then called for his time. The time keeper's sheet showed he had bucked 67,010 feet of timber which, at 11 cents a thousand feet, gave him $7.37. But charges against him totaled $8.15, including $6 for board, $1 for bed, $1 for hospital fee and 15 cents for first aid. Dubrovick owed the company 78 cents. "It's a good thing I quit when I did," he said.

ARCHITECTS' EXHIBIT IS WELL ATTENDED

The architects' and artists' affiliated exhibit, on display in the St. Louis Mart Building, Twelfth boulevard at Spruce street, has attracted an unusual number of visitors since the opening. Members of the committee in charge of hanging the exhibit have expressed themselves as being more than pleased with the interest shown by the general public.

Although all types of buildings are represented, churches receive special attention. The small chapels have been treated with a simplicity suggesting that of the little parish churches of England.

In order to amplify the ecclesiastical side of the exhibit, a special feature has been arranged in the display of stained glass and mosaic. presented by two St. Louis firms. Examples of various styles of glass design have been placed against the windows to allow light to bring out the beauty of their colors.

There is a particularly fine example of grisaille work used in England in the great churches of the perpendicular period. Also there are several pieces illustrative of the strongly colored glass of the earlier centuries.

IN MEMORIAM

BENJ. F. ANTON—In loving memory of our darling husband and father, who passed away one year ago, Dec. 7, 1931:

A year full of tears, lonely and blue,
Life is so empty without you;
A wonderful husband, a pal of my heart,
A loving daddy, life's dearest part;
Your memory cherished, you lived not in vain,
Our dearest possessions bearing your name.
Death did not sever the broken hearts it left,
For you were ours and we remember, though all the world forgets.
Sadly missed by your broken-hearted
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

CODY, JOHN—In memory of our dearly beloved son and brother, who died Dec. 1, 1927.

Our lips can never tell how we miss you,
Our hearts know not what to say;
God knows we miss you, Johnnie,
In our home that is lonesome today.
Sadly missed by MOTHER, BROTHER AND SISTERS.

CUMMINGS, JOSEPHINE F.—In memory of our dear mother who departed this life one year ago Dec. 4, 1931:

We often sit and think of you
When we are all alone
For memory is the only thing
That life can call its own:
Sadly missed by HER CHILDREN.

Peaceful be thy rest, dear mother;
It is sweet to breathe thy name.
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.
DAUGHTERS AND SONS.

HUFNAGEL, FRED—In loving memory of my dear husband and father who died Dec. 1, 1931:

God in His mercy called you home,
We bowed to His sweet will;
We miss the sound of your voice, so dear
And the touch of your hand, now still.
Sadly missed by his WIFE, CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

HUGHES, WILLIAM—Who died two years ago Dec. 6, 1930:

Gone dear husband, gone forever,
How I miss your smiling face,
But you left me to remember,
None on earth can take your place
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
Sadly missed by wife,
KATHERINE HUGHES.

KAY, MARGARET—In loving memory of Mrs. Margaret Kay who died Dec. 7, 1930. Mass Wednesday, Dec. 7, at 7:45, at Church of the Presentation, St. Johns station:

In silence she suffered
In patience she bore
Till God called her home to suffer no more.
Sadly missed by her

SALESMEN WANTED

AN UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY!

One of the oldest, strongest, largest life insurance companies, offers men desirous of doing bigger things an opportunity to become profitably and permanently established in our business which is one of the greatest, most important and least affected by general conditions in the world.

We appreciate that numbers of capable executives, business men and salesmen find it impossible to make a worthwhile business connection today. To such men we say, "Get into the life insurance business, where many of our new men are already making good." Life insurance as an institution has demonstrated to the world that a life insurance policy is worth every dollar it is written for in good or bad times.

Conservative leaders in our business predict that the next ten years will be a golden period for the sale of life insurance. It is already comparatively easy to sell life insurance and annuity policies. To those who appreciate the uncertainty of a salaried position and who have the capacity to understand the greatness of life insurance we ask that you investigate our offer whereby you can build a steadily growing income which may be continued for some years even after you have ceased to work. Applicants for the position will be required to furnish highest references in connection with their past business record.

Experience is not essential. We will provide the necessary training.

CHRISTMAS GIFT
A home is about the best present you can give; it's something worth while; besides being an investment, it is the environment that is beneficial to every citizen, especially children. Look at 623 Locksley place, Sherwood Forest, and if it appeals to you, let us tell you how it can be bought; this house isn't one that is merely for sale if someone will pay the price. The owner has sold his business and made an Eastern connection, so means business. We also have other homes that are actively on the market and must be sold. Maybe one of them is exactly what you want. Get our more or less confidential list and look it over.

BOY, 16, ON STAND TELLS OF HAMMER KILLING OF WOMAN

Bertrand Arnold Jr. Beat Step-Grandmother to Death to Get Auto to Show Friends, He Says.

VICTIM'S RELATIVES MAKE PLEA FOR HIM

Defendant in Chicago Trial Denies He Had Ill Will Toward Her — Decision Up to Judge.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—In court today, 16-year-old Charles Bertrand Arnold Jr. told how and why he killed his step-grandmother, Mrs. Ellen O. Saxe.

He has pleaded guilty to murder. The only question to be decided is the severity of his sentence. The decision is to be made by Chief Justice John Prystalski after considering the evidence presented today.

The youth almost ran to the witness stand when his name was called. Up to that time he had sat in the crowded courtroom an interested spectator, nervously chewing his thumbs, as his father, his stepmother and the brother of his stepmother described the type of boy young "Bertie" was. Philip Saxe, his step-uncle, made a plea for mercy for the boy who on the night of Nov. 18 killed his step-grandmother with a hammer because she would not permit him to have her automobile to go to a church dance.

Young Arnold, sitting on the edge of the witness chair, showed great willingness to tell his story. Defense Attorney Weymouth Kirkland asked him about his stepmother. The boy replied: "I always regarded her the same as if she was my real mother. I never considered her my stepmother."

The boy seemed to have gained confidence from the testimony of his step-uncle.

Son of Victim Defends Him.

"He is only a boy, after all," Philip Saxe, son of the murder victim, declared. "I believe he has every right in the world to be given an opportunity to lead a normal life."

"Do you think that would have been the thought of your mother?" Attorney Kirkland asked Saxe. "Those would be the words from her own lips," he replied.

Attorney Kirkland recalled to the defendant the testimony earlier in the day of his school chum, Norton Jonathan. He was reminded that on the day of the killing he had made remarks about having the car for the dance, and about having a checking account at his disposal.

"Why did you make those statements?" Bertie was asked. "I found that a story like that would make my school chums notice me more," the boy answered.

He declared that he always had difficulty getting recognition among his school friends. Other questions disclosed that his step-grandmother helped him in his school work, that he liked her and that she loved him.

"Did you have your mind set on the use of that car for the night?"

"Well, in a way, I did."

Events on Day of Murder.

He related details of first meeting his step-grandmother on her last visit, of attending a football game on the day of the murder and of having a snowball fight afterwards. That evening he had dinner at a friend's home, but received a phone call from his mother telling him to come home because it was getting late.

"Bert, when you went home that night, did you have any intention of killing your grandmother?"

"No, sir."

After returning home, the boy said his grandmother took his father and stepmother to the station in her car. He had gone to his room to dress and when he returned to the living room his grandmother had returned and was sitting on the couch. He said he felt friendly for her and had no intention of killing her then.

"I went into the room," he continued. "She stood up. I asked her for the car and she said: 'I told you before that you couldn't have the car' and she slapped me. She said: 'Don't ask for it again.'"

He Grabs Hammer.

"What did you do then?"

"I grabbed a hammer and struck her."

He could not remember how many times he had struck her.

"What reason did you have for striking her?"

"None, except my temper."

"What is the next thing you remember?"

"She was still on the couch and seemed to be breathing. I left her that way and went out of the room. I saw the keys to the car and took them and got into the car.

The boy said he did not stay long at the dance because he became frightened. He returned home, took his father's wedding ring "to remember him by," and then tried to wipe up the blood stains in the living room.

"Do you realize how terrible this deed is?"

"I do."

MILITANT LIBERAL

ARTHUR G. HAYS.

SAYS NEW AMERICAN CREED IS REPRESSION

Arthur G. Hays, Civil Liberties Union Attorney, Here for Address Tonight.

A new American creed, born of intolerance and nourished by repressive measures and prejudices, has developed in this country Arthur Garfield Hays of New York, attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, said last night at the Park Plaza Hotel. Hays, who is the Liberal Forum speaker tonight at the Y. M. H. A.-Y. W. H. A., Union boulevard and Enright avenue, defined what he termed the modern "Declaration of Dependence," as follows:

"All men are created wicked and are endowed by their Creator with certain limited privileges. Among these are life, if you don't drink; liberty, if you conform, and the pursuit of gloom.

"To secure these privileges governments were instituted among men deriving their just powers from the Ku Klux Klan, the Anti-Saloon League, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the Daughters of the American Revolution, anti-vice societies, and every variety of busy-body and crank."

With Darrow at Dayton.

A militant advocate of freedom of expression, Hays was associated with Clarence Darrow and Dudley Field Malone in the Scopes evolution trial at Dayton, Tenn.; represented the Countess Cathcart in her fight to enter the United States; was involved in the Harlan (Ky.) mine controversy, and constantly is representing "unpopular groups."

"Intolerance isn't sectional," he continued, "because it's based on prejudices and self-interest. There's just as much intolerance in New York as there is in Dayton; based on different ideas—or lack of ideas—but intolerance just the same.

"Why, we are witnessing today in this country the development of religion through ignorance; morality through law; government through acquiescence, and hypocrisy through convention."

Hays, active, blunt-spoken, blew a smoke ring, punched it to pieces with his pipe.

"Human beings let people alone," he remarked, "so long as they don't tread on their toes or excite their emotions.

"That's why virile emotionalist groups are usually the repressed groups. They step on the toes of their communities.

Says Union Is Non-Partisan.

The lawyer mentioned that the Civil Liberties Union has protested against any attempt to bar the Communist hunger marchers from Washington; hastened to add his organization is non-partisan; interested only in the preservation of human rights; not in factional "labels."

"We are not advocating the march," he explained, "but the right to hold peaceable assemblies. You see, it's repression that brings out radicalism and fear of what might happen leads often to illegal repressive measures."

Illustrations of such "fear measures," Hays said, are to be found in the martial procedure employed to rout the "bonus army" in Washington and the armed resistance arrayed against the striking Southern Illinois coal miners in their attempted invasion of Franklin County last August.

Hays, who is 50, said that "law should govern acts; not principles" and is inclined to the opinion that our society is developing towards Fascism rather than Communism. In Russia, he added, has occurred a shift in moral values marked by intolerance and repression so that his organization, if it existed there, would be defending "repressed capitalistic groups."

Much of his past legal work has been an attempt to recover patents and possessions seized in this country during the World War as "alien property," but he concedes that this has become a lost cause.

DRYS APPEAL FOR A STAND AGAINST BEER AND REPEAL

Leaders in Open Letter to Congressmen Say Votes in Last Election Were for Bread, Not Liquor.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Four of the leading organizations supporting the prohibition laws united tonight in an open letter to members of the House asking votes against "all attempts" to repeal the eighteenth amendment or legalize beer.

The letter was signed by F. Scott McBride, general superintendent, and Edward B. Dunford, attorney of the Anti-Saloon League; Ella A. Boole, president, and Izora Scott, legislative representative of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union; Clarence True Wilson, executive secretary, and Deets Pickett, research secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, and William S. Chase, general superintendent of the International Reform Federation.

"The Democratic victory was not a wet mandate, but a command to remedy the depression," the letter said in part. "The fact that Gov. Roosevelt carried every dry State in the country, except Maine, indicates that the major issue was bread, not beer, and the prohibitionists, having no effective way of voting against beer, voted for bread."

Referring to referenda on prohibition, carried in each instance by anti-prohibitionists in the recent election, the latter said there was seldom a major spokesman for the drys.

"You should not be influenced," the letter said, "to betray your constituents, if they elected you as a dry, and if they thought they could trust you, no matter what pressure the liquor traffic and its advocates might bring against you."

It added that because both major party platforms had wet planks many prohibitionists voted to express themselves on the economic issue without reference to prohibition.

Separately, Mrs. Boole in a telegram tonight to members of Congress who in the past have supported prohibition, asked that they vote for retention of the eighteenth amendment and "adequate appropriations" for enforcement.

Prohibition Still Can Be Saved, Dr. Poling Declares.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Under the heading "We Have Just Begun to Fight," the allied forces tonight issued a statement saying, "We believe that the eighteenth amendment, or the cause for which it stands, can be saved and advanced without a subversive policy."

"Unmistakably the recent elections bring to the cause of national prohibition a new occasion," said the statement released by Dr. Daniel A. Poling.

Although the statement said it was not the time to indicate the details of what the organization believed should be the dry strategy, it "restated" certain principles as follows:

"First: We are against repeal of the eighteenth amendment and we shall fight accordingly

"Second: We are against any measure for 'legalizing' beer, or for liberalizing the Volstead act, that circumvents the Constitution."

"Also we shall have no part in any program of mere obstruction," the allied forces stated, continuing with this illustration:

"If we could at least hold the eighteenth amendment in the Constitution by 13 states against 35, the victory would be worse than hollow. Such a program would be repugnant to the ideals and spirit of American democracy. Nullification, direct and complete, if not revolution, would be the result."

Drys were urged to unite in a fight on any bill providing for legalization of beer or for repeal of the eighteenth amendment in the short session of Congress.

Pointing to opposition claims that the recent election was a mandate from the people to repeal the eighteenth amendment, the statement said that if that were so "then certainly there is a mandate equally binding to keep out the saloon and to protect dry territory."

"Both party platforms carried these specific pledges," it continued. "No solution calling for repeal of the eighteenth amendment can be submitted or even considered in good faith that does not make provision, definite and adequate, against return of the saloon and for protection of dry territory.

ARMY FLYER KILLED IN CRASH

Lieut. Darnell succeeded in saving himself by a parachute leap, but Lieut. Purser became tangled in the wreckage of his plane. The accident was the first at the field here, home of the Third Attack Group.

METHODIST GROUP DECIDES THIS ISN'T HYMN WRITING AGE

Spends Four Years Selecting Songs for Hymnal but Includes Very Few New Ones.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 3.—Thirty-five persons who ought to know have decided this isn't a hymn-writing age.

As representatives of three Methodist denominations, the 35 have spent the last four years deciding the songs some 16,000,000 Methodists will sing after 1934, when a revised Methodist hymnal will be issued.

They found, regretfully, according to Dr. John W. Langdale of New York, chairman of the editorial committee of the revision commission, that modern song-writers don't produce effective hymns. Hundreds of budding composers submitted their works, but very, very few were considered worthy of a place in the new hymnal.

As to what songs the commission selected, there was not a word except that the old favorites would predominate and that the folk-music of Wales will be found perhaps more frequently than any other.

The commission in all considered 8000 hymns, old and new. Just to be doubly sure of their choices, they sang until their throats were raw.

LOEB AND LEOPOLD START SCHOOL IN PENITENTIARY

JOLIET, Ill., Dec. 3.—Nathan Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb, the murderers of Bobby Franks in Chicago a few years ago, started a correspondence school in the penitentiary today.

For those convicts who want to go on with their high school education there will be mimeographed lessons in algebra, foreign languages, physics, history, geometry and science. There are no classroom facilities. Home work is done in the cells, research in the prison library. Leopold and Loeb are two of the original faculty of the prison correspondence school.

They are serving terms of 99 years plus life imprisonment.

North American Utopia Envisioned by 'Technocrat'

Howard Scott Predicts Day of No Prices, Wages or Debts; Four-Hour Day, Four-Day Week, Ten-Months Year.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 3.—A North American civilization with a standard of living 10 times higher than in 1929 was envisioned today by Howard Scott, leader of the school of "Technocracy" engineers at Columbia University.

Scott, a consulting engineer in the construction of Muscle Shoals, addressed the City Club in the first presentation to a lay group of the statistical detail of "Technocracy."

"Technocrats" are a group of engineers and technicians who have engaged in a 12-year study of the effects of the machine on man's employment, reducing his consumption and production in industry in terms of energy. Their findings are related to technological unemployment.

No Prices, Debts or Wages.

The high living standard depicted by Scott would evolve from a social order without a price system, debts or wages; but where persons between the ages of 25 and 45 would do all the work in 660 hours a year—or in four hours a day, four days a week, 10 months a year.

"North America is the only continental area in the world with the trained personnel, the equipment and the geological resources to move the human race into a new era," Scott said.

It was against a background of machine-made gloom that Scott erected his vision of the future.

While man is multiplying the means of production by an "unidirectional and irreversible" technology, he is increasing unemployment in a "price system that depends on debt for the increase of wealth," Scott said.

Saying there is no way to produce wealth under the price system except by debt, Scott declared, "The world must throw overboard all its wishful thinking from Aristotle to Marx, including economics, the pathology of debt."

"The debt merchants whom society has placed in control on the bridge are trying to say in Portuguese to us engineers in the boiler room that we must reverse the engine or the ship will go on the rocks, while we engineers are trying to explain in Malay that the engine has no reverse gear."

Committed to No Theory.

He declined to commit the "technocrats" to any theory of what the future social order should be like, except to indicate that a unit of energy might replace the price system.

Noting that oscillations from prosperity to depression have been growing more violent, Scott predicted that the next depression will "swing from the maximum to zero."

The "technocrats," he said, had forecast in 1920 that there would be a crash in 1930 and had missed it but a year.

There is no end in sight for technological development, he declared, citing numerous new inventions and the possibility of tapping new sources of energy by equalizing the temperatures of the sea water, or by extracting solar energy from the air.

"There is a technological backlog overhanging this country which would make the material backlog in our warehouses look like sawdust," he said.

Soviet to Sell Oil in India.

MOSCOW, Dec. 3.—Soviet Russia has extended its world-wide sale of oil to India. The oil export trust, it was announced tonight, has just concluded a long-term contract with representatives of the Western India Oil Distributing Co. for sale of more than 1,000,000 tons of Soviet oil products.

DEUSER SPENT $1038 IN SHERIFF CAMPAIGN

Largest Amount Reported so Far in County; 22 Others File Statements.

Twenty-two candidates for county and township offices in St. Louis County in the general election Nov. 8 had filed campaign expense accounts up to yesterday. Candidates have until next Thursday to file statements of expenditures.

The largest expense account filed thus far is that of Philip G. Deuser (Rep.), successful candidate for Sheriff, who reported that he spent $1038. His Democratic opponent, Henry Beckmann, spent $189.

The smallest amount—$10—was spent by John J. Fahey, Democratic candidate for Constable, St. Ferdinand Township, who was defeated by R. H. Baumer (Rep.). Baumer spent $50. $44,000 SPURIOUS BILLS FOUND ON HOSTILE BROTHERS

Natives of Austria Quarreled Over Division; One an Expert Engraver.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—More than $44,000 in spurious currency was seized today following the arrest of two brothers, Edward Molnar, 28 years old, and John, 33, described by Federal agents as principals in one of the largest counterfeit plots ever uncovered here.

A quarrel between the brothers, natives of Austria, over division of proceeds from their illicit operations led to the denouement.

The younger Molnar was arrested a week ago in Omaha after attempting to pass a spurious $10 bill. He confessed his part in the plot to Harry Cooper, an Omaha Federal agent, and implicated his brother, who was seized today in Chicago.

In John Molnar's hotel room two loaded pistols and keys to three safety deposit boxes were found. The latter were searched and yielded the counterfeit currency, plates and considerable genuine money, which authorities said evidently represented profits.

Edward said that John first broached the counterfeiting proposition to him, persuading him to prepare the plates while John was to pass the spurious bills. Edward said that he had studied art at the University of Vienna in Austria and that he was an expert photo-engraver.

Cooper quoted Molnar as saying John insisted that his younger brother be satisfied with only 10 per cent of the profits. The brothers quarreled and separated, Edward going to St. Louis and other cities before reaching Omaha.

79,000 SEE VIDAL AND BUCKLER LEAD ARMY TO 20-0 VICTORY OVER NAVY

TRIUMPH IS FOURTH IN SUCCESSION FOR CADETS

By Alan Gould.

Associated Press Sports Editor.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 3.—Simultaneous with a heat wave that made this colorful December setting seem like a mid-summer illusion, Army's football forces turned on the power today and routed the Navy, 20 to 0, with a spectacular climax to the Eastern gridiron season.

Before a notable gathering and a sell-out crowd of 79,000 spectators who found overcoats, furs and blankets superfluous in 65-degree weather, the Cadets put on a dazzling drive to victory after checking the Navy's opening bid for a touchdown. Gathering momentum despite the heat and the gallant defense of the Midshipmen, Army's superior speed, greater power and deception combined to give the Soldiers their most decisive victory in this classic series since 1914.

"Pick" Vidal, spark plug quarterback of the Army and an outstanding star of the season, galvanized the Cadets upon his entry into the game late in the first period. From there on, his brilliant leadership, combined with the slashing running of Jack Buckler, the Texas Terror, combined to keep the Army in command most of the time and engineer three touchdowns, one in the second period and two in the final quarter as Buckler ran wild.

Despite a steady flow of replace-

By J. Roy Stockton.

Benny La Presta, the fleet-footed son of Italy, who kept the sturdiness of his ancestors by galloping over the rocky hills of the Ozarks, made his last slithering run on a Billiken football field yesterday afternoon. But before the galloping jack rabbit from Crystal City hung up his helmet of blue and white and his gridiron robes of royal blue, he won a football game for St. Louis University.

It was a dank, dark day, but when La Presta finally limped off the field, casting his mud-smeared helmet to the bench and shaking the hand of Coach Chile Walsh, the crowd of 8000 drizzle-dampened spectators forgot the rain and the clouds and the mud and made the misty welkin ring with the cheers for the sturdy Italian hero who had led the Billikens to a 19-6 victory over the Tigers of Missouri University.

La Presta Hero of Game.

Make no mistake about it. La Presta was the hero of the afternoon. He accepted the challenge of the Tigers when the Billiken prospects were about as dull and dismal as the weather. The stalwarts from Columbia had just taken a 6-0 lead and had seized their first opportunity so skillfully that the crowds apprehensively wondered if Frank Carideo's team had finally reached its peak and was to close a bad season by giving the Billikens a sound spanking.

Benny Scores on Kickoff.

Missouri kicked off after the touchdown and the ball, propelled by the hefty boot of Carl Johanningmeier, sailed far down into St. Louis territory. The ball as luck would have it—good luck—fell in the arms of La Presta, and that was the turning point of the game. The Galloping Rabbit received the ball on his 12-yard line and away he sped. And as quickly as he gained momentum on that slippery, slithering gridiron, so quickly did his interference form. It was a great run and an intelligent one.

Less courageous players and players with less football intuition would have darted for the side lines. But not La Presta. Like a battering ram of old he traveled straight down the field, giving neither to the right or left. Tigers were sent sprawling in all directions as the interference of the well-coached eleven did its work and soon La Presta had a clear field to continue his 88-yard run to a touchdown.

La Presta quickly converted the extra point with a place kick and the Billikens were ahead, 7 to 6, never to be headed, a Billiken team inspired by the great run of La Presta and playing its best game of the season.

There were other great deeds before the final gun barked to send the Billikens jubilant to their dressing rooms, but La Presta's run, a killing thrust when it was needed the most, stood out above everything as the high light of the afternoon.

Carl Pike shared the backfield

Stanford Officials Deny Reports Warner Will Resign; Alumni Group Said to Want Nevers

By the Associated Press.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Dec. 3.—Dr. Thomas A. Storey, head of the Stanford University physical education department, and Graduate Manager Al Masters, both members of the board of athletic control, denied today reports that Glenn S. (Pop) Warner would give up his job as head football coach.

The denials followed reports after the Pittsburgh-Stanford game quoting Warner as saying "certain alumni had become too bothersome and would not be satisfied" until he had been supplanted by his assistant, Ernie Nevers.

"We are wholly satisfied with Mr. Warner's season," Storey said. "It is one of the best he has had at Stanford. The students, faculty and players are grateful for his work. We do not measure a man's ability by his wins or losses. He has given us the type of work we want."

"Pop has never told anyone in the Athletic Board he has been harassed," Masters said, "if any action is to be taken it must originate with Warner. The board will not act. Pop has no reason to fear the alumni. The Athletic Board hires him, not the alumni, and if the board is pleased, why worry?"

WRAY'S COLUMN

A Real Ring Hero.

THERE'S a Carnegie medal coming to our John Schwake, for saving a life. John rushed in at a critical moment and rescued the Boxing Game in St. Louis. True, there wasn't much life left in the old sport; but such as it was, John preserved it.

John Schwake.

When John refused Boxing Commissioner Taylor's offer to award him the verdict in the Carnera fight Friday night, following a "foul" which so handicapped Schwake that he had to be helped to the dressing room, he made the game safe for the future.

Had he accepted the verdict and had the crowd gone home having seen only the fraction of the 10 rounds it paid to witness, you can almost imagine the loud beefing of the ring fans as they trudged out of the Coliseum: "It's always the same old thing—you never get a run for your money;" "looks like a frame-up to me;" "just another set-up for Primo;" "that's the last time—POSITIVELY the last!" All this and more. Probably boxing, with one foot in the grave, would have slipped the other foot in and disappeared for the winter.

Refused to "Foul Out."

AS it was, after half an hour Schwake who spurned the offers to take the verdict and go home, returned to the ring and put up a gallant though hopeless fight under a handicap, remaining gamely in the ring until stopped in the seventh round.

Not many fighters in Schwake's position would have refused the commissioner's offer. "The crowd came to see a fight, not a fluke," grumbled John. "I'm not going to foul out on my friends."

Schwake was not getting much out of the fight financially, and his action was really deserving of recognition. The National Boxing Association could do worse than commend him for his courage, for his action will serve as a tonic, both here and elsewhere.

There's too little of this sort of spirit abroad in the fight world. Which may explain its moribund condition.

Auburn Out of Hunt For Title After 20-20 Tie With South Carolina

By the Associated Press.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 3.—Auburn's dreams of a national football title, or even an unchallenged Southern Conference championship to climax its fine gridiron comeback, were shattered today, broken by a relentless and resolute South Carolina eleven which rushed from behind with a last-period offensive to tie the Plainsmen, 20—20.

Trailing by 13 points, and with only two gallant goal line defenses to show for its first half efforts, the Gamecocks rallied in the third quarter to score once on a 60-yard drive after the kickoff had been returned 35 yards, and then battered their way in short takes to two more touchdowns in the final frame to deadlock the contest.

Auburn's all-America star, Captain Jimmy Hitchcock, was a star, and so were Phipps and Dupree, but the real hero of the thrilling battle was Harold Mauney, a 164-pound sophomore South Carolina quarterback, who never gave up and finally filled his mates with the inspiration that led them to finish on even terms with the heavily-favored Plainsmen.

Mauney, almost single-handed, scored Carolina's first tally. He raced the kickoff from his 5 almost to midfield, and nearly slipped loose for a longer dash. Then, behind fine interference, he punched and pounded for continual gains. Finally, with a gracious gesture, he called on his senior ace, Earl Clary, to lug the ball across.

This short and stocky athlete, his bare head standing out in every play, slipped over Auburn's goal with the second touchdown on a lateral pass from Clary, and then engineered the way for the final touchdown.

Trailing by a single point, Mauney found himself called upon to boot the ball across the uprights of the goal posts for the extra point which would mean a tie or a defeat for Carolina.

While the 15,000 spectators sat hushed and anxious in the stands, Mauney split the center of the uprights.

Auburn threw its hopes on the wings of long passes in the final minutes, but these gained little headway and Shinn intercepted one around midfield as the final gun barked.

Tennessee Claims Southern Title

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 3.—The Tennessee Volunteers laid claim to the Southern Conference football championship today after whipping Florida, 32 to 13, while the Auburn Plainsmen were halted with a 20-20 tie by South Carolina at Birmingham.

The day's events gave Tennessee a record of seven victories, and one tie in the conference, while Auburn has won six games. Tennessee was tied by Vanderbilt.

The Volunteers rode the crest of a scoring wave churned up by Beattie Feather, All-Southern halfback, and Herb Brackett, quarterback, to whip the Gators. They scored two touchdown apiece, Brackett's on runs of 87 yards and 53 yards.

OFFICIALS — Referee, Archie Klein (Missouri U.); umpire, Potthoff (Washington U.); linesman, Morrison (Iowa).

When the Chicago Cardinals of the National Football League and Gunners clash at Public Schools Stadium this afternoon, they will fight it out to a decision if it takes an extra period to decide the issue provided the Cardinal management agrees to plans of Capt. Robert M. Sampson of Battery A. He announced he will request an additional session in event of a tie and that the starting time has been advanced to 2:15 o'clock to provide for this.

Sampson and his coach, "Bullet" Baker, are eager to fight it out to a verdict today because of the 26 to 6 defeat the Gunners suffered at the hands of the Cardinals last year.

Lintzenich Is Optimistic.

Lintzenich and Johnston both opposed the Cardinals last year while they were with the Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers respectively. It was Lintzenich who called signals for the Bears and punted so well they held the Cardinals scoreless a year ago, and Joe predicts the Gunners will surprise today.

Cardinals Use Rockne System.

Chicago's Cardinals this season are coached by Jack Chevigny, who was Hunk Anderson's assistant at Notre Dame last year, and they give the pros' idea of the Rockne system. Boasting one of the best lines in the National League, the Cardinals emphasize the Notre Dame open field game with an effective forward passing attack. Walter Holmer of Northwestern is the Cardinals' chief passer and punter. His passes to Glen Martin, back, and George Rogge, end, have scored in recent league games.

Baker has altered his system to employ a number of the single wingback formations today in sending Thornton, Lintzenich and Johnston into the off-tackle plays at the outset. Gil Lefebvre, Ted Saussele and Cowboy Kyle will be rushed into the game whenever the Gunners are in position to try sweeping end runs. These broken field specialists will be kept on the bench at the outset to allow the heavier Gunners' artillery to bombard the Cardinal forwards.

Toscani Is Visiting Star.

Outstanding in Chevigny's backfield will be Bud Toscani, who won all-America honors last year at St. Mary's, and Elmer Schwartz, a 210-pound line plunging fullback. Toscani is considered one of the best broken field runners in the National League. His specialty is returning punts.

Walter "Babe" Kiesling, 235-pound guard, is considered the greatest player on the Cardinal squad. He is rated as best in the National League at his position and will be a hard man for the Gunners to run around this afternoon.

Not All Wild Turkey Hunting Is Tame

Wild Turkeys May Be Scarce This Season, But There Is a Bumper Crop of Hunters

Ozark County Hills 30 Miles From Railroad but the Nimrods, on Opening Day, Made It Look Like Grand and Olive.

Hard to Shoot 'Em in Season, Native Explains, but It's Easier Before the Birds Have Been Annoyed by the Gunfire.

Meleagris Gallopavo Sylvestris (wild turkey to you) may be going the way of the pterodactyl and the beer saloon, but if you happened to journey into the Missouri hills Thursday for an opening season shot at Galloping Sylvester, the bronze beauty of the Ozarks, you'd testify that there was no shortage of turkey hunters.

In December, 1931, three hopeful nimrods motored to the hills in Ozark County and 10 minutes after stalking into the woods, "Sylvester" took off from a hill side, the first of several sighted during the expedition. It was a little late for turkeys, however, the natives suggested. Better make it earlier another year, preferably the first day of the season.

And so the three nimrods, again hopeful, departed Wednesday morning to look over the ground, again in Ozark County, and to be in the woods at the crack of dawn, Dec. 1, the opening day of the season.

Well, if they were too late in 1931, they were too early in 1932. The woods were still there. Woods on steep hillsides, with ridge after ridge and hollow after hollow. Fine turkey woods—even an amateur could see that.

Grand and Olive.

They eat dinner early in the Ozark hills and it was a fine night Wednesday. The stars were all out, sharp as needles, and the slender crescent moon, rising over the timbered knobs of the Ozarks, made the night more inviting, even if it didn't throw any light to amount to anything.

"We might skirt a hill or two and run into a flock roostin' maybe," one of the natives suggested. And so off to the hills the nimrods went.

But turkey hunting minds run in the same hollows. Mind you, the hills were 30 miles from the nearest railroad and the only motor road from the nearest town was a rocky trail that skirted a creek bed, tumbling over shale rock and meandering through cutover timber. But it seemed that all roads led to those hills that night. Automobile lights flashed along the rocky roadway, as one party of hunters after another arrived to be there for the the opening of the season.

Distant hillsides looked like playgrounds for fire flies, as flash lights and lanterns twinkled through the trees.

"I never seed so many turkey hunters in all my born days," the old native declared. "And I'm hating to sight 'em all. I swear there's more lights in them there hills and hollers than there is o' folks in town."

Game Department Plans to Release 2000 Wild Turkeys

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 3.

SHORTLY after the close of the wild turkey hunting season, Dec. 31, the State Game Department will release 2000 wild turkeys that have either been raised on the State farms or were bought from the Lone Trail Wild Turkey Farm near Lesterville.

Missouri contains the only remaining turkey range in the North Central States and offers great possibilities for the propagation of the nation's largest game bird.

And then came the dawn, with a scrambling out from corn shucks, gulping of cups of coffee and the expedition into the woods.

Sociable Sylvester.

You know how to hunt turkeys of course. The best way is to scatter them at night, go back to the same place in the morning, lean back against a thick tree and call "Galloping Sylvester" to you. Turkeys are sociable birds. They like company and when they have been scattered they will call to each other and reassemble for a game of bridge or a little corn.

With all the hunters milling through the hills, far into the night, it was a safe bet that all the turkeys had been scattered, so the natives led the three nimrods up a hollow, where the afternoon before a farmhand had seen and scattered a flock.

The nimrods were assigned strategic positions and the most promising course of procedure outlined and then the hunt was on.

Shortly after the sun edged over the hills, the caulking began. Judging by the sound, the hills and hollows were full of turkeys. They caulked from every hill top and they caulked from every draw. Without moving from any selected spot, you could have killed half a dozen turkey hunters. But the nimrods were hunting turkeys, not turkey hunters. And they not only didn't get any turkeys. They didn't see any and they didn't see anybody who had seen any, and that despite the walking of many miles, the turning over of hundreds of tons of rocks, and the climbing of hills that caused pains in many, many places.

The Native's Tale.

Between hills many native guides were seen and one, who was more talkative than the average, made some illuminating comments.

"Have you seen any turkeys today?" he was asked.

"'Ary one," he replied. "This be a bad time to hunt 'em. Too many hunters. Now last week hunting was tolerable good."

"But the season wasn't open last week."

"No," the native drawled. "But hunting was good just the same. They feed on the farmers' corn and wheat, and the farmers figure turn about is fair play, and so they feed on the turkeys. They all do it, mister. When you're hungry and you see a flock of turkeys in your corn or a watering in your crick bottom, what do you do? Why you gets yourself a turkey."

"Is there much shooting out of season?" he was asked.

"More than in season. We gotta live 12 months a year."

"Yes, they do, mister. Those young turkeys is powerful good eating. And they're easier to get when they're young. They gets smart as they gets older. Gobblers, especially. 'Cept at gobbling time and then you can call the old gobblers right up to you and catch 'em by the beard."

"Oh they put bunches in from time to time. The State, I mean. They ain't so wild then, neither. Usually they've been in pens in the game parks and they ain't never been shot at. You can get 'em easy till they get real wild."

"Well, how about the game wardens? Aren't the farmers afraid of the law?"

"Deputies don't bother the farmers none. Look at them hills, mister. Ain't much chance of tellin' what's going on over on that other knob. And besides, figure it yourself. You know the farmer is having a tough time. Would you run the law on one for killing a turkey and taking it home to feed his family? Would you, mister?"

Anyhow, as the fellow says, you can't beat that turkey hunting for exercise.

Squirrel Season Closed.

When the 1932 wild turkey season opened Dec. 1, the year's squirrel-shooting period closed. Squirrels have been plentiful throughout the State this year, reports from hunters show. Excepting in the northern tier of counties and in a few scattered areas in the Ozarks, squirrels had been scarce for two seasons.

There are three varieties of squirrel in Missouri, the Southern gray, the Western fox and the small Eastern flying squirrel. The last, however, is almost entirely nocturnal in its habits and, although fairly abundant throughout the State, is seldom observed by hunters.

The squirrel season now will remain closed until June 1.

1933 Licenses Out. Dec. 15.

Hunting and fishing licenses for 1933 are now in the hands of County Clerks and will be available for issuance Dec. 15. All 1932 licenses will be taken off sale on that date and County Clerks throughout the State will immediately make their report on the number of licenses issued.

The 1933 licenses issued after Dec. 15 will be valid for the remainder of 1932, State game and fish officials point out.

They Got Their Turkey.

John H. Miles of the Ozark Hunting and Fishing Store, 5700 Gravois, and W. J. Iasmussen of 2400 South Jefferson, were two of the successful turkey hunters from St. Louis when the wild turkey season opened Dec. 1. The two went to Crawford County and each came home with a bird.

Back home from their surprising road trip on which they won two of three games played and tied for first place, the St. Louis Flyers tonight will oppose the St. Paul Hockey Club at the Arena.

St. Paul is the team with which St. Louis opened the season, the Flyers winning in an overtime game. At that time the Greyhounds appeared to be a very good team and since then they have defeated the Flyers, accounting for the only loss which the St. Louis club suffered in the North.

Mike Karakas, the young St. Louis goalie, who made his first start here last Sunday night, appears to be living up to Coach "Babe" Dye's expectations and is proving a strong defender of the St. Louis net.

Dye probably will start his strongest forward line with McPherson at center and Massecar and Albert Hughes on the wings tonight. McPherson scored the two goals which gave the Flyers their victory over Duluth Friday night and he seems to be hitting his best stride.

Having now won three and lost three, the Flyers' coach should be getting a pretty good idea of just how good his team will be. The defense thus far has been fairly proficient but due largely to the good work of Karakas, for he has been having a great many stops.

Tonight's game is scheduled to start at 8:30 o'clock.

A. A. U. CROSS COUNTRY TITLE TO M'CLUSKY

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 3. — A Powerful drive in the final hundred yards carried Joe McClusky of Fordham University to victory today in the national senior American Athletic Union cross-country race.

Until the last eighth of a mile, McClusky dogged the footsteps of J. C. Watson of Indiana, Olympic star, but at the end he had the reserve strength to overtake the pacemaker and beat him to the tape by five yards in the gruelling six-mile race.

The winner's time of 32 minutes 36 seconds was comparatively slow because of a heavy track.

unusually strong protector so that there was really very little chance of a severe injury from the ordinary low blow.

In the examination that followed Dr. Herluf G. Lund found only a red spot high on the thigh near the hip. Schwake complained of pain in his leg and after the fight said his leg was heavy and tired.

It seems probable that Carnera, shooting a blow to the body, struck Schwake in the region of the hip and it glanced on downward. The blow could have landed fair and sliw down.

As for the injury, a blow striking a nerve center naturally would prove excruciatingly painful and disabling. Many of the old guard will remember the fight here years ago between Bobby Burns and the "Young Zulu Kid." Burns swung a right at Zulu's short ribs; Zulu came in turning his side. Burns' blow slipped around Zulu's back, landing on a line slightly lower than the hip. Subsequently this blow was referred to as the "ischium" or seat-bone punch.

Ringsiders were amazed to see Zulu crumple up and fall to the floor. He tried to stand up, but sank down again and was counted out, fully conscious, but in pain. It was plainly not a foul and so it had to go as a knockout.

What really happened was that the blow landed on the sciatic nerve and temporarily paralyzed Zulu's leg. He was in bed for a couple of weeks and it was a month before he resumed his training.

Something similar may have happened to Schwake.

Plenty of Calories.

SEE the Stove. It is a Hot Stove. What makes the Hot Stove hot? Why, the Heat. What makes the Heat? Why, the Baseball Magnates. And what makes the magnates hot, you say? Why, almost everything. And we may add that right now their temperature has reached the critical stage.

Wouldn't your temperature rise if you owned a $1,000,000 plant that couldn't even pay taxes? Well, put a thermometer under the tongues of Bob Quinn of Boston; Clark Griffith of Washington; Sidney Weil of Cincinnati; Louis Comiskey of Chicago; Phil Ball of St. Louis, or almost any major or minor league magnate and watch the mercury mount.

That's because the last season was a tough one for all minor league teams and most major league outfits, with the exception of the Yankees and the Cubs. Even the Cubs suffered —but only their feelings were hurt.

This year, the Hot Stove League is hotter than ever before. There isn't much doubt that it will become incandescent at Columbus, this week, where a lot of important business that once was transacted in six figures is going to be argued about. The problem this time is: Whereabouts in the six figures shall this year's decimal point be placed?

Life or Death.

IN other words, the minor leagues are fighting with their backs to the well known wall and sunrise and the firing squad seem not far off to some of the more pessimistic owners.

At Columbus the battle for the flotation of the minors for another year will be waged and the chain stores will have to supply most of the sinews of war.

In fact, at this time, if it were not for the major league ownership of minor league clubs, the minor leagues might be blotted out, temporarily.

The smaller leagues already have become comatose. Of the major-minors several clubs are extremely shaky. Help from the majors is not to be expected, because the major leagues themselves have a lot of sick members to care for.

The situation is approaching that of 1918, without the same excuse.

Major League Troubles.

WHILE the minors will be rebuilding their fences at Columbus this week, the majors will soon be getting busy. The situation, while not now so critical in the majors, has numerous complications The ball players are inclined to believe that the club owners are taking advantage of the depression to plan a general breakdown of salaries.

But the number of clubs that are no longer profitable should convince even a baseball player that the owners are in distress. When Connie Mack is forced to sell a Simmons in order to balance his budget, it's time to grant that the magnates, as well as the players, are having their troubles.

At the meeting of the majors next week in New York, there will be debates on the player limit, barring the radio, reduction of salaries and perhaps on the reduction of seat prices—although that discussion is doomed before it begins. There will be announcements of curtailed training camp seasons and retrenchments along all lines possible.

Still, the situation is not desperate, because the magnates believe that with reduced costs and a slight improvement in conditions next year they will pull through.

It Must Be Solved.

But there is one problem that the majors will sooner or later have to consider, and at this time it is one that there seems to be no answer for. It is: What is to be the future of the second division teams? It is admitted that only first division clubs make money, in good times. The last three teams lose considerable sums, as a rule, especially in the American League.

The situation has its limits and it is up to baseball to devise a league arrangement whereby the fans of every city in the circuit will have a sustained interest in their team throughout the season.

ments, as the heat and the briskness of the fray took its toll in the Navy defense, the Midshipmen were unable to stop the driving power generated for the Cadet backs by their forwards. These stalwarts not only were led effectively by their all-America captain, Milton Summerfelt, at guard, and Big Jack Armstrong, at tackle, but included the great Dick King, end, who made a dramatic return to action barely a month after fracturing his ankle in the Harvard game.

King, who had been kept strictly under cover and on crutches almost up to the time of the game, played for about five minutes of the first half and returned to the game for a short session at left end in the third period. Apparently as sound as ever, despite his injury and consequent lay-off, he was a factor in getting the Army's winning drive under way and just missed catching a long pass on one occasion that might have led to a touchdown.

A Reversal of Form.

Just a week after its overwhelming defeat at the hands of Notre Dame, which had whipped Army by a bigger margin than it beat Navy, the Soldiers displayed a remarkable reversal of form in every department of play. The forwards who were supposed to be on the casualty list battled their Navy rivals to a standstill in a great struggle and finally wore down the Middies' resistance in the last quarter. The passing attack that was a flop last Saturday was a consistent threat and produced one of the three touchdowns. The running game, with Buckler as its spearhead, developed dazzling speed and power from a series of tricky reverses, spinners and behind-the-line passes.

Apart from its surprise running attack at the outset, led by Bill Clark, in a 45-yard drive that fell only seven yards short of Army's goal line, the Navy had to rely almost exclusively on the passing weapons in the hands of Gordon Chung-Hoon, brilliant Hawaiian halfback and triple threat. Single handed, Chung-Hoon fought hard to turn the tide and twice he almost succeeded, with long passes that barely missed fire as they carried the touchdown label but Army's defense was equal to the emergencies.

Army Clearly Superior.

At the finish of a battle filled with excitement, fine football and December perspiration, there was no doubt about Army's superiority. This has now been sustained over an 11-year period since Navy's last victory, in 1921, interrupted only by a brace of ties and the two-year break in the series in 1928-29. This was the fourth consecutive Army triumph.

Army's power house rolled up 19 first downs to Navy's 11, gained 250 yards by rushing to 71 for the Midshipmen and conceded an edge only in passing, where Navy completed five out of 21 tosses for 85 yards and Army clicked with six out of 15 for 71 yards.

Although they have played for charity in special games the past two seasons, the Midshipmen and the Cadets celebrated the official end of their break-off of relations over eligibility, in 1927. They did it with all the enthusiasm and ear-splitting noise for which they are famous. Their show held up the start of the game 25 minutes but gave the spectators all the thrills they had turned out for on an occasion highly reminiscent of boom times.

A Gala Crowd.

Although President Hoover and Vice-President Curtis found it impossible to attend the thirty-third renewal of this sporting classic, official Washington and the rival services were well represented. On opposite sides of the field were Secretary Hurley and Major-General MacArthur, chief of staff, for the Army, and Secretary Adams and Admiral Pratt, chief of operations for the Navy.

Thousands who brought heavy wraps and blankets, in deference to the calendar rather than the weather predictions, found them so much excess baggage as the sun beamed down hotly through a steamy mist. It was more typical of world series than Army-Navy weather. The crowd got a better break than the players, who called time out an unusual number of times to recuperate from the effects of the heat. Both teams sent almost three complete elevens into the fray.

Early Threat by Navy.

Navy supplied the early excitement with its thrust through the Army defense in the first five minutes of play, featured by Clark's 24-yard dash around one Cadet flank to Army's 22-yard line. This finally was broken up when Ken Fields intercepted a fourth down pass and ran the ball out of the danger zone.

Thereafter the Midshipmen were able only four times to penetrate Army's side of the field. The nearest they came to scoring was in the second period when Chung-Hoon's longest pass, caught by Miller, and a 12-yard run by the Hawaiian, worked the pigskin to the Cadet 30-yard line. A fumble by Slack, quarterback, broke up this threat.

Taking unusual risks to the extent even of heaving the ball from his own goal line, in the last half Chung-Hoon came close to connecting with passes for big gains but that was all. The Army never again yielded ground inside its 30-yard stripe.

The entry of Vidal, Buckler and King into the game late in the first period definitely turned the tide. They have been "key" men in the Army's biggest advances of the season. They quickly put on a dazzling show, but it wasn't until well in the second period that they were able to pierce consistently the Navy defense in which Captain Reedy at guard, Kane and Brooks at the tackles, gave superb defensive exhibitions.

Vidal Gets First Score.

Vidal carried the first and decisive touchdown across from Navy's three-yard mark after a yard march interrupted only once by a five-yard penalty. This was more than offset by two penalties against Navy, one of which eased the Army path after a pass, Buckler to Kopcsak, gave first down on Navy's 12-yard line. Vidal did most of the ball carrying, on short gains, but Buckler place-kicked the extra point and thereafter was the star of the Army's attack.

Throughout the last half, with Joe MacWilliams alternating in calling signals with Vidal, Buckler consistently lugged the ball for good gains, punted with beautiful precision and passed effectively. He wasn't able to break through for any further scoring in the third quarter, but he passed 30 yards to Bill Frentzel for the touchdown in the last period and conducted a personal 40-yard parade to another. The boy from Texas shook off Navy tacklers as a duck sheds water in this rousing finish.

SCHWAKE READY TO GO THROUGH WITH GRIFFITHS BATTLE, DEC. 13

By W. J. McGoogan.

After the big flurry of the past week, the boxing game here will settle down to the usual December slump now with nothing in view this week in the professional line and only a show at the South Broadway, Tuesday night.

Primo Carnera, huge Italian, departed for Chicago yesterday, where he is to meet King Levinsky at the Stadium Friday night, then start a tour of the Pacific Coast.

Carnera claimed that the blows which struck John Schwake low Friday night were glancing punches which were aimed at fair territory, but, due to Schwake's peculiar crouch, went astray. It was the first time in his career that Carnera had been accused of hitting low.

The only foul in his record is the one in the second engagement with Young Stribling in Paris, when he hit Stribling after the bell rang and was disqualified.

Primo, because of his height, generally punches down on opponents and a low blow was the last thing anybody considered in pre-fight talk.

Griffith-Schwake Bout Uncertain.

Jack Tippett, promoter under the Walter J. Hatzfeld American Legion Post charter, is uncertain as to his future plans. He had Tuffy Griffiths signed for a bout with Schwake, which was supposed to be held Dec. 13, but he is not sure that he can go through with that program.

Schwake, Friday night, declared his willingness to meet Griffiths on the scheduled date, but Tippett wants to consider the matter further.

Riley Campaigns in South.

Bob Riley, who is campaigning with his string of fighters in the South, has matched "Chick" Rains with Arturo Goduy of Tampa, Fla., in a bout to take place at West Palm Beach, Tuesday, according to a message from Riley.

Eddie Edson and Joe Huff made good showings Friday and these two youngsters seem to have plenty of promise. Huff is a fine puncher, but he is so accustomed to the three-round amateur limit that he has seemed to tire after the third round. He should overcome that weakness with experience and training.

Allen Matthews' disappointing showing with Benny Deathpain probably will cost him a place on Tippett's next card, for Jack declared that Matthews' first real failure to make a good fight would make him unavailable for a while.

NO SCHOOL GETS MORE THAN ONE PLAYER; NEWMAN BACKFIELD ACE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—For the fourth successive year football stars who develop their brilliance in the great American midlands dominate the All-America team of 1932.

Their margin over the other three main sectors of the gridiron battlefront is not so pronounced as in the past two seasons but, Mid-Western players occupy four of the first eleven positions in the honor lineup. The East and the South, including Texas, each gain three places and the Far West only one in the eighth annual All-America compiled by the Associated Press.

The All-America squad of 33 players, including the "shock troops" of the second and third elevens, numbers 12 from the East, eight from the Mid-West, seven from the South and six from the Far West.

The selections climax a season in which great teams rather than great individuals, scintillated. There were a number of flashing ball-carriers especially in the South, but outstanding teams like Colgate, which was not scored on in nine straight victories; Texas Christian, Auburn, Michigan, Pittsburgh, Southern California and Purdue all achieved fine records because of balanced, well-drilled strength.

Newman Stands Out.

Fine support enabled Harry Newman, Michigan's resourceful and versatile quarterback, to emerge as one of the season's few dominating individuals. As a result of the stellar role he played in bringing about most of the Wolverine triumphs, by passing, running or kicking, Newman was virtually the unanimous choice of the nation's experts for the job of quarterbacking the 1932 all-stars. He is without question the ablest field general since Frank Carideo piloted two straight unbeaten Notre Dame teams. He excels Carideo as passer and ball-carrier.

Two other Mid-Western aces, Paul Moss, rangy Purdue end, and Joe Kurth, brilliant Notre Dame tackle, shared the distinction of being outstanding selections, although close observers felt there was little to choose in consistent performance between Kurth and his running mate in the Rambler line, Ed Krause.

Don Zimmerman, Tulane's fleet back, who had his greatest season despite the loss of experienced running mates, and Capt. Milton Summerfelt, stalwart Army guard, also were clear-cut choices of the big majority of critics.

Injuries Shelve Three.

The contests and rivalry for other positions all were keen, as a variety of factors figured in the tabulation of final All-America results. Injuries balked the chances of Ernest (Pug) Rentner, Northwestern's 1931 all-star halfback, gaining this honor again. A broken ankle in midseason against Harvard abruptly shelved Dick King, regarded by Maj. Ralph Sasse as one of the greatest ends in West Point history. The doctors kept Orville Mohler, Southern California's field general and the outstanding back on the Pacific Coast, from finishing his career as an All-American.

King's inability to finish the season left the race for the other flank position wide open. It was won, after a flock of arguments, by the fiery young Mexican, Jose Martinez-Zorrilla of Cornell, whose ability to knife through interference, rise to emergencies and block kicks combines to furnish a fine running mate for Paul Moss, a specialist in pass-catching and punting as well as an excellent defensive end.

Latest of an exceptional family to gain gridiron fame at Cornell, Martinez-Zorrilla has finished three colorful and consistently brilliant years of competition. He blocked a half dozen punts in important games this season and, single-handed, almost, held Pennsylvania to even terms by his thrilling end play in his final game.

Moss and Martinez-Zorilla Best of End-Crop Which Seemed Below Par

As a group, the ends lacked the class of other seasons. Joe Skladany of Pittsburgh, who has another year in which to improve, caught the popular eye with his sensational pass-catching in the Army game, but was not as consistent as his teammate, Ted Dailey. Tony Matal of Columbia shone on the receiving end of passes, besides playing a fine defensive game. Frank Meadow was a key performer in Brown's stout defense. Dud Parker, Yale punter, did a remarkable job in shifting from the backfield to end.

The South this season had no ends as colorful as "Catfish" Smith or Dalrymple, but "Gump" Ariail of Auburn, Dan Wood of Furman and Virgil Rayburn of Tennessee turned in fine performances. Madison Pruitt was a conspicuous unit in the famous Texas Christian line, while "Snakebite" Nisbet of Washington and Frank Slavich of Santa Clara won praise on the Pacific Coast. The Big Ten, in addition to Moss, had a number of excellent ends, including Williamson and Petoskey, used also as fullback, of Michigan; Sidney Gillman of Ohio State and Dick Fenel of Northwestern.

Kurth, a polished lineman in every respect, and Ernie Smith, trombone-playing star of the Southern California forwards, easily won the favor of experts for the tackle positions. Their running mates, Krause of Notre Dame and "Tay" Brown of U. S. C., were their principal rivals and were given the preference in some minority reports. Pennsylvania's Howard Colehower, Pittsburgh's Walton, Cornell's Abe George and Duke's Freddie Crawford also were standouts. Brown Universtiy struck an unusual note by having a pair of Brown brothers in the tackle positions.

Powerful Center Trio.

The center trio, all important in modern game that calls for agility, speed and blocking by the guards, plus rare defensive skill by a roving pivot, developed another series of arguments before the all-America places were allotted.

In the choice of running mate for Summerfelt at guard, the added weight and drive of Capt. Johnny Vaught of Texas Christian gave him the edge over Capt. Bob Smith, key man of Colgate's sturdy line. At center, Lawrence Ely of Nebraska, foremost lineman of Big Six has developed since the days of Ed Weir, gets the call over "Pete" Gracey, Vanderbilt's great snapper-back.

Ely, big and powerful, not only opposed exceptional rivals in his own territory, such as Paul Young of Oklahoma, but successfully combated such intersectional foes as Minnesota and Pittsburgh. He helped give the Pitt Panthers the toughest afternoon they had all season. Gracey is classed as the best center the South has produced since Peter Pund of Georgia Tech. Without him, Vanderbilt's defense was riddled in its closing game with Alabama.

The Big Ten had two fine centers in Charles Bernard of Michigan and Ed Oehler, Purdue captain. The best in the East were Tom Gilbane of Brown and Roy Engle of Pennsylvania. Art Krueger of Marquette, who blocked no less than eight kicks in seven games, won high praise. Coates of U. C. L. A. was regarded by some as the best center on the Pacific Coast.

A quartet selected for the All-America backfield emphasizes the importance of forward passing in the modern game. Harry Newman of Michigan, Warren Heller of Pittsburgh, Jim Hitchcock of Auburn and Don Zimmerman of Tulane all rank among the greatest of collegiate passers. All except Heller are good kickers, with Newman and expert at placements. All can run, block and tackle with the best of talent in these specialties.

All except Zimmerman starred on undefeated teams and the pole-vaulting Tulane athlete's brilliant achievements loom all the greater because he lacked a high-class supporting cast. Despite the fact he no longer had such blockers as Felts and Payne to clear the path for him, Zimmerman was not stopped by any of the stronger teams played by Tulane.

The experts found it difficult to leave off the first string all-America such versatile backs as Beattie Feathers of Tennessee, Cliff Montgomery of Columbia and George Sander of Washington State. Although not quite so polished a performer as Heller, Pittsburgh's Mike Sebastian frequently proved tougher to bring down in a broken field. The Southwest's critics ranked Harrison Stafford of Texas as the best running, blocking and passing back since the days of Gerald Mann and Joel Hunt.

Many Fine Backs.

The Big Ten had a flock of great backs, including Lew Hinchman of Ohio State, Duane Purvis and Roy Horstmann of Purdue, Jack Manders of Minnesota and Gil Berry of Illinois. Cornell's captain, Bart Viviano, probably outranks any defensive back in the country for the deadliness of his tackling. Notre Dame has two complete sets of backs, who performed with impartial success in the Army rout, but Mike Koken and George Melinkovich probably have the most class. Colgate's triple threat, Whitey Ask, performed like an All-American against Brown, in a game which saw the star of Bob Chase, smart Bruin field marshal, dimmed for the first time during the season.

As a punter and passer, Ed Danowski of Fordham ranks with any back in the country. Army's Felix Vidal was a "ball of fire" until he bumped into the Notre Dame steam roller, but Harvard and Yale will testify he looked like the greatest broken field runner in the country. Dixie Roberts of Vanderbilt, Frank Christensen of Utah, Bob Lassiter of Yale, Jack Crickard of Harvard and John Cain of Alabama all packed terrific ball-toting drive. So did Bob Monnett of Michigan State and George Sauer of Nebraska.

Detroit Spots Loyola 12 Points, Then Wins, 21 to 12

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 3.—University of Detroit used a spectacular passing attack in the last quarter to come from behind and defeat Loyola of the South, 21 to 12, in their intersectional gridiron classic here today.

Halfback Nott of Detroit punted and passed his team to victory after the visitors had trailed for three periods. Loyola had a 12-point lead at the end of the first period.

MARSHALL MEETS ABE COLEMAN AT ARENA THURSDAY

Completion of the preliminary card supporting the double windup feature of the Arena wrestling program for next Thursday night was announced by Promoter Tom Packs last night after John Katan, claimant of the Canadian heavyweight title, accepted terms for a bout with Pat O'Shocker, red-headed St. Louis Irishman. Katan and O'Shocker will meet in the curtain-raiser, limited to 30 minutes.

On his last appearance here Katan was defeated by Everette Marshall, speedy Colorado matman, who will try for his fourth Arena victory when he matches grips with Abe Coleman, widely-known Jewish heavyweight, in one of the two finish bouts heading the program. Marshall is due here today and will probably work out at the National Gymnasium.

O'Shocker has been a consistent winner in the South this season and prior to a recent defeat by Jimmy Londos at Houston, Tex., he had numbered Milo Steinborn, Floyd Marshall, Fred Grobmeier, Frank Brunowiecz, Charley Fox and Jim Clinkstock among the grapplers he defeated in piling up an uninterrupted string of victories. His bout with Lou Plummer on the last Arena card marked the Irish matman's first appearance here this season.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WARRENTON, Mo., Dec. 3.—Beaumont High School basketball team of St. Louis sent Warrenton High down to one of the few defeats on its home floor, by winning, 31 to 19, here tonight. Fred Pralle, Beaumont's tall center, scored six field goals and a free throw to be high scorer.

Two of Warrenton's players, Hintz and Gassman, performed in great style during the first half to hold Beaumont to a 10 to 8 lead. Then in the last half, Robert Bick and Harold Beck, helped Pralle in locating Warrenton's basket, each getting three field goals.

Doubles Event Tonight.

A mixed doubles bowling event will be held at the German House tonight with squads rolling at 7, 8, 9 and 10 o'clock. Contestants can change partners as often as desired. Entry fee, $1.60 per person. Call PRospect 8139 for reservations.

Merritt to Box Savage Tuesday

Elmer Savage of the Business Men's A. C., junior bantamweight champion of the Mississippi Valley A. A., and Ocie Merritt of the E-K Athletic Club, former junior flyweight titleholder, will meet in a special interclub feature of Tuesday night's amateur boxing tournament at the South Broadway A. C., according to Matchmaker Willie Miller.

In announcing the bantamweight event Miller completed the feature portion of the South Broadway program. Johnny Nichols, junior valley champion in the light-heavyweight division, will fight a return engagement with Babe Davis, junior heavyweight titleholder, in another special feature of the card, while a third star bout brings Harry Groll, South Broadway welterweight, against Roy Green of the E-K squad.

The match between Savage and Merritt was arranged by tourney officials as a result of Merritt's recent impressive performance in outpointing Danny Durso, a former featherweight titleholder, who previously had scored a point victory over Savage.

The winner of next Tuesday night's bantam feature will, in all probability, be paired with Durso on the next South Broadway program, according to Matchmaker Miller, who also plans to sign the winner of the Davis-Nichols match for a bout on his next program with Irwin Streibel, senior heavyweight champion of the Valley organization.

Miller reports more than 30 fighters have already filed entries as candidates for pairings in the preliminary events of Tuesday night's competition.

PURDUE STARS SOUGHT FOR BENEFIT GAME

The prospect that three former Purdue "All-America" football stars will play in the charity football game for the benefit of the Boys' Club, here, Dec. 18, at the Walsh Stadium, is excellent, according to an announcement made late yesterday by Father Maxwell, who is arranging the event.

If the Purdue stars sign up, they will be on the St. Louis "All-Star" eleven which will compete against the Notre Dame "All-Stars."

Charles "Chile" Walsh, himself a Notre Dame alumnus of note, now coach at St. Louis University, will handle the St. Louis eleven.

The three "All-America" representatives from Purdue are Jim Purvis, fullback; Paul Moss, end, and Glen Harmison, halfback. Other Boilermakers to whom invitations have been extended are John Oehlers, now coaching at Purdue, a center, and Ray Horstmann, a fullback. It was also stated that "Red" Grange had been asked to play on the St. Louis team.

Hope is being entertained that Marchmont Schwartz, Frank Carideo and Joe Savoldi, one-time Notre Dame satellites, will be able to play on Dec. 18.

department's glory with La Presta. Pike, too, was playing his last varsity game of football and he helped make the sun shine through all the clouds and mist for the sons of Old St. Louis. And in the line there were many heroes. Taylor at end played the best game of his career, and Bill O'Brien, the captain, deserved all the praise that coaches, comrades and old grads showered on him in the dressing rooms.

Eleven of the Billikens, enough to make a team of no mean power, were playing their final game for St. Louis, and their keen desire to close their careers gloriously contributed to the fine showing of Chile Walsh's machine.

"Considering the slippery field and the wet ball and the fact that Missouri knew our system and all our plays, I thought my team played nobly," Coach Walsh said after the battle. "We haven't lost to Missouri or Washington since the now retiring seniors began to play and I think their will to win had a lot to do with the excellent showing."

Walsh had reason to be pleased with the result of the contest. His plays clicked better than in any other contest this year and his men displayed alertness, that elementary fundamental of a winning football team. Because of the slippery field and the mud-soaked ball, there were four St. Louis fumbles, but the Billikens went a long way toward making their own breaks by recovering all of their own fumbles and one of the two made by the Tigers.

Two touchdowns and an extra point constituted the Billikens' margin of victory, but they looked even better than that. They gained 137 yards from scrimmage to 58 chewed off by the Tigers, and made nine first downs to Missouri's four.

About the only flaw in the Billiken performance was a mistake in judgment on one occasion when they had the ball within a few feet of a touchdown. Instead of sending Rapp, the powerful plunging fullback, into the line, the ball was given to McCoole, one of the lighter halfbacks, and his spinner attempt was stopped, and the Billikens lost the ball on downs.

George Stuber, the Missouri quarterback, was the hero of the first touchdown drive of the afternoon. Late in the first quarter he received a punt and ran the ball back 56 yards before he was downed by Arenz 19 yards from the Billiken goal. Arenz was hurt on the play and Rapp replaced him.

The Tigers gained only three yards on two thrusts at the sturdy Billiken line and the ball was on the 16-yard mark as the quarter ended.

Starting the second quarter, Johanningmeier made three yards, and that made it fourth down on the 13-yard line. Some of the press-box quarterbacks thought the smart thing to do was to try for a goal from the field, but the Tigers chose a forward pass and Johanningmeier chucked the ball into the end zone, where Stuber caught it for a touchdown. Johanningmeier's try for the extra point was wide.

Then it was that La Presta did his stuff, and what did the crowd care if it did have gray skies, as long as it had you, Benny boy.

Another Billiken touchdown followed quickly. St. Louis kicked off to the Tigers' 38-yard line and after Missouri had worked the ball to midfield, a fumble was covered by the alert Taylor on the Missouri 41-yard line.

Rapp ripped off 12 yards and a first down. Rapp chewed off two more, La Presta added three and Rapp one. The Tigers then bunched in to stop the battering thrusts and McCoole stepped back and chucked a pass to La Presta, who made a spectacular falling catch of the ball, and when the muddy pile of players untangled, the ball was only a foot from the goal line.

Bassett then went over on what the football boys call a quarterback sneak and that made the score 13 to 6, La Presta missing his try for the extra point.

McCoole Scores Third Touchdown.

St. Louis' final touchdown drive was started in the third period, McCoole taking a Missouri punt and returning to the Tigers' 36-yard line. McCoole then made 15 yards and Kane and Rapp made another first down, putting the ball six yards from home. After one play that netted a yard and a half, the quarter ended. Kane fumbled on the first play of the final period, but recovered the ball on the seven-yard mark. Rapp made three yards and McCoole then slashed off tackle for the necessary four yards to produce another touchdown. La Presta's kick for the extra point was low and the score was the ultimate of 19 to 6.

If you are interested in such intangible things as state championships, the titular gridiron pennant was supposed to be at stake in the struggle, so the Billikens, having defeated the Washington Bears and the Missouri Tigers, by the score of 19 to 6 in each instance, can be said to have no mean claim to the championship. However, there may be several strong elevens that might file claims, so the title is more or less synthetic.

But there was nothing synthetic about the Billikens' victory. And it's much easier to cheer over Benny La Presta than it is over any state title. Too bad that he has made his last slithering run over a Billiken gridiron.

MRS. KNUTE ROCKNE NEUTRAL SPECTATOR AS BILLIKENS WIN

Mrs. Knute Rockne, widow of the famous Notre Dame football coach, was a spectator, viewing the game from the press box. She said she was neutral. Chile Walsh, the Billiken athletic director, and Frank Carideo, the Missouri coach, learned their football in the Rockne school at Notre Dame.

La Presta, Taylor, Harry Bockrath, Black, McLeod, Podelwitz, O'Brien, McGowan, Pike, Schumacher and McCoole were playing their final game in Billiken uniform.

The spectators gave each retiring gladiator in the final quarter a round of cheers. Football enthusiasm has been built up by this St. Louis University team.

Arnold Arenz was injured trying to stop Stuber in the last few minutes of the first quarter and had to be helped off the field. He suffered pulled tendons and was unable to return to duty.

Coach Walsh explained that the players were wearing mud cleats on their shoes and that when they were blocked out of plays it was very bad for their legs, the cleats holding fast in the ground.

After the game, Gale Bullman, line coach at Washington, visited Walsh in the dressing room, and in five minutes Gale was down on the floor, drawing diagrams of the outstanding plays and discussing the six-man line. You not only can't beat Bullman; you can't tie him.

Jimmy Conzelman, head coach at Washington U., also visited the Billikens to congratulate Walsh on the team's victory and spirited performance.

If the books show a sufficient profit on the season, it wouldn't be a bad idea to tear down those you-know-what-I-mean booths where they sell tickets and build some new ones to expedite the handling of the crowds. The trouble with football plants is that when they build them they must consult the shoemaker about details. Clarence Lloyd and Willis Johnson of the Cardinals and Browns could tell the colleges about handling customers.

The drizzling rain soaked the customers as they jammed into the park, but fortunately it stopped about kick-off time.

MINOR LEAGUE FOLK GATHER TO WEIGH THEIR "DEPRESSION"

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 3.—With more problems to wrestle with than a Congressman, the minor league magnates and managers began gathering tonight for one of the most important minor league conventions in baseball's history.

The convention tomorrow is of such momentous importance that practically every major league club will have at least one representative on hand. They feel that the condition of the minors is just as much their problem as it is of the smaller leagues themselves, since the health of the American and National circuits depends on the welfare of the minors. And, right now, the condition of the minors is at a low ebb.

Salary and Player Limits.

A committee of five has been working feverishly to attempt to iron out the difficulties of the minor loops and a number of recommendations have been placed before the magnates.

Chief of these is one fixing a salary and player limit for all leagues, which the American Association has already adopted.

The American Association is confronted with the problem of what to do with the Toledo franchise. Once one of the best minor-league cities in the country, Toledo is now without an owner. Cleveland tried it last season, but Tribe officials couldn't figure how they could make any money with the Mudhens, so they decided to abandon the farm. Kansas City, according to many reports, is also badly in need of financial assistance.

Trades and Sales in Air.

The International circuit must do something about several clubs. And that's the situation all along the line as far as the minors are concerned.

There are plenty of trades and sales in the air; some probably will be consummated next week. Owners of the St. Paul club in the Association have announced they probably will select a manager at the convention. Several major owners have irons in the fire, too.

Broadcasting of games will also come in for a share of argument during the convention. It is known that several minor league club owners frown on the radio, while others are just as strong for it.

FOUR BOUTS CARDED ON TURNERS' WRESTLING PROGRAM WEDNESDAY

Edmore Theriault will meet Frank Wendling in the curtain-raiser of the St. Louis Turners' wrestling show and Paul James will tangle with Ed Piantanida in the semi-windup on Wednesday night's card in the Turners' gymnasium at 1508 Chouteau.

Theriault, who will have a five-pound advantage over the 150-pound Wendling, will wrestle in a 20-minute match. The James-Piantinida meeting will be limited to 30 minutes, with James having a weight edge of five pounds.

In the feature match George Toby, middleweight champion of Southeast Missouri, will tangle with John Anderson, coach of the St. Louis University wrestling team. Their match will be the third together in a period of a year, the others resulting in draws. Each weighs 150 pounds. In the other semi-windup Billy Scharbert will mix with Fred Buchheit in a match restricted to 30 minutes, with Buchheit claiming a weight advantage of five pounds over Scharbert who weighs 165 pounds.

LEVEY'S WILDCATS TO OPEN BASKET SEASON NEXT WEDNESDAY NIGHT

The Wildcats, independent basketball team, led by Jimmy Levey, shortstop of the Browns, are ready to open their regular season after several victories in preliminary games. Their opening opponent for next Wednesday night will be the Saegler Wachtel club of Collinsville, Ill., and the game will be played at Bethlehem gymnasium, Florissant avenue and Salisbury street at 9 p. m.

OFFSIDE BRINGS EXTRA TRY FOR EXTRA POINT AND GAME IS DECIDED

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—An offside penalty which gave the Manhattan football team an extra chance to score the point after touchdown, when the first try was wide today, cost Rutgers a chance for a tie in the charity football game between the two schools at Ebbets Field, Manhattan winning, 7-6.

JOCKEY GILBERT, FAILS TO FINISH IN THE MONEY ON ODD STAR

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 3. — Delightful weather, a well-balanced program and the prospect of seeing Johnny Gilbert endeavor to catch Hank Mills in the American jockey standing were the chief magnets which attracted the largest crowd of the current meeting at Jefferson Park this afternoon. The Southland Handicap of six furlongs headed the program and resulted in a driving victory for Mrs. W. E. Schmidt's filly, Fair Image, which beat W. L. Johnson's Big Leaguer by a scant neck. Doris B lost the place by two lengths.

Gilbert had his first mount here on Odd Star in this race and urged the young gelding into the lead, but his charge was not up to the task and curled up entering the final straightaway to finish fourth. Fair Image paid 3 to 1 and covered the six furlongs in 1:13 4-5.

Odd Star had a good lead over Eisenberg for a half mile, but the pair both quit when the real racing began. Doris B took a brief lead and Big Leaguer was right at her side. However, Melvin Lewis charged down on the leaders with Fair Image in the final furlongs and was up to win the closing strides. This victory gave Lewis a double.

An attempt to give Mills, who arrived here this morning with his mother from Colorado, a suitable mount in the seventh race failed, but the boy is slated to perform Monday.

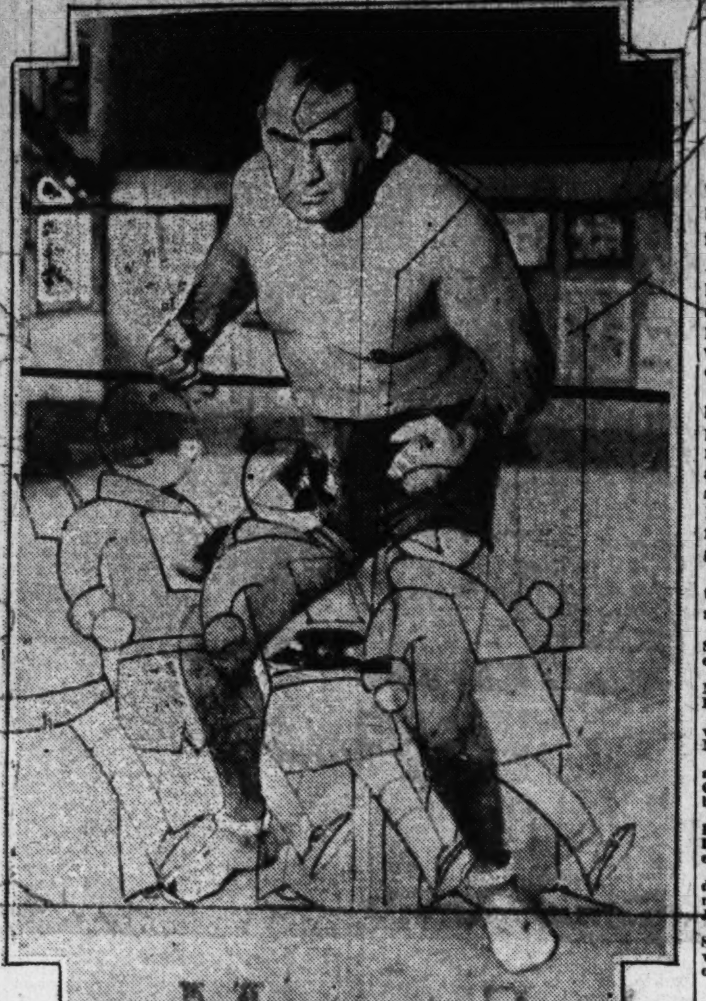
The Strangler Tunes Up for Ray Steele



Ed Lewis, who will meet Ray Steele in New York tomorrow night, in what many figured would be a "real shooting match." Lewis has been training at Gus Wilson's farm at Orangeburg, N. Y., with several mammoths of the mat and has greatly reduced his avoirdupois.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Contrary to reports, no effort has been made to make a genuine finish affair of the Ed "Strangler" Lewis-Ray Steele wrestling match scheduled for Madison Square Garden Monday night. All concerned seem satisfied to let the party terminate at the usual New York State Athletic Commission 11 o'clock curfew hour.

This information was gleaned in a telephone conversation with the venerable William Muldoon, dean of all boxing and wrestling commissioners. Replying to a question as to whether any one had requested the waiving of the time limit, the aged former wrestling champion said: "I haven't heard a thing about it. A decision will be given. They will start at 9 and two hours should be long enough for the people."

"Will you be there, Mr. Muldoon?" he was asked.

"Yes, I hope to be there, but I tell you one thing, I don't stay two hours. It won't take me two hours to make up my mind which is the better man," said Muldoon, who probably knows more about the modern pastime that passes for wrestling than any living man.

Muldoon braved the night air from his estate in Purchase, N. Y., to be a mat side spectator at the Lewis-Jack Sherry exhibition about six weeks ago. For more than an hour Lewis had shoved and pulled Sherry all over the place. It looked serious enough, although 'twas not two-man wrestling. At the 70-minute mark the silver haired sock censor arose and stalked majestically from the arena accompanied by his adopted daughter. As if Muldoon's exit were a signal, the perspiring athletes reverted to type-much to the delight of a cheering gallery which had been giving Ed and Jack the bronx cheer ever since they squared off.

Lewis and Sherry, ceased their stand-up wrestling and went into a series of horizontal acrobatics. It wound up with Sherry looking up at the ceiling, an apparent victim of a side headlock.

"What will it be, Mr. Muldoon?" The writer ventured, expecting to learn that his metropolis finally would be visited by a "shooting" match.

"You can suppose. You don't know, they don't know. I suppose even the wrestlers don't know themselves," was the frank but puzzling rejoinder from a man who in his day dominated the heavyweight division on the mat.

But the boys around wrestling headquarters profess to have been hearing things. And despite the fact that Lewis has for the past five weeks supposedly been training at Gus Wilson's camp for a tussle to the last ditch, rumors are dropping. All hands who have been looking forward to mortal combat are doomed to disappointment, despite the fact that Steele is known to local mat followers as a wrestler who has twice been beaten by Jim Londos and once by Jim McMillen.

Steele is rated the best conditioned artist in the business. Lewis was supposed to have been one of the worst, but he has been laboring with a squad of lusty helpers.

Still without trying to take anything from Br'er Finney, we think that Al Simmons will continue to impress his personality on the customers for a few years longer.

KAVANAUGH TEAM WILL TRY TO HALT ADVANCE OF STIX

Phil Kavanaugh's Coca Colas will attempt to halt the winning streak of the Stix Club, leader in the St. Louis (professional) Soccer League, when the elevens meet in the second and feature match of the double-header at Sportsman's Park this afternoon. The Andersons and Ben Millers play in the opener, starting at 1:45 o'clock.

Since the opening match of the season, when the Kavanaughs drubbed the Stix, 4 goals to 2, the pacemakers have gained six victories, while drawing two contests. In the last two meetings of the clubs the Stix won, 4 to 2 and 3 to 2.

While the Kavanaughs will be able to use their full strength, the Stix will be minus the services of Billy Watson, star center halfback, who is serving a week's suspension as a result of his fight with "Dinty" Moore last Sunday. While no announcement has been made by the Stix management, it is probable that "Scotty" Nilsen will play the position, with McNab, Ahrens, Hart, Roe and McLean making up the forward line. Since the clubs last met, Kavanaugh has been showing a new "goalie" in Ed Albrecht, who has done well in the two contests he has played. Kavanaugh also has signed Howard Blaisdell, recently released by the Millers, as a reserve forward.

In the meeting with the Andersons, the Millers will show another new center forward in Eddie Kane, signed this week. Kane comes from the Spanish Sport Club of the Municipal League and is the third member of the eleven brought up by the Millers this season. The others are Manuel Cueto and Mac Smith. Joe Diaz, another Miller player, is another former ex-Spanish Club player. In place of the suspended Moore, Johnny Marre will use Jack O'Reilly. The three meetings between the clubs have resulted in a victory for the Andersons and two ties.

Ribby Murphy will referee the first game and Len Zarschel the second. Ollie Fink and Irv Wimer will be the linesmen.

TWO FOOTBALL GAMES TO BE PLAYED TODAY FOR EAST SIDE CHARITY

Two football contests will be played this afternoon at the Parson's Field, in East St. Louis, for the benefit of the East St. Louis Community Fund. The games are between the Sigma Gamma Phi and Delta Sigma Tau clubs in a preliminary, and the Triple F. and D. D. A. clubs in the feature attraction. All proceeds from the contests will be turned over to the East Side Community Fund.

The four teams are composed of college and high school football stars and some of the players have seen action on well-known college teams this year. Tom Cassidy of Kentucky U., Kenneth Beasley of Washington, Adolph Hraba of Kansas State, Bill Egan of Illinois State College and Charles Schiele of Missouri U. are some of the players slated for action.

The East Side Community Fund officials announced the first attraction will start at 12:30 o'clock while the feature will get under way at 1:45 o'clock. The admission for the games will be 25 cents.

Starting an Argument.

"GIVE us your idea of an all-star team, both Cardinals and Browns, taking into consideration all players on the teams during, say the past 25 years," writes a baseball fan whose initials are S. R. N. "I believe readers would be interested in the selections and at the same time it would produce some hot discussions regarding the merits of Hornsby vs. Frisch, Jacobson vs. Schulte, Thevenow vs. Gelbert, Ken Williams vs. Goslin, etc."

Hot discussion is right, Mr. S. R. N. And you have merely scratched the surface when you suggest the players over whom partisan fans might wax belligerently enthusiastic.

Speaking about shortstops like Tommy Thevenow and Charley Gelbert, how about a pretty fair country shortstop named "Rhoderick "Bobby" Wallace? Bobby was active late enough to come under the 25-year classification. Perhaps it was because those were the days when we were still hero worshippers, but it does seem that Wallace was the greatest ball player who ever performed at shortfield in a St. Louis uniform.

Tommy of 1926.

THEVENOW was a great player in 1926. He threw strikes to all bases, from all points in his territory. Gelbert also has played no small part in the success of the Cardinals since he became a regular. But we'd string along with Bobby Wallace as our shortstop.

One of the hottest of the arguments will center around the selection of a second baseman and you wouldn't have to do any crying if you had either Frankie Frisch or Rogers Hornsby at the middle sack. Hornsby in his prime and over a long stretch of years, was a heavier hitter, leading the National League for six straight years, while Frisch could and can do many things that the Rajah never could do. Frisch is much more efficient than Hornsby at hauling down pop flies, while close followers of the game will tell you that Hornsby was the best second baseman in the business at pivoting on a double play. That powerful arm of his, firing the ball without any wasted motion, completed many a double play that no other man could have finished.

The more you consider Hornsby and Frisch the more difficult it becomes to choose. If you'd cut it down to one year's play it would be easy to select Frankie Frisch of 1927. That season he was the greatest second baseman and perhaps even the greatest infielder that many persons ever saw.

A Turn-Around Standout.

THEN there's another thing about Frisch that must not be overlooked. He probably is the best turn-around hitter the game has known in the last 25 years. There have been many switch hitters, but few who could deliver extra base hits from either side of the plate.

Hornsby, on the other hand, is not a turn-around hitter, but he has made several pitchers moan.

George Sisler and Sparky Adams would get our vote for the other infield positions on an all-star St. Louis team. Sisler wins without any contest. He not only is the greatest first baseman St. Louis ever had, but has been picked by many outstanding baseball men as the greatest of all time in either league.

Adams wins the job at third base for his brilliant performance through the 1931 season. Sparky was a standout that year and Babe Ruth and all other pickers of 1931 all-star teams blundered when they selected anybody but Sparky. He did everything a third baseman could do. He made only one wild throw all season and was a master at grabbing hot grounders and starting double plays.

There is plenty of room for argument in picking an all-star outfield, especially if you could stretch that 25 years a little and go back to what the old-timers call the "good old days." In that case Jess Burkett and Emmett Heidrick undoubtedly would win places on many fans' teams.

Heidrick actually was on the Brownie roster in 1908, but he had been brought back from Hasbeenville and didn't tarry long. So you'd have to stretch a point and we'd have to take a lot of hearsay to pick them.

How About Hafey?

STICKING to the Cardinal and Brownie teams of more recent years, it would be difficult to keep Charles "Chick" Hafey off an all-star combination. He had all the tools when he was with the Cardinals. A great arm, a devastating punch at the plate and a knowledge of the hitters and their base running ability made him a great outfielder. Most of the fans realized his batting ability (except in October) but few followers of the game gave Chick the credit he deserved as a defensive man. However, when the Cardinals lost him, the fans, the experts and the players quickly realized that the loss had been serious and that Chick had been much more than a dangerous hitter. We'd pick Chick in preference to Kenny Williams, though the Brownie leftfielder of the near-pennant days was no humpty dumpty. You can't dismiss the leftfield argument without recalling Austin McHenry, a great Cardinal outfielder who was reaching his prime when he died.

We won't argue with you over center field. You may like Bill Jacobson or Fred Schulte or Pepper Martin or Heine Mueller, but Taylor Douthit, the fleet-footed Taylor of 1926, can play center field on our ball club. There never was a better fly chaser in St. Louis uniform and he was an aggressive hitter that year.

Tobin Leads Off.

JOHNNY TOBIN gets our vote in right field. Johnny was a great leadoff man, a dependable outfielder with a strong andaccurte arm and he was a master with the bat. He could bunt, drag, hit and run. And in a close game he was dangerous, because he could take a free swing from Borough Hall and clear most of the fences.

Another good rightfielder we remember was Chief Wilson, a big, powerful man who played right field for the Cardinals in the old days at Robison Field. He could throw a ball a mile and with rifle-like accuracy and a fair hitter.

When you talk of great catchers, fans of recent years will argue about Bob O'Farrell and Jimmy Wilson and Hank Severeid. But you'll have to go back for the king of St. Louis receivers. Lou Criger must have been a great backstop. Ban Johnson picked him on his all-star team of all time and he is generally recognized as one of the greatest catchers the game ever saw.

There's sure to be a long argument over the pitchers. There was Rube Waddell and Bill Dinneen and Urban Shocker and Jess Haines and Grover Cleveland Alexander and Bill Hallahan. There, offhand, is a pretty fair pitching staff. There never was a smarter pitcher than Shocker and nobody would object to having Alexander out there in an important game for money, marbles or fill 'em up again Gus and we'll take a little of the same.

DE MOLAY TEAMS PLAY TODAY FOR MISSOURI TITLE

The undefeated St. Louis Chapter of the De Molay will try to keep the State De Molay football championship in St. Louis, when it meets the mother chapter of Kansas City this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Maplewood High School field. Admission will be 25 cents.

St. Louis and Kansas City teams have met twice before and both times St. Louis representatives have carried off the honors. In 1930 the Carondelet chapter won, 6 to 0, and in 1931, Perfection was victorious, 13 to 0, at Kansas City.

Although the visitors have a strong lineup, they will have a difficult time taking the measure of the St. Louis Chapter, because the local champions went through the season without having their goal line crossed. The only eleven to push over a touchdown against St. Louis was the Jefferson Barracks team, which lost, 27 to 7, to the De Molay aggregation.

Coach Ralph Prinz has drafted six players from the other De Molay chapters to bolster the St. Louis squad. They are Franc Bittner, George Kippenberger, Mark Christman and H. Back of the Maplewood chapter; Walte Gog and Ralph Bensinger of Carondelet and Bill Wolf of Harmony.

Had Eight Children—Then Adopted Four More

How the Affairs of Jonathan Holden Got Into Court and Why the Judge Rebuked Him for the Eccentric Way He Managed His Family

By JACK ALEXANDER

PLEASANTVILLE, N. Y.

JONATHAN HOLDEN, who is tall and gaunt, wears a broad Stetson and looks like Abraham Lincoln, and his wife, Stella, who is pretty tired of this nonsense, came out of the Westchester County courthouse at White Plains the other day, reconciled, and returned to Pleasantville, a few miles off, to live under the same roof. It is a rather luxurious roof and Jonathan Holden is recognized as a well-to-do man. But in the opinion of those who have followed the battle of the Holdens in the public prints, it takes more than a fat checkbook, a beautiful home and the dismissal of Mrs. Holden's separation suit to hold the Holden's together.

At the root of the trouble seems to be the four Scandinavians. The Holdens, at least Mrs. Holden, wish they had never heard of the four Scandinavians. Unlike Joe Cook's four Hawaiians, famous for the spreading of joy and good feeling, the quartet of Scandinavians seems to have smashed the Holden family asunder.

Last April the four Scandinavians were living happily, presumably, in the Norwegian Foundling Home in Brooklyn and the Holdens were getting along all right in Westchester County, where Holden's forbears are recognized as pioneers. Holden, who is a lawyer, was seized with the idea of adopting the four foundlings, the precise reason being cloudy.

There was some talk of experimentation with pure Nordic stock in an American family atmosphere, but Holden is touchy on the subject now and will not talk for publication. So the record will have to be silent on that.

Mrs. Holden objected a little, but not enough to stymie her husband. See here, she demurred, in effect, we have eight children already. Four more would make twelve, including the Scandinavians, and why Scandinavians, anyway? His reply to this, according to Mrs. Holden, was: "I'll adopt 20 Scandinavians if I feel like it."

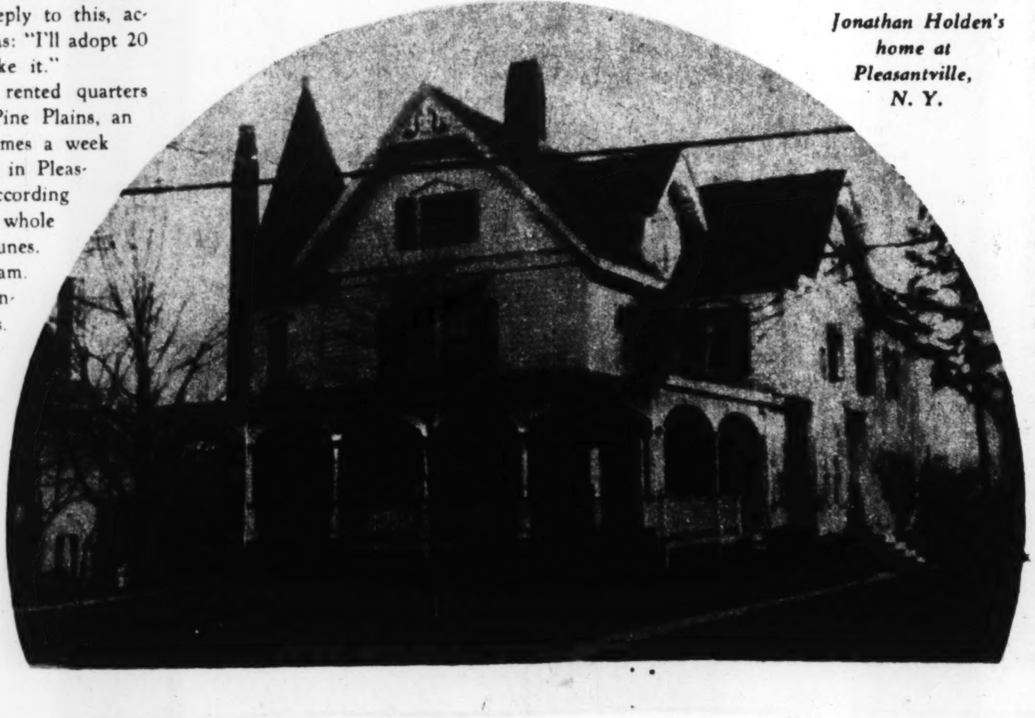
He adopted four and rented quarters for them and himself in Pine Plains, an adjoining town. Several times a week he would drop in at home in Pleasantville to say hello and, according to his wife, insist that the whole family practically live on prunes, shredded wheat and cream. There were many other indignities alleged by Mrs. Holden and they boiled over in her separation suit. Justice William F. Bleakley, of the Westchester County Supreme Court, at White Plains, boiled over, too, in an opinion sharp with sarcasm.

"While not willing to detract from the food value of the suggested diet," Justice Bleakley began, "the court will take judicial notice of the fact that an American family of growing children is in need of a more varied menu."

Justice Bleakley ordered Holden to pay his wife $100 a week alimony pending the outcome of the litigation, on hearing that he owned real estate valued at $500,000 and had an income of $50,000 a year.

Then he continued: "The papers are replete with charges which, if true, lead to only one conclusion, namely that the defendant is a master in the art of depriving his family by systematic means of the support to which its members are entitled."

The court, in searching for a motive for the strange conduct of the defendant, quoted from an article written by Holden for the old New York Globe in 1917, in part, as follows: "Suppose a group, even a single family, which might be more than average size and augmented, perhaps, by the adoption of foundlings which, rightly or wrongly, believe that the members of the group... might not this group without any dependence upon proselyting attain such a momentum of expansion as would severely test the competitive powers (of those following other faiths.)"



Jonathan Holden's home at Pleasantville, N. Y.

"Whatever this means," commented Justice Bleakley, "the answer to it is that any woman who has become the mother of nine children, eight of whom are living, cannot be forced to assume a protectorate over four strange children, where no provision is made for their care. The introduction of such children into a family constitutes inhuman treatment. "While women have demanded, and in most respects obtained, equality with men, the burdens will never be equal. A woman who brings into the world eight children, and nurtures and cares for them, has maintained a burden with which no burden of man can compare, and no husband has the right to add to such a burden even for the purpose of demonstrating a supposed philosophical theory."

Justice William F. Bleakley.

Holden is 46, his wife 42. They were married in 1910 at Scarsdale. After a honeymoon at the home of his parents in Northern New York, the pair went to Pleasantville. Here, according to Mrs. Holden, they occupied a single room which connected with Holden's law office, for seven years, using "cast-off" furniture turned over by clients in payment for legal services. By the light of a kerosene lamp, Mrs. Holden alleged, she did her husband's stenographic work to save money.

After seven years of living in this fashion, the Holdens, with a sizable family, moved into one of five houses then owned by Holden. After the arrival of the eighth child, Mrs. Holden's affidavit declared, Holden offered her $25 a week to be the janitress of his office. Meanwhile, she stated, they were using a baby carriage given by her father and sleeping in four beds which were gifts of relatives. In 1924, Holden moved his family into the ample home it now occupies. But, according to Mrs. Holden, his ways remained unchanged and she described him as "penurious, penny-squeezing and dollar-pinching."

THERE was the matter of the coat she had bought. He refused to pay for it and made the merchant sue for his bill, his wife declared. Then, when the oldest child, Elizabeth, became 20, Holden took her out of college and paid her $12 a week to work in his office; when she turned 21 he fired her and told her to look out for herself, the mother charged.

Janet, a year younger than Elizabeth, was similarly taken from school and put to work, the mother alleged, in a nearby town. Holden gave Janet a small machine to drive to and from work in, but insisted on payment of four cents a mile if the car were used for pleasure, the affidavit set forth. The other six children range from 16 to 11. When the four Scandinavians entered the family, Mrs. Holden told Justice Bleakley, things got worse. Holden, becoming enthused over the prune and shredded wheat diet, insisted his family also use it and had boxes of the cereal sent to the house, subtracting the cost from the weekly allowance, Mrs. Holden said.

When she was driven to the necessity of buying groceries on credit in order to vary the diet of the children, Holden took 15 per cent off her allowance for failing to pay cash, she declared.

The divided home, the prunes and shredded wheat and the four Scandinavians were pretty bad, but bearable. It wasn't until the lights were shut off for non-payment of the electric bill and Holden sent her a bill for $90 for rent on their own home, that she sought out the soothing influence of a lawyer, Mrs. Holden said.

The four Scandinavians are the talk of Pine Plains and Pleasantville. What is to become of them is not known, but it is virtually certain that they will not become a part of the Holden menage, Pleasantville branch. Nor will there be any more prune and shredded wheat edicts issued for a time. Holden is smarting from the acerbity of Justice Bleakley's judicial wrath and Mrs. Holden has developed a new, firm expression about the lips.

But it is the general belief that Holden still cherishes his pet sociological opinions and a yen for experimentation.

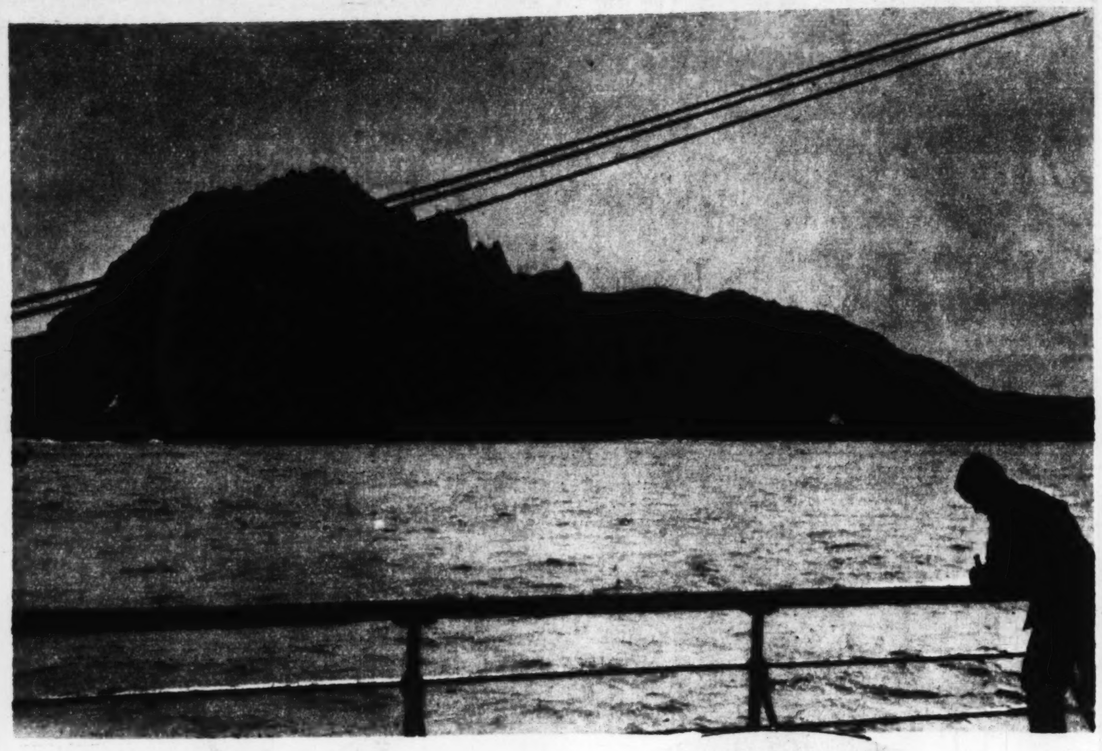
Hamilton Lawrence's Own Story of How He Helped to Take the Abraham Rydberg From San Francisco to Dublin.



Cape Horn itself, photographed from the Abraham Rydberg.

The following is an account of a voyage made by a sailing vessel, the Abraham Rydberg, from San Francisco to Dublin by way of Cape Horn, that bleak South American headland whose stormy seas constituted one of the high hazards of maritime travel before the days of steam and gave an adventurous significance to the phrase, "rounding the Horn." The story is taken from the diary of a 14-year-old high school boy, Hamilton Lawrence of San Francisco, who was a member of the crew.

The Rydberg, a four-masted bark which formerly had been operated in the Alaska cannery service as the Star of Greenland, was bought in San Francisco by Commander Sune Tamm of the Swedish Naval Reserve, who acquired it for the Abraham Rydberg Foundation to use as a training ship for the Swedish merchant marine. To reduce the expense of getting the vessel to Sweden, the captain took on a cargo of barley for delivery at Dublin.

Young Lawrence met Commander Tamm at a dinner at the home of a friend and arranged to ship on the voyage as an apprentice, or cadet. After completion of the voyage, which took place in 1930, Hamilton returned to high school and is now about to graduate. He expects to take a course in aeronautical engineering at Leland Stanford Jr. University. His journal, which has been printed and circulated among his friends, gives a day-by-day account of the voyage. The ship did not put into port from the time it left San Francisco until it reached Dublin.

ON January 25, the Abraham Rydberg sailed away from San Francisco on its four-month voyage, manned by a crew consisting, in addition to Captain Tamm and his two mates, of 16 seamen, a cook, a carpenter, a steward and two apprentices, one of whom was young Hamilton Lawrence. There were two passengers, a Mr. and Mrs. Ames.

On that first day at sea Hamilton wrote in his diary: "We are out of sight of land now except the Farallones. There is very little breeze and fairly large waves and the ship is acting like an elevator.

"I looked on the bulletin board and found that I was on the starboard watch under the second mate. Clinton (the other cadet) and Collier are on port watch. I go on duty at 7 and stay on until 12. I go on again at 4. Tomorrow the port watch will be on from 7 to 12. Thus we alternate. . . .

"The second mate was very surprised when he found that I did not have a shaving set along. 'Oh yes', he informed me, 'your beard grows very fast at sea. Believe me, you'll have a crop before we reach Dublin. And maybe if you get a lot of hair on your chest you can be a boatswain.

"I went on duty at 7. The first two hours I spent at the wheel learning to steer. . . . I was lookout from 10:20 p. m. to 12. It is a cold, tiresome job just looking out to sea. My job was to strike the time on a bell up forward and then holler, 'Lights burning brightly, Sir!' If they were. I was also the lookout for lights on the sea. If I struck one bell it meant 'Light to starboard', two for port and three for dead ahead. I was on again at 4 next morning."

The next day: "My lookout this morning was from 4 a. m. to 5:30 a. m. It was the most lonesome, dreary job I ever ran into. It was sunny late this morning and then the wind died down and came again from another quarter and my watch had to tack ship. We were even drifting backward at one time. The sea was smooth as glass and the atmosphere sultry. It is 7 p. m. now and we are going along slowly but steadily.

"It is funny to see the quaint customs that prevail on this ship. Whistling is absolutely taboo. Also when you go up on the poop deck, you must always go up the lee side, as the windward is reserved for the officers.

"I am off duty till 12 p. m. so I must get some sleep."

The waves became rough but Hamilton was not seasick. He helped with the ordinary labors, received instruction in the names of the many ropes used in handling the ship, went aloft and took over the job of marking the vessel's position on a chart in the forecastle. Then, on January 29, occurred an event of first importance to a youngster responsive to the lure of the sea.

"All this morning I have been working on a steel cable, part of the work being done aloft. At 11:30 a. m. I took the wheel for the first time! What a kick in more ways than one. The wheel kicked and bucked under my hand as there were mountainous seas running. I had a terrible job keeping the course at first. The wake of the ship looked like a snake. After dinner I got our position from the captain. It is several hundred miles out from San Francisco and about opposite. . . .

"The meals are good and I am getting along fine, and I never had a touch of seasickness. They sent me up in the royals this evening to help furl them."

January 30: "Water for washing has just about run out now and I may have to start using that ambrosia soap Mother left me. One older member of the crew has become my 'Father' for this trip, and another, my 'Brother'. We always address each other as such and it is really binding. 'Father' always tell me what to do and I never do anything without his permission. . . . This afternoon I had my first regular trick at the wheel without someone near. I had the wheel for two and a half hours and during the last hour I managed to keep a straight course. . . . The Second put me to work 'whipping' ropes with a large needle and twine. Instead of a thimble you use a leather plate with a thing that looks like a volcano to press the needle."

The weather became warm as the ship sailed southward, and several of the crew, including Hamilton, had their heads shaved. The boy learned to splice ropes, and took a hand at scraping paint off the lifeboats.

February 4: "This morning my 'brother', whose real name is Rode Jensen, and I painted a lot of the lifeboats we were working on yesterday. . . . Boy! We are down in the tropics all right. While we were working on the boat we got all het up and sweaty. It is about 90 now and getting hotter. This morning I saw two whales. Two little punks about 30 feet long came visiting and to rub the barnacles off their backs. They would slide up to the surface, give a snort and then sound again. Both of them came gliding under the ship not ten feet from where we sat in the lifeboat. You could plainly see the barnacles on their backs. . . . My father's full name is Harold W. Sorenson."

Members of the crew.

Hamilton became "Captain Kid" to the crew. He went about his work in pants and underwear during the sultry days as they approached the Equator, or in oilskins and boots during the torrential rains, taking his regular turn at the wheel despite high winds and heavy seas.

On February 9: "As soon as we got off at 12, Mac and I took a 'bath'. In other words we went out into the storm with a cake of soap and washed ourselves. This morning at 4 I had the wheel again. . . . Soon it was a blinding storm, rain coming down in torrents and a gale humming through the rigging. I had to steer by the wind and with the compass face obscured by water and the wheel plunging and jerking in my hand I was far from comfortable. I was thinking of my responsibility. If I got too far east of my course the wind would tear the sails right off the yard, but I managed all right. . . .

"Four or five of the fellows on board can play the harmonica so we have a neat little band playing on Sundays. I borrow one off John Collier and join in. We have seen a lot of flying fish lately. Today being Sunday we did no work except wash our clothes."

In addition to sailoring, Hamilton was learning Swedish, through listening to the seamen of that nationality. By the time the ship was off the coast of Ecuador, less than a month out of port, he was able to understand and answer a few questions in the Scandinavian tongue.

February 12: "Today is the birthday of one of the members of the crew, Harry Christianson. Boy, we had a swell time. All the Americans on board had stores of some kind so Del donated oranges, Mac cookies, and I candy, of which I had an abundant supply. Another donated free cigarettes. Our deck is being scraped now and that is what I am doing. . . . Mrs. Ames' cabin was too hot so she took mine while I slept out on the hatch. . . . My Swedish is progressing finely and I know every part of the ship in Swedish and English. I can understand all the Swedish commands given on this ship. . . ."

THE ship crossed the Equator February 13, and Hamilton wrote: "Tonight when I was on lookout 'Dad' came up. 'If we cross the Line while you are up there, reach down and cut the Line from the bowsprit so we can pass through,' says he. 'All right,' says I, 'but how will I know the Line is there?' 'It's a thin copper band', he tells me. 'Ring four bells when we come to it.'

"Tonight we crossed the Line and I was at the helm. I was disappointed when Neptune didn't come aboard."

But the neophyte was not to escape a visit from Neptune and the traditional ceremonies incident to it. On February 15 he recorded: "It is rumored that Neptune will come aboard today.

"Yes, he did, all right, and I was initiated in this manner. They laid me down on the hatch and the doctor tickled me all over and then fed me a raw fish ball. Then I was given a dose of raw vinegar which I spouted straight up in the air like a whale. Then a dose of catsup diluted with pepper and water, which I also expelled: The captain was laughing at the whole ceremony so hard that he pretty nearly fell off the roof of the donkey house where he was sitting. Then I was pushed into a huge tub of brine and plentifully lathered with tar and then shaved with a huge wooden razor. Another bucket of sea water was then dumped on me and I received my letter of dismissal. In this my name was filled out as 'Lawrence Staysail'. This letter cautioned me against bringing too many provisions on the next vessel I shipped on. Delmar (the other apprentice), who was also initiated, received the name of 'Delmar Ratline'. My 'Dad' took the part of Neptune and Hans Christian Anderson was his wife. There were three policemen, in oilskins and paper stars. Doctor and barber and an astronomer, too. They all had beards and hair of rope yarn. Neptune's red nose and roped mustache I have for a souvenir.

"THE object of the initiation apparently was to make you so dirty that you could never be clean again. Before and after the conference, Neptune and his court came and formally addressed the captain. A couple of bottles of wine were opened and then we were given the afternoon off. I took quite a few pictures with my camera. I was also given a tomfool's knot along with my Line birth certificate, for what I don't know. Everybody got one, not just me."

Off the coast of Peru, with the ship almost becalmed, Hamilton discovered that sailoring has its esthetic moments. "The sunsets out here are impossible to describe. Just imagine jutting black and red cliffs of cloud against a background of orange sky tinted with green, and you have a slight idea of this magnificence."

On February 22 there was a bit of excitement. "We are becalmed now, so Gusta went over the side for a swim. He had swum all the way up to the bow when Eddie, who was working on the upper topsail yard, yelled: 'Quick. Get back in. Hurry up.' Gusta asked no questions, but swam for the Jacob's ladder and climbed up. Eddie then reported that a seven-foot swordfish was circling him, with obvious intent."

The next day a healthy boy, getting plenty of work and fresh air, reports:

"This morning I ate breakfast at 7:30. Mac and I shared 10 huge hotcakes. I got there first, so I got six of them. They sure were good. . . . This afternoon at coffee time we had doughnuts. They are very good."

The ship passed the Manga Reva Islands. There was some talk of going ashore, but the vessel kept on its way. Hamilton's "father" had a birthday, and the boys gave him a can of water biscuits and a can of wafers. The bark met a steamer one night, and the tw

WITHIN TEN MINUTES of EXECUTION

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

BENNY GORDON has won, at last, his fight against the electric chair. After almost two years in the death house at Sing Sing prison, the order for his execution has been nullified, and if Benny keeps out of serious trouble hereafter he probably will never have to travel "the last mile."

Few men have had narrower escapes from the "hot seat." Ten times Benny's life was saved by reprieves. One arrived after the prisoner's head had been shaved and his trousers slit in preparation for the execution; in 10 minutes he would have walked—or been carried—into the "dance hall," as Sing-Sing's electric-chair room is called.

The story of Benny's triumph over death is not an heroic one. Benny is not heroic, or even respectable, despite the fact that this slim, white-faced fellow of 28, with his big, horn-rimmed glasses, looks a bit like a Sunday school teacher. His escape from the chair is not a vindication by any means. His sentence has been commuted to life imprisonment merely because he turned state's evidence—"squealed" on another man. That's how Benny saved his life, after it became evident that legal devices and the pleas of family and friends would ultimately fail.

The affair which involved Benny in his desperate, prolonged struggle to continue living was a holdup-murder. According to testimony, Benny—Cock-eyed Benny, as he was known in the Bronx underworld—and two companions held up the offices of the Par-Cab Taxicab Corporation on July 28, 1929, taking $419 from the cashier and $25 from 13 taxi drivers. One of the drivers, Anthony Grisoli, who had started work only the day before, was slow in raising his hands at the robbers' order. One of them shot and killed him. The robbers escaped.

One snowy night about six months later Patrolman Maurice O'Brien was murdered—shot down at Fifth avenue and 113th street. That was January 30, 1930. On February 2 Cock-eyed Benny slipped out of town.

The police learned of Benny's departure and traced him to Detroit. There detectives found and arrested him, despite his use of the aliases Wallace and Hartman. Returned to New York, he found himself charged with the murder of Grisoli. Investigation of the shooting of the policeman continued.

Benny Gordon was indicted by a Bronx grand jury for the murder of Grisoli, tried and found guilty. On January 22, 1931, he was sentenced to death by Supreme Court Justice Albert Cohn. Execution was set for the week of February 25.

Execution was stayed while Gordon's lawyers tried to obtain a new trial. They failed, the Court of Appeals finally ruling against them on November 17, 1931. After this decision, Benny was scheduled to sit in the electric chair the night of January 7, 1932. His fate appeared to be sealed.

During his stay in the death house, Cock-eyed Benny harked back to the religion of his childhood and was befriended by Rabbi Jacob Katz, Jewish chaplain at Sing Sing. Rabbi Katz, accompanied by Gordon's parents and counsel, visited Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and begged that Benny's life be spared until new evidence could be presented. The Governor, touched by the Rabbi's earnest plea, granted respite No. 2—for two weeks. Reprieve No. 3 soon followed; just why it was granted was not made public.

ON FEBRUARY 11, a week before the execution date then scheduled, Detective Francis Short and George Johannides of New York, armed with an order signed by Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel, called on the condemned man. Great was the stir in the death house. The prisoners learned at once, in the mysterious fashion in which prisoners do learn what is going on, that the detectives wanted to ask Benny what he knew about the murder of Patrolman O'Brien. Benny, it developed, didn't know a thing about that. No, sir, not one thing.

Further pleas for a new trial were futile. Five witnesses testified Benny had fired the fatal shot in the taxicab company holdup.

On February 17 Governor Roosevelt was again confronted with Gordon's friends, pleading for a reprieve. This time the prisoner's fiancee and Rabbi Morris Schuchatowitz of New York City were in the group. An attorney, George F. Mara, charged that Gordon's sentence was a police frameup. An Assistant District Attorney, Sol Boneparth, denied it. The fiancee jumped from her chair and started for the Governor. She was restrained and taken back to Benny's sobbing parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Gordon.

The lawyer declared that Benny would disclose the names of the others in the holdup with him.

The hours dragged on. February 18—the date of the execution—arrived. At 6:30 p. m. Samuel Rosenman, counsel to the Governor, called the prison and said Gordon was to be granted one week's reprieve.

"Thanks, thanks. That's fine," said Benny to Warden Lewis E. Lawes.

But, apparently, Benny reneged. For the next word was that he had absolutely nothing to say about the Grisoli or O'Brien murders.

So the shadow of the chair again deepened on Cock-eyed Benny. The new execution date was February 25.

He was to die at 11 o'clock that night. The hours crept on slowly. The condemned man had had his last talk with his parents, his brother, his sister. He had been placed in the cell next the execution chamber. He had eaten his last meal—fruit salad, rolls and coffee. Silently, he donned the light, scant clothing which men wear to the electric chair. Silently, he waited as his head was shaved to make place for the electrodes which were soon to fit over his skull. Silently he watched as his trouser legs were slit. Quietly he arranged to take his last walk with Rabbi Katz.

Two others who were to die that night received reprieves.

"It doesn't look so good for me," said Benny, shaking his head.

Frantically, the prisoner summoned Warden Lawes. And they held a hurried conference. The Warden hastened to the phone and talked to J. P. Alderman, Bronx Assistant District Attorney. Alderman called Governor Roosevelt on long distance. And at 10:40—20 minutes before the execution was to take place—a reprieve of one week came.

Gordon was ready to "talk."

On March 3, the next date of execution, his reprieve came as a matter of course. He had, according to a telegram sent Governor Roosevelt by District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain, "given police officers detailed information regarding another case, and such information requires minute investigation."

The truth of the matter was that he had named a man as the murderer of Patrolman O'Brien, and the detectives were trying to catch him. It looked like a good long wait for Benny.

Four keepers, one of them shackled to Gordon, hurried him down from Ossining to New York to give his testimony to the grand jury so that his pal, Jack Zaroff, 28, a taxicab driver, might be indicted for the murder of Patrolman O'Brien. In less than half an hour Gordon was on his way back to the death house.

HE WAS to die March 31, but he got a reprieve at 1 p. m. that afternoon, so he might be on earth to testify at Zaroff's trial. Four died that night, but Gordon stayed on. For 30 days, thereafter, he sat in his cell waiting for the word that Zaroff had been caught and the trial was on.

He couldn't, for the life of him, he said, remember Zaroff's hiding place in Newark, N. J.

And so, once again, the death house called him "a goner." He was scheduled to die April 20—but if he died that night his family must bury him immediately, for the Passover, Jewish religious holiday, began the following sunset.

Patrolman O'Brien.

Warden Lawes moved the execution date up to Tuesday, April 18.

Twenty-four hours before the time set for the execution Gordon sent for Lawes again. He insisted that Zaroff could be picked up in Newark and that he frequented a place "with an awfully long bar."

In Newark there is a speakeasy named "The Long Bar," and on the chance that Benny's tip was of value he got another reprieve—this time for 90 days.

The place was surrounded immediately by policemen in plain clothes. Detectives William Kirwin of New York and John Reilley of Newark went in and found that Zaroff "wasn't in." They took a table and waited several hours. Zaroff came in. Apparently he got a signal, for he dashed to a phone booth. The detectives, one of whom leaped over a table, got to the booth door just as Zaroff was drawing a pistol. Reilley got the drop on him and Zaroff was taken.

There was considerable change in Zaroff's appearance. Little more than a year before he had worn glasses, was smooth shaven and weighed about 175 pounds. Now he had a mustache, wore no glasses and weighed 225 pounds.

His trial began in June and Benny, white-faced and shifty-eyed, was brought under heavy guard from Sing Sing.

Assistant District Attorney Kaminsky told the jury he would show Gordon and Zaroff had planned to hold up a jewelry store the night of January 30, 1930. They had stolen an automobile. The car had stalled. They were looking for another one when Patrolman O'Brien happened along, and Zaroff shot him.

Defense Attorney Samuel Liebowitz told the jury he would show that Gordon was a cheap, sniveling murderer, who had cooked up this story to save his own skin, and that Benny shot O'Brien himself. He said he would prove further that Gordon had committed other robberies, that Zaroff knew of these, and that Gordon had paid him to stay out of town.

Benny Gordon was, of course, the State's chief witness. A human circle—half a dozen detectives, three prison keepers, and two court attendants—stood around him when he took the witness chair. There had been whisperings that someone would attempt to kill Gordon while he sat on the witness stand. Consequently on the first day of his testimony the courtroom was cleared of all except attendants, lawyers and reporters.

Benny's cheeks were pale and sunken. There was terror in his eyes. He spoke in such low tones that Judge Joseph E. Corrigan, finding himself unable to hear, rose and leaned over the bar, and Gordon's chair was moved closer to Judge and jury.

"Zaroff was walking along with me on 113th street," Benny said, "when we saw a cop coming near Lenox avenue. 'I've got a gun on me,' Zaroff says. 'I've got to give it to him quick.' "

Gordon moved uneasily in his chair, glanced quickly at Zaroff's counsel, and then away.

"I says to him," he continued, " 'Don't do it, Jack. Fling it!' But just then the cop said, 'Get up against that wall.' Instead of doing it Zaroff pulled his .45 and said to the cop, 'You stick 'em up. You get up against the wall, damn you!' The cop raised his nightstick and Zaroff let him have it. As the cop fell Zaroff leaned over and shot him three or four times. Then he jumped in a cab and left me standing there."

UNDER cross-examination Benny said he never thought of "squealing" until he saw his mother faint on one of her "last visits" to him. "Before that I'd rather die than squeal," he declared.

His mother and sister had told him, he said, that if he would only confess anything he knew about the murder of Patrolman O'Brien he could probably get a commutation of sentence.

Another witness, William Goldman, a taxi driver, told of seeing the murder, told of Zaroff dashing into his cab and saying, "Drive like hell or you'll get the same dose." With a pistol against his back the cab driver said he raced up to 136th street where Zaroff left him with the farewell, "Keep your trap shut or I'll get you like I got the cop."

Zaroff, on the stand in his own defense, said that on the night of the shooting he had started off to the Republican Club to see about a job.

"On 113th street I saw Gordon and he suggested accompanying me to the club. A police officer came up behind us and said he wanted to see Gor-

Goat Calahan's Capture

By

KARL W. DETZER

"Ossie sat up, forgetting his headache."

OSSIE KLUMP expected the Sheriff to call that morning. He had sent the big man word, boastfully, the night before. The detective school course had arrived, and he wanted Jim Storm to know it.

For a dozen years Ossie had quarreled with the Sheriff. A dozen years he had itched to wear a deputy sheriff's star, and as many times Jim Storm had refused him.

"I voted for you," Ossie said to Jim the morning after that gentleman's first election. "I want to be your deputy."

"Git out, Ossie," the Sheriff replied, without thought of the awful consequences which may hang upon a word.

Two years later Ossie announced his own candidacy. He put on a whirlwind campaign. But so did Jim Storm, and on election night Ossie counted exactly 11 votes.

The next campaign, and the next, Ossie ran again, with enthusiasm undimmed, but with little encouragement from the voters. And then, one Sunday in May, he discovered the detective school advertisement.

"Be a detective!" it commanded. "In 10 simple lessons we teach you spotting, trailing, shadowing, disguise."

Ossie clipped the coupon and mailed the money order. And straightway received the course, which, by proper application, he could master in 10 easy lessons.

He displayed the letter at the barber shop that night; in the morning, just as he expected, there came the sound on his door of Jim Storm's official knuckles.

"Come in," Ossie bade.

Storm came in. "What's this I hear?" he demanded.

"This detective school," Storm thundered. "What about it?"

"Oh, yes," Ossie admitted. He cleared a stack of magazines from a chair, sat down and lighted his pipe. "I'm learnin' the business, Sheriff. Here 'tis."

He waved the 10 easy lessons in the Sheriff's face.

"Where'd you get it?" Storm demanded.

"Bought it," Ossie said. "When I'm done, maybe you'll be in the market for it. Now, shadowin', f'rinstance"—

The Sheriff roared.

"I was practicing," Ossie admitted. "I shadowed you."

"Me?"

"To the back o' the pool hall and seen you take that drink."

"I've a notion to arrest ye," Storm howled.

OSSIE rubbed his Adam's apple with a blunt forefinger.

"It wasn't me took the drink," he reminded Storm, "and by next election I ought to have a lot more information. I was talkin' to Miss Dume yesterday. You ain't found yet who took her Barred Plymouth Rocks. An' Doc Pratt's alcohol is still missin' that was burglared outen his office. An' "——

"You tend your business and I'll tend mine!" Storm roared.

He tramped out. Ossie watched him go, his whole small being transfused with triumph. For once, Jim Storm had taken notice of him.

"It is possible to pick up much information by frequenting public places," he read in the second lesson. "A pose of disinterest is always more effective than an appearance of being eager to hear. Barber shops, restaurants, pool halls, etc., offer a fertile field for the student investigator."

Ossie sought fertile fields. When he arrived at the pool hall, Sheriff Storm was already within. Ossie sat down on the porch, listening intently to the talk inside. It sounded to him very much like ordinary pool room talk.

He was yielding to the sleepy warmth of the May sunshine when a glossy car purred to the curb. The chauffeur, a large man, with a face inscrutable as a stopped clock, motioned to him. In the rear seat rode three men, dressed, Ossie observed, like resorters from the summer colony five miles away.

The chauffeur demanded crustily, "Seen the Sheriff?"

"He's playin' pool," Ossie obliged. "Hey, Sheriff," he shouted. Then he sat down again, his small eyes staring vacantly at the hitching rack. Jim Storm waddled masterfully down the steps.

"Morning," he said.

The man in the middle of the back seat answered, "I'm Mr. Munson, Sheriff: I bought the old Baldwin place, out on the point."

"Yeah? Nice place," the Sheriff said.

"Just got the place finished and now I'm called back to New York. Wanted you to know it was vacant, so you could keep an eye on it."

OSSIE looked hard at Mr. Munson, who was a smallish man, particularly so wedged in between his two large friends.

"I'm afraid of sneakthieves," Munson was saying, but Jim Storm broke in:

"Sure, I'll keep an eye on it."

"Here's the key to the main gate, down on the county road," Munson added. "It's locked. As long as you have the key, nobody'll get in."

Ossie saw the key, a cigar and a banknote change hands. The car purred away, and Ossie returned home at once to his 10 easy lessons.

For two nights he practiced shadowing on the hills above the town. It was a week later, while he was on his fifth lesson, that his eyes fell again on Sheriff Storm.

A State trooper's motorcycle stood in front of the poolroom as Ossie approached it. So he sat down on the porch, tipped back the chair, and closed his eyes. Within the open door Storm's voice was booming.

"Goat Calahan? You're crazy! Think I don't know my own county?"

The trooper answered, "I didn't say your county. I said he was hiding somewhere up here. And there's $500 on him."

"If he was in my county, I'd get it, all right," Storm answered. "What's the charge against him?"

"Public enemy."

The Sheriff repeated, "He ain't around here."

Ossie opened his eyes and stared after the departing trooper. Five hundred dollars! Single-handed, without star or handcuffs, Ossie would have arrested a pair of starved lions for $500.

He returned home again, scanned lessons one to five for guidance that seemed to fit the circumstances, and set off at once for the hills.

His thought reverted naturally to Mr. Munson, who had left his cottage to the careless attention of Jim Storm. There were scores of such cottages, all standing vacant and, for all Ossie knew, scores of keys and cigars and banknotes passed.

He proceeded two miles to a hilltop. There the shore line lay unfolded at his feet, and he cut across the shoulder of the next rise to the shaded solitude of a ravine, approaching the lake. When the ravine ended, there still spread between him and the shore, 40 sour acres of bottom land, owned and occupied by the elderly Miss Emmy Perkins.

Miss Emmy, in addition to her farmstead, owned a deep sense of property. Her eleventh commandment made trespass the unpardonable sin. Knowing this, Ossie paused for a moment and studied her house.

By crawling through a stand of weeds and skirting a dry brook, he might cross her domain and thus save two miles of roundabout footwork. And at the same time, he reasoned, do a little very valuable practice in the fine art of concealment.

But he reckoned without the Perkins dog. He was crawling along the creek bed, not a hundred yards from the house, when he came to a fence. He had started to climb it, when the house door snapped open and the dog burst forth.

"Get him, Dewey!" its mistress was crying. "Get him!"

Ossie was over the fence before he heard the explosion. On all fours he made off through the willows. He had gained the woods behind the nearest summer houses before he paused. He could see the Perkins farm, its dog still charging backward and forward, but of Miss Perkins herself there was no sign.

Of course, he could not know that at the moment she was telephoning wildly to Sheriff Storm, describing the intruder she just had driven off, the large, ferocious madman with a knife in his teeth, against whom she had defended herself to the utmost of her strength.

Ossie went on. The first summer property he approached was to all appearances unoccupied. Blown sand, undisturbed by footprints, covered the walk. He circled the building twice, thinking of Mr. Goat Calahan and Sheriff Storm and $500.

The second house and the third sat luxuriously in their wooded parks. Ossie observed them critically, passed to the fourth and the fifth, and so came to the sixth. He recognized it. This was the old Baldwin place, purchased last fall by the neat Mr. Munson.

Ossie stood behind a tree, watching and listening. Then, cutting through the cedars, he approached the gate. It was locked, as Mr. Munson had said. Jim Storm had the key.

BUT shucks, a man could get over the gate, slip up to the house and steal everything in it, or live in it, and Storm never would know about it. Ossie squatted behind a juniper bush and eyed the rear door professionally.

Then a voice said unpleasantly, "Well, what are you doing here?"

Ossie, at the minute, couldn't remember what he was doing. A man stood beside him, a large individual with a square jaw. His hands were in his pockets. He repeated his question.

Ossie smiled, but the man didn't. Ossie decided to tell the truth.

"I'm a detective," he said.

"A what?" The man stepped closer.

"Detective," Ossie said. "Of course, I ain't graduated yet."

The man said, "Oh!" Then: "I guess you better go somewhere else to do your detecting."

He stood between Ossie and the house. Ossie's eyes strayed over it. Windows were shuttered. But from the chimney a thin yellow line of smoke was straying. Observing it, Ossie engaged in the process of deduction, as directed in his 10 easy lessons, and at once felt his heart kick him in the ribs, demanding action.

"I'm lookin' over the cottages," Ossie said, "So's to see nobody busts in and steals things."

Ossie replied, "I think I'll arrest you on gen'ral principles. I think . . . ." he paused. The man's jaw was thrust out. "I think you're comin' back to town with me . . ."

Ossie saw a fist approach rapidly through the air. He never had been hit by a railroad train, but he knew now what it felt like. He lay on his back, overflowing with pain. A voice was calling, "Hey, see what I found,"

Other voices replied. Ossie was carried roughly, to Mr. Munson's cottage.

When he opened his eyes an electric light shone directly on him. He was lying on the floor, in a kitchen. The windows were shuttered.

The man who had hit him, and another were leaning over him. Ossie, looking at them, was confused. Then he remembered. This second man was one of the friends Munson had had with him the day he talked to the Sheriff.

Ossie said, weakly: "How d'y do? I remember you, mister."

"Remember me?"

"Saw you in front of the poolroom, talking to the Sheriff."

"Yeah?"

"Yeah," Ossie replied.

A new voiced asked: "What you got there, Charlie?"

Ossie sat up, forgetting his headache. Remembering $500. Goat? Goat? Goat?

The other man stepped forward into the light. Ossie blinked. It was Mr. Munson, who should have been in New York. Mr. Munson, Goat Calahan . . . $500!

"He's squirrelly," Calahan diagnosed. Ossie sat up straighter, but Calahan pushed him down with his foot. "Listen!" he whispered.

Out of doors a car was squeaking to a halt. The man Charlie stepped quickly to a hole in the shutter.

"That damn Sheriff!" he exclaimed. "Hell, there's three carloads . . ."

He was backing away. Bill already was running toward the back of the house.

Calahan directed: "I'll take this door! Bill, the side! Lights off! If they come up"——

BILL had a pistol in his hand. He ran from the kitchen. Ossie was alone with Goat Calahan. Calahan turned off the light.

Ossie was on his knees. The kitchen table loomed at his right hand. On the table stood a cast-iron frying pan. Ossie lifted it by its long handle.

"Lay still!" Calahan whispered. But he did not turn.

Ossie drew back his arm. As it swung forward, he put compound interest into the blow he had received half an hour ago. Calahan fell quietly, except for his gun, which thumped on the floor. Ossie picked it up. He had to pull Calahan away before he could get the door open.

Back at the county jail, where a doctor patched Calahan's head and his bodyguards sat disconsolately in cells, Ossie told the story. Men patted him on the back. Only Sheriff Storm listened without enthusiasm.

"So I get $500," Ossie finished, "but I'm willin' to share it. I'll let the Sheriff have a hundred of it. He helped me bring 'em in."

"What about the other $400?" someone asked.

"I figger on usin' it for p'litical purposes," Ossie said. "Election's coming."

The Sheriff stood up.

"Gents," he said, "I got an idee. I been aimin' for some time to appoint Ossie my deputy." He opened his desk drawer and from it pulled an extra star.

Ossie looked at it a long time.

"Thankee, Sheriff," he said at length. He still was mild, still meek, even in his hour of triumph. "If you want it, sir," he offered as he pinned the star to his vest, "I'll give you the loan of my 10 easy lessons. Me, I wouldn't of got anywhere without 'em."

LES BARBARES

Ils sont venus tous en vainqueurs,
Sans cris bruyants, ni sans fanfare,
Mais de l'orgueil tout plein le cœur.

Ils ont frappé fort à la porte,
Ils sont entrés dans la maison :
Ils ont bu, mangé, mais qu'importe,
La faim, la soif, dures raisons.

Ils ont fait un lit dans la paille,
Ils ont dormi et de grand cœur,
Rêvant, qui sait, ou de bataille
Ou d'un foyer plein de bonheur?

Ils ont dit merci à la femme,
Ils ont embrassé le gamin,
Parlant d'un mot venu de l'âme,
Puis ils ont repris leur chemin.

PALO ALTO, California.

WITHIN a few years, such being the course of human destiny, an aged world figure will die. One of the oddest effects of this great man's demise will be that at Leland Stanford Jr. University at Palo Alto, California, a group of men—the death being their signal—will open a sealed package, containing a number of documents.

Then and only then, will the world know the answer to some of the mysterious things which happened during the World War. For the place where this package reposes today—thousands of miles from the battlefields—is the greatest repository of World War secrets in the world.

It is the Hoover War Library, originated and founded by President Hoover. His idea was to collect every available scrap of war history material so future generations may try to determine what things caused this greatest conflict in the history of mankind. This library has been assembled—and is even yet being asembled, for the process is expected to go on for years—at President Hoover's alma mater, Stanford University.

Here are war secrets—trivial, shameful, heroic, sensational as TNT! Here are documents, publication of which might blast the reputations of monarchs and end the careers of statesmen, sealed and variously marked "Not to be opened until 1950" . . . "Not to be opened before the death of donor" . . . "Not to be opened before the death of the King of the Lowlands"—or President Something or Field Marshal X. One is not even permitted to identify these world-famous figures.

Folders, pamphlets, staff communications marked "secret" and "very secret," records of commissions, Red and anti-Red posters from Germany, Austria, Hungary, Russia, Rumania, recruiting posters from England, volumes with the bookplates of the Emperors of Russia and members of their families, the ex-Kaiser's hand-written manifestos, President Wilson's letters and notes, President Hoover's war relief correspondence, "everything on Belgium by the Belgians," every document that could be begged or bought on the Russian revolution, ditto on the Hungarian revolution, the archives of Wellington House—that center of British Empire war propaganda, manuals of French for the use of German soldiers in the conquered provinces of France, photographs picturing the atrocities of war and of famine . . . books on the war from every country in the world!

The most secret of these, of course, are the sealed packets setting times when they may be opened and given to the world for the first time. These are in a strong room not open to the public.

Those privileged to break the seals, when the time comes, may discover the real truth about such matters as the Allies' policy in regard to Bolshevism, what underlay the general strike in England, and, perhaps, the answer to the greatest question arising out of the World War: "Who really started it, anyway?"

What surprises may be due in some quarters when these packages are opened! The heads of a powerful political machine overseas, for instance, whose confidential publications, unknown to them, are reposing, neatly tied with string, catalogued and indexed, in far-away Palo Alto. A rare collection of war documents, in another instance, which cannot be mentioned for the reason that they have been declared by a European ministry to have been secretly destroyed!

Strange and, sometimes, mysteriously devious were the ways in which some of these documents were obtained.

SOME years ago an American historian, the late Prof. Ephraim Douglass Adams of Stanford University, was walking along a street just off Piccadilly Circus in London. He had been called to Europe for a special purpose by Mr. Hoover, then head of the American Relief Administration.

As the American went his way, he suddenly realized that someone in a hurry was trying to overtake him. Turning, he found himself facing a man he had never seen before.

"Take this!" said the stranger, handing Prof. Adams a bulky package, and then abruptly disappearing down a side street.

Interested to know what it all meant, the historian carried the package to his rooms. Unwrapping it, he discovered that he had been presented with an exceedingly rare file of publications issued by a society which the British authorities had suppressed during the war.

Now how did the stranger in Piccadilly Circus know that this was exactly the type of material which Prof. Adams had come to Europe to collect? The historian did not stop to inquire.

The file, which literally fell into his hands, now forms part of the unique war data preserved in the Hoover War Library.

The priceless collections of the library are housed on the ground floor of the university library pending the erection of a special building. Only two other collections in the world can rival them: the Bibliotheque de Musee de la Guerre, in Paris, and the Weltkriegsbucherei in Stuttgart, Germany. The Library of Congress at Washington, D. C., and the Imperial War Museum in London lag far behind, by comparison, as war document repositories.

Interested persons come from different parts of the United States and all the way from Europe to consult documents found only in the Hoover War Library. Yet the public at large knows nothing about the treasures which repose, neatly catalogued, upon its metallic shelves.

The library is described by Stanford professors as a unique historical workshop whose members are engaged in finding, classifying and preserving all documentary evidence bearing not only upon the World War, but also on its causes and aftermath—the revolutionary movements in Europe. Here historians who record human vanity and villainy, heroism and folly, turn the tables upon propagandists.

For, say these historians, the issues of the conflict have been so obscured by propaganda emanating from a million official and unofficial sources, that no man now living can hope to know the whole truth about the World War!

They frankly admit that they dare not trust their own impartiality in analyzing war and post-war events. According to these historians the truth will be brought to light—if it is ever brought to light—by a generation which will view the recent general unpleasantness in Europe with the same detachment with which we of today view Napoleon's campaigns.

A leaflet, dropped in German trenches by British balloons, telling that 1,000,000 American troops had landed in France.

President Hoover was one of the few men to appreciate these facts while the war was just beginning. As Stanford records show, he started to send accounts of important interviews with "key" men in Europe from as early as 1914, for a future collection of historical data on the war.

Shortly after Mr. Hoover had organized the movement for the relief of the people of Belgium, Prof. Adams, who was then teaching history at Stanford, wrote him a letter, urging preservation of records bearing on this great humanitarian undertaking. Mr. Hoover agreed, and went further than Prof. Adams had dared to hope: the archives of the Belgian Relief became the nucleus around which a great war-material collection began to be built.

In April, 1919, Mr. Hoover, then in Europe, cabled to Mrs. Hoover in Palo Alto, instructing her to inform the president of the university, Ray Lyman Wilbur, today Secretary of the Interior, and Prof. Adams, that $50,000 was available for a historical collection of World War data. This sum was a personal gift, to which others have since been added. The materials secured were transferred to Stanford University.

Upon receiving the cable Prof. Adams left hurriedly with Mrs. Adams as a "two-man commission" for Paris, where the Peace Conference was then in progress. There materials were secured which later would have been inevitably scattered and lost. With Prof. Adams' trip began a series of adventures in collecting, adventures which included the incident in London.

In Paris the historian concentrated in securing authentic delegation propaganda. This was given out by numerous Powers, all intent on gaining their demands. Propaganda in Europe had by this time been raised to the rank of the fine arts.

For if the World War demonstrated anything at all, it was this: that one little lie will travel farther than a cloud of poison gas, and that a printing press can work greater havoc with one's enemies than a battery of Big Berthas.

INTRIGUE among the delegates ran high, leading to absurd and tragic incidents. Some delegations were too poor to gain any headway, while their rivals, secretly supported by a great Power, distributed tons of printed stuff that advocated their cause. Prof. Adams secured some interesting information from the delegate of Korea, whose presence in Paris was due to the sympathetic home rule sentiment of an Irish sea captain. This captain had smuggled the Korean out on his ship under the watchful eyes of Japanese officials, who were determined not to allow him to leave the Orient!

The American historian, who fortunately occupied no official post, went around collecting propaganda and interviewing the fighting members of the peace conference. He found that governments were ready to co-operate with him, and so were private individuals. Many people and institutions, remembering Mr. Hoover's work for the relief of Europe, gladly gave what they could. The historian's policy was to buy only those materials which he could not beg, so as to save money for further purchases.

The library is particularly proud of its collection of ephemeral material, such as newspapers, posters, proclamations, broadsides, leaflets of all kinds, which in the ordinary course of events are destroyed soon after their appearance. These preserve the flavor of an epoch better than books can do. They contain accounts by eyewitnesses in the wording of the period. Everything about them—the paper on which they are printed, their "ads," the blank spaces left by the censor, tell an eloquent story.

Many unusual stories are told of how the material was saved, sometimes at risk to the collector's life. One of the rarest of items treasured at Stanford is the Gazette des Ardennes. This sheet was published by three adventurous Frenchmen in the German zone of occupation in France, and it gave the official Berlin war news to conquered French "subjects." A French school teacher buried every night in his cellar the day's issue of the paper. After the Germans left it was discovered that all but these few issues of the paper had been destroyed. The result was that the teacher realized handsomely on his file.

THE Hoover War Library has paid out thousands of dollars and will pay out still more money for collections of war-time newspapers. These collections consist of papers that were originally bought for the equivalent of a nickel, here or in foreign countries.

The freedom of the library is accorded to every interested man or woman. Here a serious student can discover more "inside" facts about the world conflict than the heads of various intelligence services ever dug out during the course of the war.

Among the important acquisitions of the library made only during the last few months, Miss Nina Almond, librarian, lists these:

The original telegram sent by Major George D. Beaumont on November 11, 1918, announcing to the American troops that the armistice had been signed.

A file of the Social Democrat (Russian), edited by Lenin at a time before he was a Bolshevik, and when he was not known outside of Socialist circles.

The secret General Staff maps of Great Britain, France, Austria-Hungary and the United States.

Ninety-nine cases of archives covering the foreign operations of the American Red Cross during the World War. Many of these documents are of so confidential a nature that they will be inaccessible to the public for years to come.

One of the stupendous results of the World War was the Russian upheaval. So interested in it are the directors of the library that a special Russian Revolution Institute has been formed to take care of the material and to work on the Russian revolution research project. At the head of this institute is Prof. H. H. Fisher of the history department of Stanford University, who is also vice-chairman of the Hoover War Library.

"The Russian Revolution Institute stands outside of the political questions which divide Russian groups," says Prof. Fisher. "We are a hundred years too near to these events to develop a true perspective toward them. What we can do, and strive to do, is to collect and preserve all possible data for the historian of the future. With these before him, he may judge for himself."

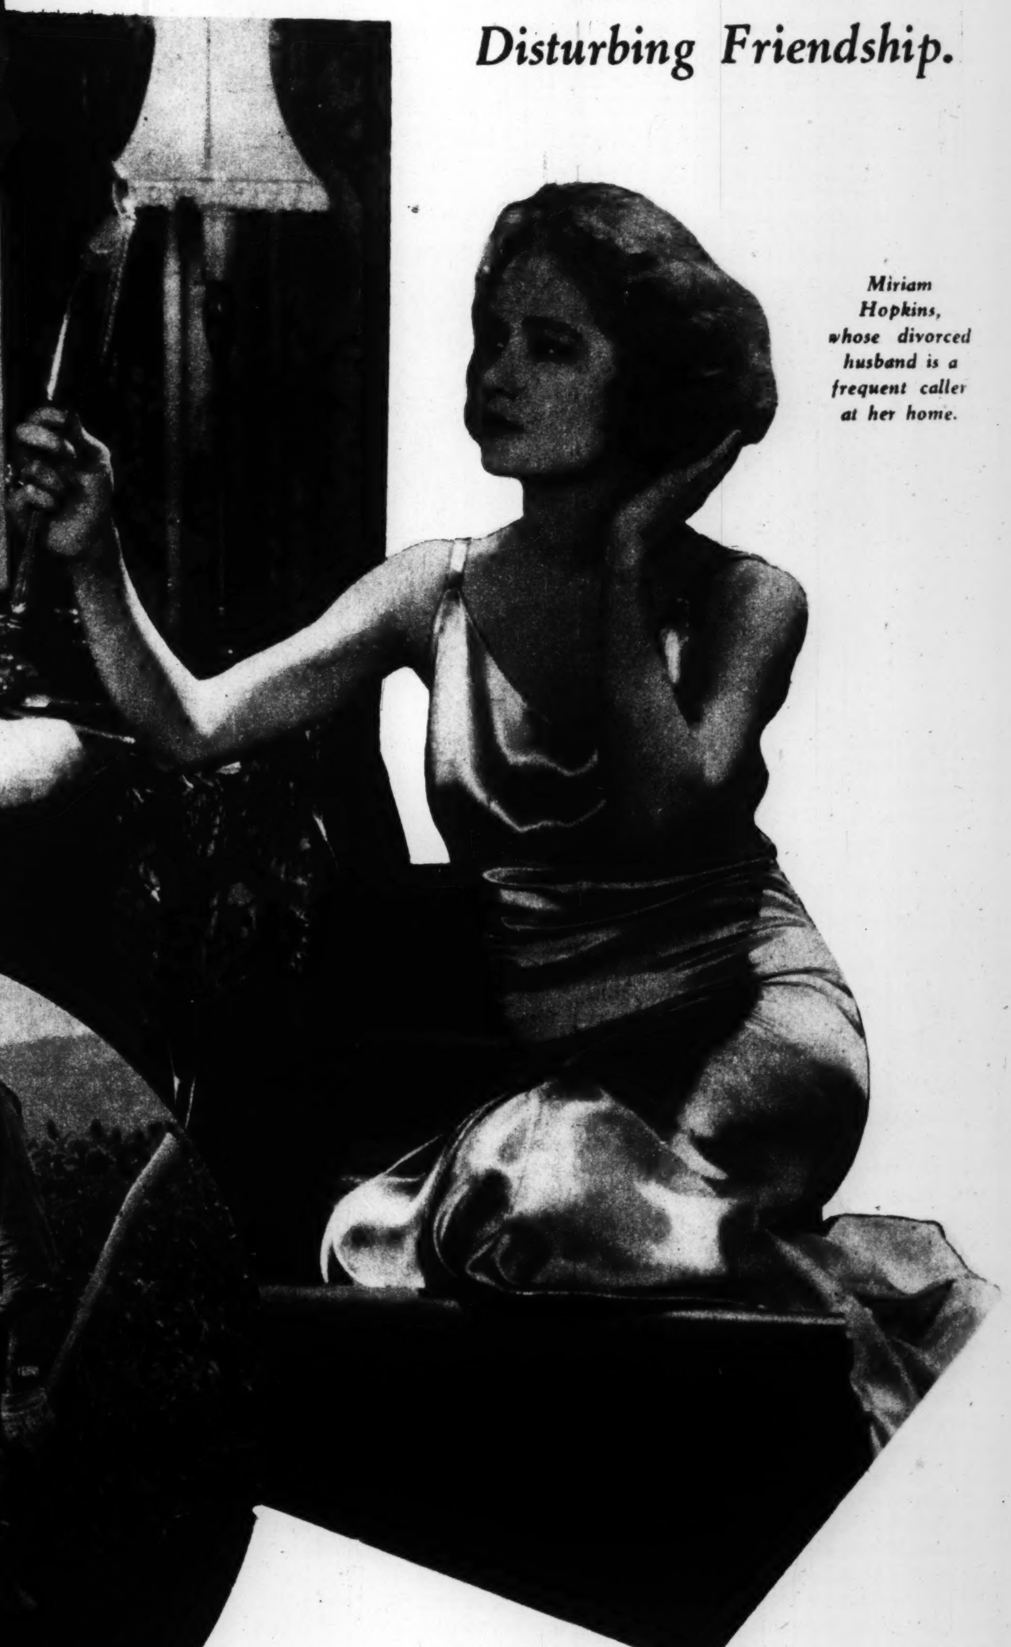
HOLLYWOOD'S PAINLESS DIVORCES

Harry Bannister and Ann Harding Set the Fashion and Now Many Couples Are Trying to Demonstrate That the Marital Tie Can Be Cut Without Disturbing Friendship.



Miriam Hopkins, whose divorced husband is a frequent caller at her home.

By

A. L. WOOLDRIDGE

LOS ANGELES.

A FRIENDLY parting, then a painless divorce! It's the new style being broadcast from Hollywood.

After all, the film folk argue, when a couple really decides to separate there is no reason why the departing wife should be given a kick as she starts out the door. Nor is there any excuse for her tearing up the evening paper and jumping up and down on her husband's hat while making her closing argument classifying him as a "brute." Such things are so useless, so futile, so silly. And they're becoming so old-fashioned.

When the time comes to seek separate paths, why shouldn't a couple go out to dinner together, find a sequestered booth, order a delicious meal and spend an hour or two chatting over pleasant things? Why not recall the happy hours that were spent, reveal future plans, exchange addresses and telephone numbers and thereafter greet each other with a smile and sometimes a kiss? It's so much nicer that way than to go on through life harboring bitterness and hatred over wrongs, real or fancied, committed in the past!

THAT'S the way actresses and actors have figured it out. So, instead of ending everything with a general blow-up and hair-pulling contest, they are saying, "Now, dear, it appears that we have come to the end of the trail. A future together is impossible. Tomorrow, either you or I should hit for Reno or some other accessible place and file suit for divorce. Let's help each other out. And after that, as we move about in single blessedness, we can be old-time pals when we meet. That's the sensible thing to do. How about it, darling?"

The surprising thing about the method is that it appears to work! Painless divorces have become the order of the day in the town where divorces pop out like hives on an overfed boy. Divorces no longer are surprises in Hollywood. Rather, they are the to-be-expected. But the fashion is changing. In one luxurious establishment right now, a couple divorced but with the decree not yet final, are living in one apartment. Across the hall is the lawyer who obtained the divorce for them. On the floor above is his ex-wife. Another apartment is the home of an author, whose ex-wife, now remarried, occupies a home farther up the street. She and her new husband frequently dine with the author. And, oddly, the apartment house is run by a charming old couple who have just celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

Devotees of the new divorce creed are numberless. Joseph G. Winterhalt and his estranged wife, Grace de Rue, who live in the same apartment, drove to court together recently, when their suit was called for trial.

"We breakfasted together this morning," Mrs. Winterhalt said to Judge Yankwitch, "and he drove me down to the courthouse because I was not feeling well and did not have money for a taxi."

"Do you cook his meals?" inquired the Judge.

"Well, he gets his own breakfasts, but I prepare his dinner, and one time not long ago, when I was ill, he took care of me."

And yet a witness testfied that he once saw Mrs. Winterhalt so enraged she tore up her marriage certificate and threw her wedding ring at Joe. That was just an old Hollywood custom.

A few weeks ago, Greta Nissen announced that she and Weldon Heyburn just couldn't get along together, and as soon as they could get around to it, she would sue for a divorce in Nogales, Mexico. There was too much incompatibility in their home life, she declared. The glamourous blonde said it simply, sweetly, and explained that they had been married a whole six months. A firm of Mexican lawyers was instructed to draw up the necessary papers.

But Greta and Weldon threw no dishes at each other and made no scurrilous remarks. Instead, they went to the Club New York together, had dinner together and did not take their eyes off of each other. A few evenings later, they sat talking and smiling at a table when one of the lawyers preparing to erase their marital ties stopped for a friendly chat. The trio had a happy 15 minutes together discussing details of the painless divorce.

"And why not?" said Greta, opening her baby-blue eyes in wonderment. "Weldon and I are the best of friends!"

Ann Harding and Harry Bannister really set the fashion for this new style of parting. Bannister, it was, who went to Reno to establish residence. And then Ann it was who flew to the Nevada resort and obtained the divorce. The two were together as much as possible during Ann's brief stay there. They dined with her attorney the night before the suit was heard, and Harry gallantly escorted her to the courthouse when Judge Thomas F. Moran set the divorce mill grinding. He waited outside during the proceedings. When it was over, he and Ann drove out to Heidelberg, a resort noted for its beer, and, with a party of friends, had a "reverse honeymoon breakfast." At its conclusion, Bannister drove his ex-wife to the airport, where they walked about hand-in-hand, talking quietly and earnestly. There was an affectionate farewell and Ann climbed into her plane, just 24 hours and 8 minutes following her arrival.

"Harry is going to fly home in his own little ship," Ann explained when she reached Los Angeles.

An so he did. And to this day his little monoplane often circles the hilltop home which he and Miss Harding built. They throw kisses to each other while their little daughter, Jane, waves excitedly to her daddy way up in the sky. She doesn't understand why he no longer comes in as he used to do. Jane is only 4.

Ina Claire and John Gilbert.

"Isn't this the sensible way to act?" asks Hollywood. "Harry and Ann are preserving their respect for each other. Each, of course, would go to the aid of the other if aid were required."

The film folk point to the case of Ernest Lubitsch, the eminent director, and his ex-wife, Helen. Ernest is full of temperament and moods and outbursts of passion. When he was told that Helen was tired of being neglected and ignored and was contemplating suing for divorce, he let it be known in his Teutonic way that it was all right with him, because he then would have more time for work and study. He wouldn't hinder her, he said. They'd divide up their property and he would go ahead with his pictures. She could do as she pleased.

And that's exactly what happened. But the first night after the interlocutory decree was granted, Ernest, going out to dinner, called Helen on the telephone to ask what studs he should wear with his white waistcoat and to please get him a house and some servants as soon as possible.

"He just hates living in hotels," Mrs. Lubitsch explained to her friends.

So, out she went to round up servants and to explain to them what her ex-husband liked to eat and how he wanted it cooked. She wasn't going to have him neglected and fussing around over things which she could look after better than he! Painless divorce.

Not greatly dissimilar was the separation of Maurice Chevalier and Yvonne Vallee, his little French musical comedy star-wife. After Maurice had filed his suit, Yvonne went to La Bocca, where Chevalier maintains a beautiful villa. She prepared it for his summer vacation, directed servants to look out for his comfort, drew up a list of foods and wines which would be required and gave strict orders not to disturb Maurice's sleep in the mornings. She felt that she just had to "mother" him, like most devoted wives do their husbands.

"Our love will be more lasting without matrimonial falsehoods," Yvonne said philosophically. "Our romance will continue. We have a particular—perhaps a peculiar—idea of what life means."

There are countless couples in the film capital who are divorced, but still madly in love with each other. They will tell you so. But they add that they are absolutely incompatible living under the same roof. There are others who admire the good qualities in each other, but who, as husbands and wives, are utterly impossible.

Estelle Taylor and Jack Dempsey, for example. Estelle says that again and again, following disagreements, she and Jack tried to go on, hoping to avoid the wreck which every day grew more inevitable.

Old-time divorcees may look upon the cited cases as odd, but they do not seem odd to Hollywood. Customs change.

Mrs. Arthur Hornblow once gave an elaborate party at Malibu Beach, to which a large number of filmdom's elite were invited. Most of the guests had assembled when the door opened and in walked Ina Claire on the arm of John Gilbert, her ex-husband. A few days later the two were together again at a dinner given by Fanny Holzman, woman attorney, in the Beverly-Wilshire Hotel.

Gilbert is now married to Virginia Bruce, also of the movies.

One thing this new style of separation does is to eliminate from hostesses the fear that they will get their guest lists balled up and have divorced wives seated by the side of their divorced husbands at dinner tables. Such things usually are terribly embarrassing and have been known to spoil the whole evening for some of those invited. This very situation arose not long ago in one of the most exclusive homes in the film colony. A hostess, in looking over her seating list, suddenly threw up her hands in horror.

"My heavens!" she exclaimed, "I've got Mary Pickford and Owen Moore facing each other. Quick, who'll I change?"

There was a hasty scanning of names and a switch was accomplished. Imagine the surprise, however, when the hostess later saw Mary and Owen meet in the drawing room and greet each other like long-lost friends.

"Owen!" exclaimed Miss Pickford.

"Mary!" said Moore.

They sat together much of the evening, conversing pleasantly, the center of an interested group.

Peggy Shannon's "stage-door Johnnie" is Allan Davis, from whom she is divorced. Allan waits for her at the studio, takes her to dinners and to dances, and Peggy recently bought him a business connected with automobiles. They hold hands like youthful lovers and make no effort to conceal their devotion. Yet, as a married couple, they just couldn't get along.

Austin Parker was expunged from the life of Miriam Hopkins, but he is keen about the small boy Miriam has adopted and wants to be "papa" to him. He calls at Miriam's home regularly for a romp with the curly-haired urchin. And Miriam doesn't object.

"Mutiny on the Bounty"—Almost a Classic

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

THOSE who love to go down to the sea in ships, those who prefer their English clear, sparkling and swift like spring water, and those who like moving, powerful story of the uthern ocean and coral islands, autiful native maidens, cruelty, tiny and sudden death, all will grateful to Charles Nordhoff d James Norman Hall for "Mu- y on the Bounty."

The tale itself is one of the ster stories of the sea, like that the Mary Celeste, and Sir John anklin's expedition, and it has en told many times in many rms, but never so well as by ese two careful, capable and illiant students and writers. ey have related it in the form a novel, a first-person narrative the language of Roger Byam, a dshipman on the Bounty. To out the lines of a novel, they ve introduced fictional woman d romantic incidents, rare ough in quality, but nothing to mpare in rarity with the known d conceded facts, which are al- st unbelievable, and which ve hardly been duplicated in the 0 years since the Bounty sailed m England for Tahiti.

She was a navy ship, an armed nsport, whose mission it was to get shoots of the bread fruit tree and take them to the West Indies, where the planters hoped to support their slaves upon bread fruit.

Lieutenant William Bligh of the Royal Navy was captain of the Bounty. He was an officer of fine reputation, great resource, strength and courage. On shore a pleasant gentleman, at sea he became the embodiment of cruelty and harsh discipline. The severest punishments were meted out for small offenses. Bligh cursed and abused officers and men alike, and loaded them with unjust accusations.

The ship could not round Cape Horn because of adverse winds, so turned the other way around the world and passed south of Africa, finally reaching Tahiti after having sailed 27,000 miles. Those were spacious times. The bread fruit saplings were loaded after many months and the voyage to the West Indies begun, Bligh continuing his insane cruelties until he had lost the esteem of officers and men, and all of the reader's sympathy. Mutiny flared out, the ship was seized by the second in command, and Bligh and 18 men set adrift in the ship's launch 30 miles from the hostile island of Tufoa. Then Bligh came into his own.

His boat was 23 feet long and "rowed six oars." He had a compass and a sextant, 25 gallons of water, 150 pounds of bread, 30 pounds of salt pork, 6 quarts of rum and 6 bottles of wine. He had no map or chart or firearm. The heavily laden craft, amidships, had but eight inches of freeboard, the carpenter testified at the court-martial. The nearest white settlement was at the Dutch fort on the island of Timor, north of Australia nearly 4000 miles away.

At the first island at which they touched, one man was killed by natives, but Bligh, his iron will unbent, his discipline unrelaxed, took all the rest safe to Timor in 48 days and there they found ship for England. It is doubtful if the history of navigation has another record to compare with it.

The present story goes on with the capture of some of the mutineers and a detailed account of their court-martial in England for mutiny and piracy. But the main party and the ship disappeared from all frequented seas forever. The story ends with the romantic episode of the narrator 20 years later finding the reef-guarded island where they had landed and formed a colony which exists to this day. He left the lone survivor unmolested with his large family.

This book has distinguished parentage and sponsors. Both Hall and Nordhoff were contributors to the Atlantic Monthly before and after the war. They met in the Lafayette Escadrille and since then have wandered and worked together. Some ten years ago they went to Tahiti in the South Pacific Ocean where they have lived since. When they decided to retell the old story of the Bounty, they communicated with Ellery Sedgwick, editor of Atlantic and their long-time friend and adviser. He went to London, and with the assistance of Dr. Leslie Hotson, Captain Tufuell of the British Navy and the mobilized second-hand book sellers of London, gathered all the material of the grand old sea classic, boxed it up and sent it half way around the world to the two Lewis machine gun operators resting from wars and wanderings beneath their bread fruit trees, doubtless smoking pandanus leaf cigarettes and wearing only cloths of native make about their loins and lei of hybiscus about their necks.

In these boxes from London were "every scrap of pertinent evidence," says Sedgwick. Maps, charts, portraits, a model of the Bounty with all her rigging and gear, photostatic copies of every page of the report of court-martial, copies of the "British Navy" and all the many books that have been written about the Bounty. With this material and virtually at the scene of the crime, Hall and Nordhoff sat down to write the final, authoritative and best account of the mutiny. This they have done in spite of the soft wind which blew from off the sea, the perfume from the flower filled valleys, and the inviting voices of the island maidens bathing in the surf, and the lesser allurements of the cocktail bars in hotels and clubs in the town.

Of the authors, James Norman Hall is a man whose fame has not kept step with his remarkable achievements. An Iowa lad, fresh from the university, he was on a walking tour of Wales when the Great War began. He enlisted in a west country regiment of foot soldiers, mostly Cornish coal miners, and he records that he wondered how he would ever be able to live with these men. Shipped to France and put into the fighting line with his regiment, Hall bore his part for a year, until, desperately wounded in action, he was invalided back to England, wondering how he ever could live without the men he had left in France. Saved from death but declared unfit for further service, he was honorably discharged from the British army.

He returned to America to heal his wounds and write a book about his war experiences, and returned to France. There he enlisted in the French army, I think the Foreign Legion, with his eye on the Lafayette Flying Corps. He attained to this select company, became an aviator and a brilliant and daring fighter in the sky, with many citations, medals, palms and stars, and the rank of Captain, but in a desperate fight well inside the German lines, he was brought down in flames and given up for dead. The general of the VIIIth French army said this of him:

"BRILLANT pilot de chasse, modele de courage et d'entrain qui a abattu an avion ennemi, a trouve une morte glorieuse dans un combat contre quatre monoplanes, dont un a ete descendu en flammes."

Under this pall of fame he rested, his comrades having drunk the usual drinks to him, until the day he returned to camp and reported for duty, having escaped from a German prison and won his way back across the battle lines.

Soon he was back in his pursuit plane, but he was brought down again, on French soil this time, but his plane fell on top of him. His wounds from machine gun bullets and the fall were so serious that the French surgeons, usually very hard to satisfy in such matters, retired him as unfit for further service. Gen. Petain praised him extravagantly in orders.

The United States now had come into the war, and after he had healed his wounds again, Hall found new service with his own people, and was soon fighting as brilliantly and as bitterly in the blue French sky two miles above the clearing French land. He was brought down again inside the German lines, badly wounded and made prisoner but again he escaped from his prison camp and walking with a cane and limping badly, had got as far as Metz when he met allied troops, for the armistice had come, and Hall doubtless again was unfit for further duty.

This skeleton account of the activities under three flags of a very gallant soldier is accurate in general, though it may err in detail or sequence, and it probably is unique among the records of the twenty million men called to arms.

PORTRAIT of FRANCIS I

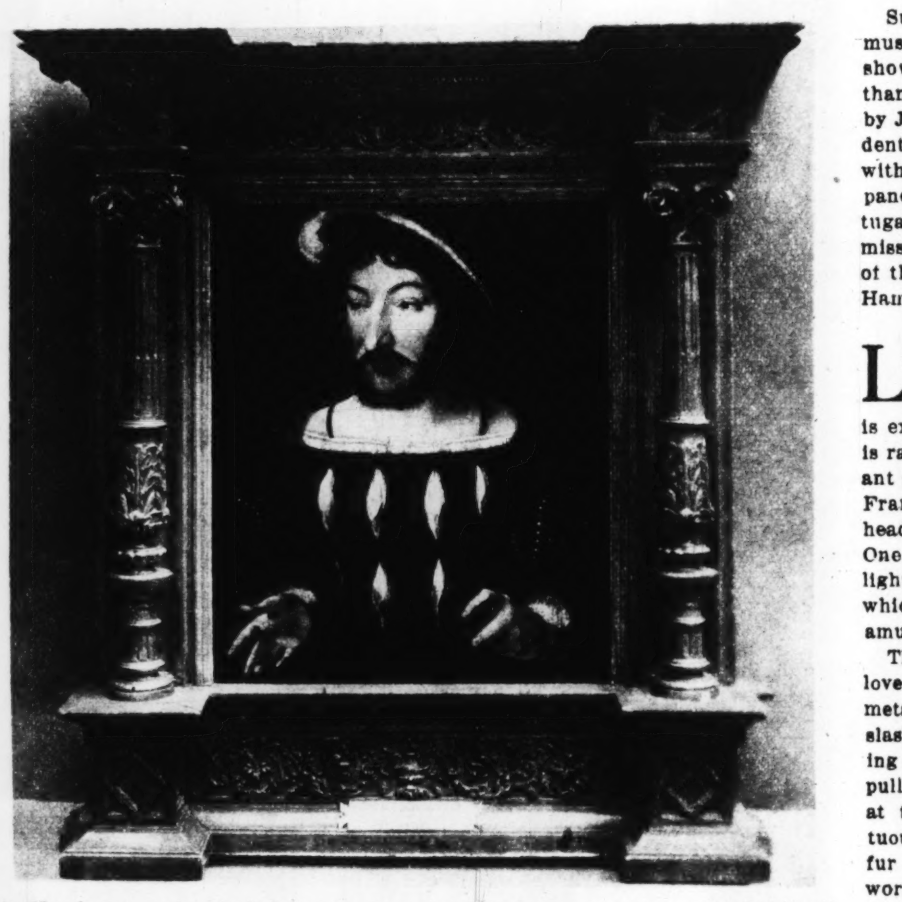
THIS portrait is the sixty-first in a series of masterpieces which are being prominently displayed at the City Art Museum by Director Meyric Rogers. Each week one of the museum's rarest treasures is placed in the alcove to the left of the entrance. Each masterpiece will be reproduced in the Sunday Magazine of the Post-Dispatch, with an account by museum authorities of its history. The complete series will serve as an excellent guide to the most precious possessions of the city's museum. The story of the picture follows:

As early as the fourteenth century the Kings and Dukes of France were eager patrons of the arts, cosmopolitan in their outlook and international in the granting of commissions. Such an outlook played an important part in the development of the French school of painting, for under the influence of the foreign painters who came from Italy and Flanders, French artists became eclectic in their own creations.

In the sixteenth century the French kings were still keenly conscious of the artistic geniuses at work in neighboring countries. Francis I, or Francois Premier, was the most famous of all these art loving kings and at his behest Leonardo da Vinci and Benvenuto Cellini traveled north from Italy to execute commissions for him. At the same time, although he had at his side the excellent French portrait painter, Jean Clouet, apparently at least one artist from Flanders must have journeyed to his court.



In 1530 Francis married a second time, his Queen being Eleonore, widow of the King of Portugal and daughter of Philip the Handsome, who had become sovereign of the Netherlands in 1482. This event probably directed the attention of the French King more definitely toward the Low Countries. On the other hand, the Flemish painter, Joos Van Cleve, whose activities may be followed with some certainty from the annals of the city of Antwerp, where he habitually made his home, may be inferred to have been absent from that place between 1528, when he bought a home, to 1535, when he reported taking two new apprentices. So it is quite probable that he spent some of those years at the court of Francis I.

Such a theory is strengthened by the museum's portrait of Francis, for it shows the King as a more mature man than he appeared in the Louvre portrait by Jean Clouet, executed about 1925. Evidently the King must have been pleased with his likeness, for in addition to this panel, which was sent to the King of Portugal, he seems to have given Joos commissions for several others like it. One of these is now in the Louvre, another at Hampton Court, outside London.

LIKE most of the portraits by the French painters of the sixteenth century, this one by the Flemish master is executed in oil on a wooden panel and is rather small. The size imparts a pleasant air of intimacy to all such portraits. Francis is seen in front view, but with his head turned slightly toward the right. One hand grasps the hilt of his sword lightly, the other is caught in a gesture which must have accompanied some amusing remark.

The costume testifies to the King's love of elegance, of color and of fine metal work. His dark red doublet is slashed and trimmed with loops ending in gold tips; through the slits are pulled puffs of white, which shows at the neck and wrists also. A sumptuous black mantel, bordered with dark fur and embroidered with pearls, is worn over the doublet. His black hat, with a narrow edge of white fur, is decorated with gold and pearl ornaments and a medal, possibly of gold and enamels.

The modeling of hands and face is rounded and soft; the surface very smooth, with colors beautifully blended and details completed in meticulous fashion.

don. Gordon told me the officer had a black-jack and he was afraid he would be killed. I saw Gordon draw a gun and shoot three or four times at the officer. Gordon then told me to beat it home and he would call me later.

"I saw a taxicab near where this unfortunate thing happened. I jumped in and told the driver, William Goldman, whom I knew, to drive away as someone had been shot. Goldman inquired while we were driving away, 'Aren't you Jack, the mechanic?' and I said 'Yes.' He said, 'Possibly someone got the number of the cab but you don't have to worry. I'll straighten it out.' I go out at 136th street and Broadway and he wouldn't take any pay.

"So I took a subway to Ninety-sixth street and then a taxicab home. I got a phone message from Gordon and went to a West Ninety-fifth street house to meet him. He said I would have to keep quiet about this or he and his gang would put me and my family on the spot. We stayed in the house that night and the next day I phoned my family that I was in trouble and would have to get out of town. Gordon told me to go to Detroit and he gave me $1000. He told me to keep away from New York and keep quiet or his gang would get me. I went to Detroit."

Benny, who had just heard he was to die in the chair June 25 despite his testimony, was fiercely assailed by both sides. After 11 hours without agreement the jury was discharged.

Gordon's death was postponed until July 28 and then, because of Zaroff's retrial, was postponed again—to the week of October 31.

But before that date, the Zaroff case was settled. Zaroff pleaded guilty of manslaughter and was sentenced to from 15 to 30 years in prison. Said the Judge in pronouncing sentence: "I have never seen a case where the defendant deserved the death penalty as he did in this case. I accept the manslaughter plea for fear there might be another mistrial."

There was a $10,000 reward for information leading to the conviction of the slayer of Patrolman O'Brien. But Cock-eyed Benny Gordon didn't get it. All he got was his life—the commutation of his sentence to life imprisonment.

ppers conversed in Morse code, h flashlights. On March 3: his evening a wind sprang up d we went tearing through the ter. At 12 this night it was wing so hard the royals had to taken in. We just went boiling ng through the monster seas. my watch had to stand by dur- our watch, and I sure got the lles when we were called out make the lifeboats ready. It was ly a precaution, though."

The next day: "This morning our watch worked running up lines. Steel cables stretched m the forecastle head to poop ck and covered with sackcloth ve admirably. This afternoon I s so tired I just fell into my k and slept for darn near six urs. . . . The ship rocks so much that it throws all my stuff off washstand."

The wind dropped, and so did temperature. Hamilton wrote: esterday all I needed to wear a pair of pants, but today it underwear, pants, shirt, sweat- sheepskin coat, socks and sea- ots. I never knew the weather change so quickly."

It became colder and the wind ened as they approached the rn. One day the ship made 277 les. Albatrosses began to ap- r. One night the wind was so ng that the young apprentice not permitted to take his turn the wheel. But the next night nd another seaman were sent t to make fast the main royal. "We climbed up to the yard, which was swaying and jerking, and started to furl him. My hands were blue with cold and had no feeling in them, but they warmed up a little after much pulling. Making a royal fast in 54 South at midnight, with a strong wind and high seas is no fun. The Second is always saying, 'Now don't you wish you was all tucked in your nice, warm bed?' "

A few days later: "This night at 11:30 the wind had suddenly changed and we had to go out and brace her around. It was icy cold and rainy and the ropes were stiff and hard to hang on to. Waves broke over us constantly whenever we hauled on the windward. I and two others got thrown down by one wave, but we grabbed the lifeline and got up again."

Once, after some particularly hard work, the boy was invited to join the men who had gathered around the open door of the chart house and "take a pull on the spanker sheet." He was given a little gin in an egg glass.

On March 26 the Horn was sighted. "It was an icy cold morning, with sea birds all around. During Bestapha's trick at the wheel we passed slowly by the cape at a distance about half a mile. . . . The Horn is a high cliff of jagged rocks, with grass growing around. It is a small island, but is a good sheep pasturage. The weather is perfect, with blue skies."

But the ship soon ran into a storm and for several days Hamilton had further experience in cold weather sailing. "Our fore gallant was torn all to shreds in the terrific wind, so we made it fast. It was hailing like the devil and then it snowed.

"Three of the biggest waves yet came on deck today. The first one tore the port lifeboat loose. . . . Another one swept Fred and Hans from the windward rail into the lee scuppers, where they managed to grab a brace and hang on. Otherwise, they would have been washed overboard."

THE boat made good time, and by April 1 had left the southern cold. Hamilton at this time made further observations in his diary about food. "This morning for breakfast we had lamb chops. They were very good. . . . For dinner at 1 we had lamb, with fried onions, string beans and potatoes. Of course we had potatoes, as we have had them every meal so far, with no exceptions. Sixty-eight days out, potatoes three times a day; 204 meals, with potatoes at every one." Five pigs and three sheep had been taken aboard at San Francisco to provide fresh meat occasionally.

April 7: "I took a bath this afternoon, the first since the other side of the Horn."

Sailing through tropical waters, Hamilton and some of his companions spent a torrid afternoon shifting sacks of barley from one hatch to another, and before the job was finished sweat was running down into the boy's shoes. "Then we lowered a rope down the side of the forecastle head with a loop in the end and a few of us took turns sitting in it while the ship dragged us along in the water."

The next day, Sunday—a day of rest on the ship: "The afternoon was spent dancing to the music of my phonograph on the hatch. Waltzes were the favorite. . . . Then 'Rio Rita' was played, and Bill, pretending I was a girl, asked for the pleasure of the next dance. I complied, and I followed him around the deck in a waltz. I didn't know I could follow, but I did that time. Until 9 p. m. Bill and I played tunes on our harmonicas."

May 3: "All I do on lookout is walk back and forth on the forecastle head, looking at the horizon and singing all the latest song hits that came out in January. Everybody sings on lookout. . . ."

There was a lot of chipping and painting and general cleaning up of the ship as it neared its destination. But there was still time for play. "All hands had a nice time loafing this (Sunday) morning and taking pictures. The cook and Hans posed as a couple of drunkards, and we roared with laughter when Donkey, riding the pig, careened wildly down the deck and was thrown off against the donkey house."

Hamilton had been receiving regular lessons in navigation from the captain, and on May 11 he recorded: "I took the meridian observation today and worked out the sight to find the latitude. It is a dead cinch."

Out of the tropics and far enough north for the nights to be cold, the Abraham Rydberg encountered another storm. " . . . All hands were called on deck to shorten sail. Our fore gallant tore to pieces immediately and the remnants flapped in the wind or blew away. Mountainous gray seas crashed against our sides or burst over the deck . . . The storm was raging . . . much harder than it ever blew down at the Horn, and the wheel nearly pulled my arms out by the roots, but I got through . . . "

MAY 20: "While at the wheel I saw a black body rise out of the water a few yards off port, and then, accompanied by a snorting hiss, a fountain of spray blew high in the air. 'There she blows,' I called, in a tone that caused the second mate and the captain to come running up on deck. . . . After I had explained the captain went below without a word, but the second said, 'What do you think this is, a whaler? We thought you had fainted.' That's the last time I am going to sing out when I see a whale."

As the ship neared land its radio began to pick up broadcasts from England, France, Spain and Germany. The first evening these came in Hamilton recorded: " . . . It was the best music all around I have ever heard out of a radio. Maybe that's because I haven't heard one for such a long time."

May 24: "My birthday. While I was guzzling my tea this morning the second was wisecracking about what a big boy I was now—15 years old today. . . . Everybody wished me a happy birthday, but what they liked best was the coffee bread with raisins the steward had made and served today."

On May 27 Ireland was sighted, but the wind failed and it was not until May 30 that the ship reached Dublin. In his final entry Hamilton wrote: "We finally pulled up to the wharf and we saw the first glimpses of civilization in more than four months. Imagine my surprise to find my mother and sister awaiting me! We went to a good hotel and I immediately had that wonder of wonders, a hot bath."

IT'S really a marvelous idea. Here's a gift, smart, attractive, modern—that's also a blessing as a labor-saving device. It's the new Hi-Lo Bissell, 1932 model, with many new patented improvements.

If you're used to the old-time sweeper, you've a surprise coming when you see the new Bissell, with its low, handsome body. And a still greater surprise when you try it. Light, it moves at a touch. It sweeps any surface—from linoleum to thickest rugs. No cords. Costs nothing to run. Best for everyday use.

Your furniture, hardware, or department store has the new 1932 Bissells. See them. Don't accept a flimsy, "box, wheels and brush"—a genuine Hi-Lo Bissell can be had for as little as $4.75 ($5 in West and South). Never pay less! Otherwise you'll be missing Bissell's newest patented improvements. They're important! See them today.

Four Siamese kittens belonging to C. D. Spencer of Woodbury, Conn., which were among those competing in the Championship Cat Show in New York.

A group of iguanas photographed in the Galapagos Islands by a member of the Templeton Crocker Expedition. None were brought back to America for they can live only in a tropical climate.

A PLAN TO BANISH THOSE FIRST-OF-THE-MONTH
BILL BLUES

DID your postman show up on the first with another batch of trouble? Would you welcome a way to pay all the bills he brought before he repeats his unwelcome visit on the first of next month—a way that hundreds of thousands have followed this year?

If you live within a reasonable distance of one of the 148 offices of Household Finance organization, you are invited to 'phone or drop in the first thing tomorrow. Without any obligation, without any urging to borrow, you will be told of a Plan whereby you may get $300 or less in cash, quickly, simply, economically.

If you are married, keeping house, and can make small repayments each month you have all the security necessary to apply for the money to banish those first-of-the-month bill blues. The cost is low, less in fact than you normally pay for other retail services of equal value. You don't need bonds, or stocks for collateral; you don't even need a co-signer on your note. The only signatures required are those of husband and wife and the only security necessary is that which is found in nearly every home.

Besides money, a workable method is offered, without cost, to readjust family expenditures and make dollars go farther. Should it be inconvenient to come in, write or 'phone for information and ask for the free booklets, "The Household Loan Plan," "Money Management," and "Safe Food Economy."

HOUSEHOLD
FINANCE CORPORATION

Household maintains 3 branch offices in St. Louis, one on the eighth floor Ambassador Building; another on the third floor Central National Bank Building; and on the second floor, 520 North Grand Boulevard
Also in Kansas City, St. Joseph, Alton, Peoria, Springfield and other leading Illinois cities
Look in your telephone directory for the office nearest you
Household charges the low rate set by the Missouri law, 2½% a month on unpaid balances

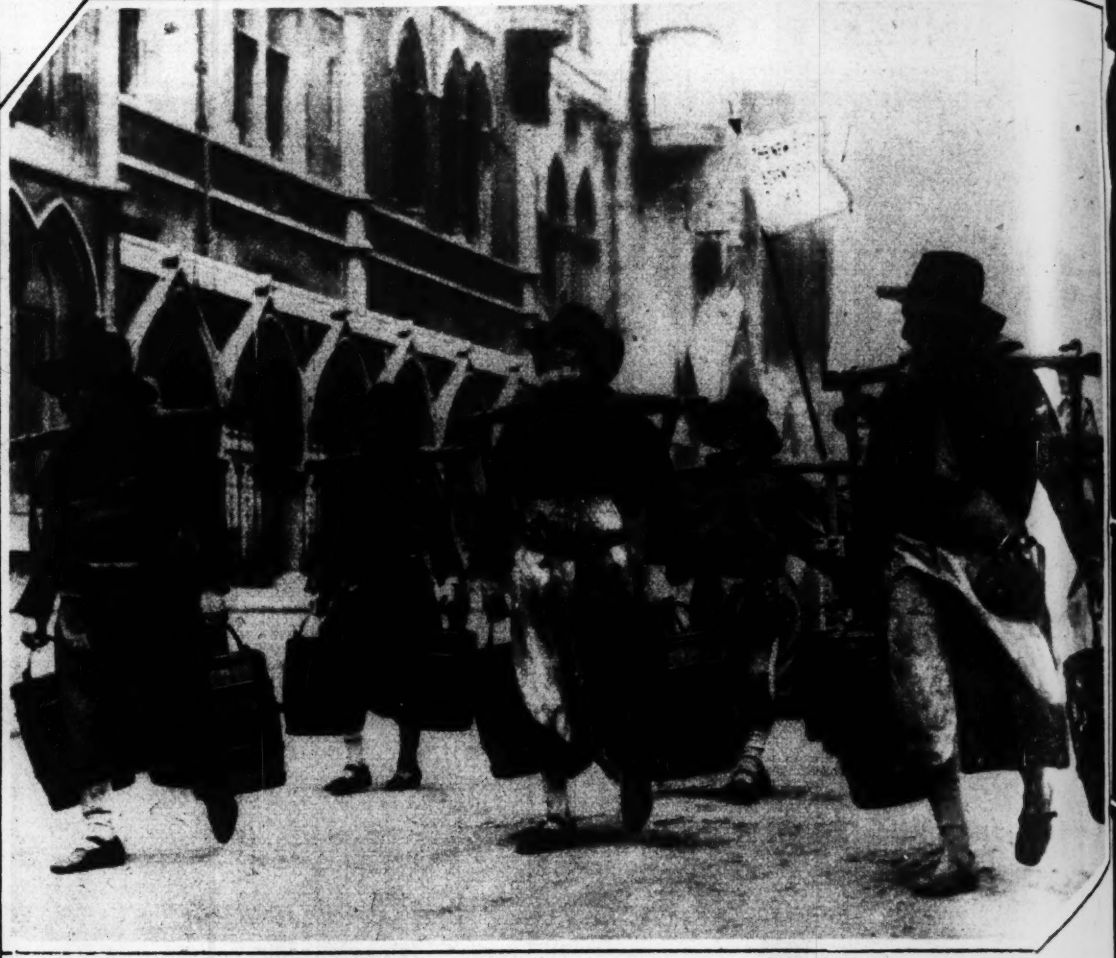
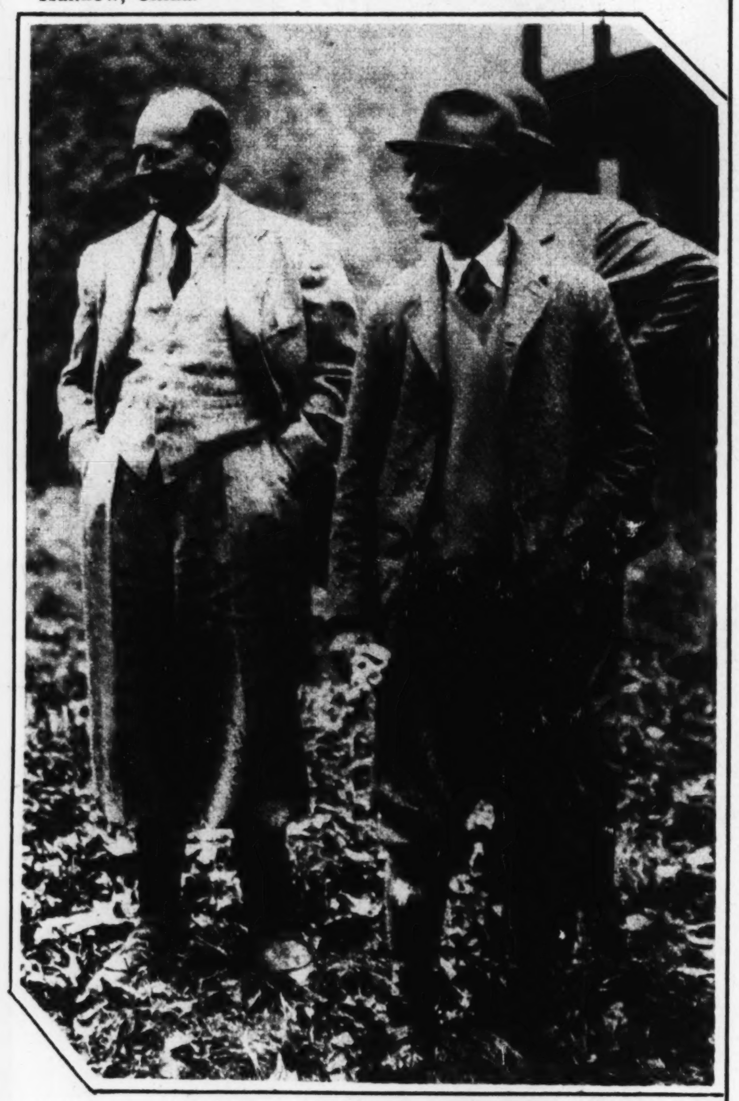
EAST AND WEST MEET — Members of the crew of the U. S. S. Houston looking at a quaint Chinese fishing net at Hankow, China.



FOURTEENTH CENTURY WATER SYSTEM—One of the features of the procession celebrating the election of a Lord Mayor of London were men costumed and equipped as the water carriers of six hundred years ago.



WORLD POLITICS IN KNICKERBOCKERS—Pierre Flandin, former French Finance Minister, and Neville Chamberlain, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, from a photograph made on Sir Gomer Berry's estate after a war debt conference and previous to the starting of a hunt.

. . . new 52 page LIONEL Railroad Planning Book

GET this big, gorgeously illustrated book, if you want to know the real fun of model railroading—the most fascinating hobby any man or boy can have. This new Planning Book tells you: (1) how to plan and lay out your railroad system and (2) what to get to make it true-to-life to the last detail. It shows you how to build a dozen different track layouts—including switches, crossings, tunnels, bridges, signal towers, telegraph lines—in fact, everything you need to have a real model railroad operating system. It shows how you can start with a few feet of single track, a sturdy, lifetime Lionel locomotive and several cars—costing as little as $5.95 a train—and then gradually add to your equipment until you have a great four-track system with batteries of powerful locomotives hauling great sections of freight cars, coal cars, oil cars, goudolas and cabooses. There is even a wrecking train with special derrick and floodlight cars. Pullmans, Diners, Observation and Mail cars are described and pictured in full colors; as are also faithful models of famous locomotives and crack passenger trains.
